PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

L.a.C. Says:

Birch Society Has Much Publicity But Few Members

Sen. Murphy raised a lot of heat when he said 60% of Birch Society members were Democrats. California Democratic National Chairman Wyman rushed into print demanding "name one." Then the Western head of the society, speaking in Santa Ana, said about half the membership were registered Democrats. He listed such Southern states as Alabama, Texas and Louisiana, plus Illinois, Indiana and up-state New Jersey as having many members. Since most of these are predominantly Democratic states it is natural that some of the party members are Birch members.

4 4 1 C The speaker, John Rousselot, surprised me by his statement that in Orange County about 4,000 to 4,500 people were members of the Society. That area has been viewed as the "hotbed" of Birchers. But when this number is divided by two-meaning man and wife -it is a very small percentage of Orange County population or voters. He said the goal was to have 1,000 to 2,000 members in each congressional district over the nation. Since the registered voters per district is around 200,000 it seems the Birch Society is far from being the danger its opponents would make it.

However its membership is made up of people who are so dedicated to fighting Communists they lose sight of the image portrayed of them by their leader Robert Welch. Their strength is weak because the Welch statements and programs are repugnant to the great majority of people of both parties. His inference that Gen. Eisenhower was a dupe of the Communists was his most disgusting statement. 👸

Among other items in his program that causes embarrassment to the Society are "opposition to civil rights-which he calls a Communist plot to establish a Negro Soviet Republic in the S. W.-U. S. A. He opposes NATO, Social Security, the Federal Reserve System, fluoridation of water and the graduated income tax. These programs were given in the June 18 issue of the Wall Street Journal.

Three years ago a California State Senate Committee, all Democrats, found nothing subversive in the Birch Society—although it thoroughly disapproved of it. But the Democrats have made it a major campaign to tie the Society to the Republican Party, whose leaders have repudiated the Society's leader and its programs. Now we find the Democrats having to do the same thing. a 773 a 754 a

This is rather ironic since the leading Democratic organization in California, the CDC, advocates views which are equally or more repugnant than those of Robert Welch. It advocates abolishment of the loyalty oath, the Un-American Activities Committee, and would provide foreign aid to Communist countries. But the CDC continues to be a major factor in the party. In my opinion it is far more dangerous and repugnant than the Birch Society. There are more CDC members in California than there are Birchers in the whole U. S., according to claims of their leaders.

When we boil it all down and compare the Birch Society and CDC we recall President Roosevelt's comment when he was faced with a serious labor-management problem. His comment was "a plague on both their houses." That is, in my opinion, the feeling of the great majority of members of both parties. Both are a hindrance to either party when they are tied to them. Both are discredited by their own attitudes. But it is time for Democrats to denounce the CDC as the GOP leaders have the Birch Society.—L.A.C

L.a.C. Says: Birch Society Has Much Publicity But Few Members

Sen. Murphy raised a lot of heat when he said 60% of Birch Society members were Democrats. California Democratic National Chairman Wyman rushed into print demanding "name one." Then the Western head of the society, speaking in Santa Ana, said about half the membership were registered Democrats. He listed such Southern states as Alabama, Texas and Louisiana, plus Illinois, Indiana and up-state New Jersev as having many members. Since most of these are predominantly Democratic states it is natural that some of the party members are Birch members.

The speaker, John Rousselot, surprised me by his statement that in Orange County about 4,000 to 4,500 people were members of the Society. That area has been viewed as the "hotbed" of Birchers. But when this number is divided by two-meaning man and wife -it is a very small percentage of Orange County population or voters. He said the goal was to have 1,000 to 2,000 members in each congressional district over the nation. Since the registered voters per district is around 200,000 it seems the Birch Society is far from being the danger its opponents would make it.

However its membership is made up of people who are so dedicated to fighting Communists they lose sight of the image portrayed of them by their leader Robert Welch. Their strength is weak because the Welch statements and programs are repugnant to the great majority of people of both parties. His inference that Gen. Eisenhower was a dupe of the Communists was his most disgusting statement.

Among other items in his program that causes embarrassment to the Society are "opposition to civil rights-which he calls a Communist plot to establish a Negro Soviet Republic in the S. W.-U. S. A. He opposes NATO, Social Security, the Federal Reserve System, fluoridation of water and the graduated income tax. These programs were given in the June 18 issue of the Wall Street Journal.

Three years ago a California State Senate Committee, all Democrats, found nothing subversive in the Birch Society-although it thoroughly disapproved of it. But the Democrats have made it a major campaign to tie the Society to the Republican Party, whose leaders have repudiated the Society's leader and its programs. Now we find the Democrats having to do the same thing.

This is rather ironic since the leading Democratic organization in California, the CDC, advocates views which are equally or more repugnant than those of Robert Welch. It advocates abolishment of the loyalty oath, the Un-American Activities Committee, and would provide foreign aid to Communist countries. But the CDC continues to be a major factor in the party. In my opinion it is far more dangerous and repugnant than the Birch Society. There are more CDC members in California than there are Birchers in the whole U. S., according to claims of their leaders.

When we boil it all down and compare the Birch Society and CDC we recall President Roosevelt's comment when he was faced with a serious labor-management problem. His comment was "a plague on both their houses." That is, in my opinion, the feeling of the great majority of members of both parties. Both are a hindrance to either party when they are tied to them. Both are discredited by their own attitudes. But it is time for Democrats to denounce the CDC as the GOP leaders have the Birch Society.-L.A.C.

2 Lives Bright With Hope--and Then, Tragedy

Dies With Brother

Typical School Kid'

By BOB GEIVET

In one happy, carefree moment, the laughing exuberance of youth on a holiday ...

And then, in a split second, a splintering crash, and the stillness of death is pierced by the pitiful cries of the injured.

So it was late Friday night in the peaceful, picturesque foothills of eastern Orange County, where a boy and his sister died near Villa Park in a sickening smashup which injured their two friends. The crash took the lives of handsome Jeffrey L. McVicar, who would have been 16 in December, and his pretty blonde sister, Susan, just turned 14. They had tasted of tragedy themselves, yet their lives were bright with hope for the future.

Their father, oil tycoon H. H. McVicar of Huntington Beach, had died in 1960. Their mother, Mrs. Iris Wilkens, died last year. But they had their brother Timothy, at 19 a steadying hero to both of them. And they had their stepfather, Robert Wilkens, with whom they all lived in a comfortable two-story home at 2938 E. Palmyra Ave., Orange,

EACH OF the children was to inherit a milliondollar trust fund from the McVicar oil fortune,

The prospect of financial comfort made no dif-ference to Jeff and Sue, however.

They were typical school kids, on an allowance just like all the others. They had the typical en-thuslasms—and, some say eccentricities—of the younger generation.

Now they are gone. Their deaths will touch forever the memories of their brother, their stepfather, their schoolmates.

Two others never will forget, either.

The chief of the Veterans Administration says the government is taking a new look at the salary schedule of resident physicians at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

tion forbidding outside medical jobs.

Driver informed Hosmer that the VA intends to continue its antimoonlighting policy.

"We believe it is reasonable to require a resident to devote full time to VA duties and responsibilities which are designed for the development of his professional competence," Driver said.

This expectation," Driver continued, "is consistent with the policies of major accrediting agencies for medical education and is consonant with the practices of most university-affiliated training programs in the United States."

"Veterans Administration policy restricts outside professional activities for remuneration of full-time physicians, dentists, nurses, residents and in-terns," Driver continued. "This policy has been uniformly applied for all VA hospitals, centers, domi-ciliaries and clinics."

Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-Calif., wrote to Dr. Polonsky that "I could not get any definite assurances as to whether or not an increase (in salary) will be actually forthcoming.

Brown is a member of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs.

The Long Beach VA Hospital, a 1,600-bed facility, has 110 resident physicians — doctors undergoing advanced training in preparation for a medical or surgical specialty.

A government investigation recently disclosed that 90% of the hospital's resident physicians had been holding down medical jobs in addition to their VA assignments. The doctors said they were forced to take extra work as a matter of "survival."

area" was the phrase that was repeated over and over by civic and business leaders who offered comments in the wake of the tentative decision that the school would locate in Dominguez.

"There's just no doubt that the college will stimulate growth and will up grade the area," declares Art Reeves, Dominguez Water Co executive and secretary of the Dominguez Industrial Committee, which speaks for major industry and landowners in the area.

SAID JOHN CALAS, seven times president of the Carson Chamber of Commerce and a resident 35

"Speaking for a bunch of hard-headed, dollar-wise businessmen, I would say we can see endless economic benefits as a result."

William E. H. Knight, chemical-company executive and chairman of the Dominguez Industrial Committee, sees the college as "a valuable as-set to industry."

HE PREDICTS AN inter change in talent and ideas be tween the college and business communities in the area of research and development

John Marbut, principal of the Dominguez Elementary School and chairman of the Dominguez-Carson Coordinating Committee, a federation of homeowner groups, expects the college to help "raise housing standards and bring in additional commercial development."

Marbut compares the Do minguez situation with that of two decades ago in Lakewood, where the coming of Long Beach City College helped change bean fields to a weil-planned city.

WILLIAM T. HUSTON, president of Watson Land Co., largest land company in the area, admits selling his company's industrial center to research and development firms has been a tough job until now because of the Lack of a nearby college.

Huston is one of those who is quick to emphasize that the location of the college in Dominguez still means that the impact will be felt in a wide area of the South Bay.

"Because of its location near Harbor and San Diego freeways," he says, "the col-lege will draw students from a vast area now poorly served by colleges."

GILBERT SMITH, president of the Centerview Homeowners Association and one of those speaking at the last meeting of state college trus-tees for the homeowners' federation, is one of several mity leaders who expressed the feeling that the college issue itself helped unite all segments of the

"At the beginning, there weren't many who thought we had much chance, but that didn't stop us from writing hundreds of letters," says Smith. "With the communication that we've established throughout the community, just give us a couple of years to establish good planning, and we'll be one of the better areas of Los Angeles County."

"Speaking for a bunch of hard-headed, dollar-wise busi-nessmen, I would say we can see endless economic benefits as a result."

William E. H. Knight, chemical-company executive and chairman of the Dominguez Industrial Committee, sees the college as "a valuable asset to industry."

HE PREDICTS AN interchange in talent and ideas between the college and business communities in the area of research and development

John Marbut, principal of the Dominguez Elementary School and chairman of the Dominguez-Carson Coordinating Committee, a federation of homeowner groups, expects the college to help "raise housing standards and hring in additional commercial development."

Marbut compares the Dominguez situation with that of two decades ago in Lakewood, where the coming of Long Beach City College helped change bean fields to a well-planned city.

WILLIAM T. HUSTON, president of Watson Land Co., largest land company in the area, admits selling his company's industrial center to research and development firms has been a tough job until now because of the Lack of a nearby college.

Huston is one of those who is quick to emphasize that the location of the college in Dominguez still means that the impact will be felt in a wide area of the South Bay.

"Because of its location near Harbor and San Diego freeways," he says, "the college will draw students from a vast area now poorly served by colleges."

GILBERT SMITH, president of the Centerview Homeowners Association and one of those speaking at the last meeting of state college trustees for the homeowners' federation, is one of several ity leaders Who expressed the feeling that the college issue itself helped unite all segments of the community.

"At the beginning, there weren't many who thought we had much chance, but that didn't stop us from writing hundreds of letters," says Smith. "With the communication that we've established throughout the community, just give us a couple of years to establish good planning, and we'll be one of the better areas of Los Angeles County.

WILD ANIMALS ONCE ROAMED ROOMS

Laguna Beach Woman Only Female Innkeeper Along Upper Amazon

By JAMES D. BOWMAN

LETICIA, Colombia (A) - Marcy Elden agrees that it takes some kind of a nut to want to run a hotel on the upper Ama-

Mrs. Elden is proprietress of the 12-room Victoria Regia in this jungle outpost. ,

She is perhaps the only woman innkeeper along the muddy 1,200-mile stretch of the Amazon between Iquitos, Peru, and Manaus, Brazil, and surely the most attractive.

"I feel like the Western pioneers must have 75 years ago," she says.
"This country is virtually untouched except that here we have the airplane instead of the covered wagon."

THE PETITE brunette from Laguna Beach, Calif., came up the Amazon two years ago with a crew shooting a documentary film, liked what she saw and stayed.

What she saw was the Victoria Regia, built by the Colombian government several decades ago. It was named for a jungle water lily which reaches the size of manhole covers, and it was falling apart.

Wild animals roamed through the rooms, cob-webs barred the doors, and what few guests there were strong hammocks outside on the long

Mrs. Elden got a fivemanagement contract from the government and promptly got her first taste of tropical hotel headaches.

Although the Amazon flows at her doorstep, fresh water is rationedthe hotel gets two hours worth a day. Electricity, provided by a Colombian gunboat, is available only during evening hours.

Out went the uninvited animals and cobwebs, and in came beds, a dining room and kitchen, and a pleasant bar where today the upper Amazon's elite meet in a rustic atmosphere at the jungle's edge.

Wild animals still grace the Victoria Regia, but only those invited by the management.

A TANK in one corner of the bar once housed a batch of alligators, raised by Mrs. Elden from footlong age. But the alligators outgrew the tank and had to go.

It proved nerve shattering to bar guests on advanced rounds Mrs. Elden explained, to see a 'gator suddenly rear over the wall of the tank and come flapping across the bar room floor.

Another Victoria Regia guest who eventually got the gate was a green-eyed black panther. Mrs. Elden acquired it as a kitten and fed it into stalking size. The panther got its eviction notice after Indian aids complained it was stalking in their direction.

Parrots, monkeys and a giant rhinoceros beetle also have lodged at the Victoria Regia, Among

Recorded Phone Message 'Mask' Ordered Off

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) - The state Public Utility Commission has acted to remove from pre-recorded telephone messages, PUC President William F. Hyland says.

The commission authorized the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. to disclose the identity of sponsors of such messages. Hyland said "the improper use of announcement service has opened the door to an abuse of impor tant public utility services in the fostering of campaigns of hate, vilification or smear.'

All three principal speakers agreed the state's Master Plan for Higher Education, adopted six years ago, has welded California's state universities, colleges and junior colleges into "a model system" that has gained fame among educators across the nation.

DR: DUMKE said he "thinks the press and public over-react to differences" among educators in the universities, state colleges and funior colleges.

"They react as if the Master Plan is breaking down. But these differences are really evidence that the Plan is working with a forum-like atmosphere to resolve the differences Nathaniel McGill, 45, of 1015 Alamitos Ave., was lailed on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder less than 24 hours after he was freed on $276 bail on the gambling count.

OFFICER ED FREE said McGill was arrested at 1024 Lewis Ave. after he fired a blast from a 16-gauge shotgun at Henry Clay Wright, 32 of 1965 Lewis Ave.

Wright was treated at St. Mary's Hospital for a minor wound in his upper right arm. The shot shattered a mirror on the wall at the victim's address.

Patrolmen D. K. Sheely said McGill, who was arrested shortly before midnight Friday, admitted firing the shot, and said he was sure Wright had telephoned police and touched off a raid which ended a dice game in McGill's home. McGill, his wife, and three others were arrested by

MARGARET PLANS VISIT Princess Will See the Sights in U.S.

By ROBERT MUSEI

LONDON (UPI)—After 17 years of wishing. Princess Margaret is coming to the United States to see the sights. For Margaret, that means meeting movie stars, mayors, professors, Wall Street bankers, diplomats and old friends in the jet set.

It is also likely to mean nightclubs and cafes. The princess, who loves London nightspots, has left time open on her schedule so that she can slip off for some unofficial fun.

She and her husband, the Earl of Snowdown, will arrive by plane in New York Nov. 4, then go to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Tucson, Ariz., Washington and New York again before returning home Nov. 24.

ALTHOUGH MUCH of her time is booked for receptions at city halls and airports and appearances at luncheons and charity balls, there are afternoons and evenings set aside so that the princess can do just what she wants to do—among other things, pay a visit to New York's El Morrocco night club, a spot

the princess has long been curious about. The New York discotheque, "Arthur," owned by Sybil Burton Christopher, is also bracing for a visit by royalty.

Margaret, now at matron of 35 with two children, first asked to visit the United States when she was 18. Her father, the late King George VI, turned her down. Later, when her sister, Queen Elizabeth, succeeded to the throne, she was turned down once again. Both rulers thought that Margaret, who had something of a reputation as a madcap, would give American police a crowd and a security headache.

But now that her teen-age years as leader of the champagne "Margaret Set" and her turbulent romance with the Fighter-Ace Group Capt. Peter Townsend are well in the past, now that she is less of a celebrity and more of a mature woman, Buckingham Palace thinks that the princess will be able to visit the U.S. without attracting screaming mobs.

She asked to meet Wall Street bankers and brokers and so David Rockefeller will give a luncheon for about 40 people in the board room of his glistening tall Chase Manhattan Bank headquarters near Wall Street in New York. She will also funch with U.N. Secretary General U Thant on Nov. 19 after a visit to the top of New York's Empire State building and she is expected to visit with President Johnson during her stay in Washington.

She and her husband, the Earl of Snowdown, will arrive by plane in New York Nov. 4, then go to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Tucson, Ariz., Washington and New York again before returning home

ALTHOUGH MUCH of her time is booked for receptions at city halls and airports and appearances at luncheons and charity balls, there are afternoons and evenings set aside so that the princess can do just what she wants to do-among other things, pay a visit to New York's El Morrocco night club, a spot

(Excerpts from the book "Tony's Room: The Secret Love Story of Princess Margaret" begins today in the Women's Section. Additional installments will run on the following two Sundays in the women's section.)

the princess has long been curious about. The New York discotheque, "Arthur," owned by Sybil Burton Christopher, is also bracing for a visit by royalty.

Margaret, now at matron of 35 with two children, first asked to visit the United States when she was 18. Her father, the late King George VI, turned her down. Later, when her sister, Queen Elizabeth, succeeded to the throne, she was turned down once again. Both rulers thought that Margaret, who had something of a reputation as a madcap, would give American police a crowd and a security headache.

But now that her teen-age years as leader of the champagne "Margaret Set" and her turbulent ro-mance with the Fighter-Ace Group Capt. Peter Townsend are well in the past, now that she is less of a celebrity and more of a mature woman, Buckingham Palace thinks that the princess will be able to visit the U.S. without attracting screaming mobs.

She asked to meet Wall Street bankers and brokers and so David Rockefeller will give a lunch-eon for about 40 people in the board room of his glistening tall Chase Manhattan Bank headquarters near Wall Street in New York. She will also lunch with U.N. Secretary General U Thant on Nov. 19 after a visit to the top of New York's Empire State building and she is expected to visit with President Johnson during her stay in Washington.

BULLHORN Address at University of Michigan Protests Viet Nam Involvement Parades Were Staged Friday Throughout Nation Against President's Policy.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Ike Protests Anti-Viet Acts

D. Eisenhower raised a stern voice this week against detractors of U.S. foreign policy. He was particularly critical of youthful demonstrators ignorant or defiant of American objectives in Viet Nam.

He spoke out as critics of the U.S. role in Viet Nam prepared to mount what became their most extensive protest against the war-a weekend series of demonstrations and "teachins" in 100 cities from coast to coast.

SUPPORTERS of President Johnson's policy erganized counter-demonstrations. In addition, a Senate subcommittee which probed into past demonstrations, charged the anti-Viet Nam movement was controlled Communists and extremist elements openly sympathetic to the Communist Viet Cong."

The President, recuperating in Bethesda, Md., Navai Hospital from a gall bladder operation, praised Eisenhower for urging that Americans show "a great sense of patriotic responsibility toward their government."

"You are expressing sen-timents I greatly admire." Johnson said in a message congratulating the general on his 75th birthday anniversary.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk also appealed to citizens to learn why the government must act as it does in certain situations such as Viet Nam-the stepping stone of Red China and Communist North Viet Nam to subjugation of all that youthful pacifist demonstrations only divide the nation. He also said he was disturbed by "moral decay" among American youth. He said it "ought to be fought, tooth and nail."

He called attention to Peking's newly enunciated blueprint for Communist domination of the world as out-rivaling Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf."

He cited draft dodgers of Former President Dwight the type brought to light recently by new selective service rules on marriage, and also the long hair and sloppy dress of teen-age boys. But he held out hope that they would outgrow "this nonsense that patriotism is somehow a little bit square."

MAJOR ground gains against the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam and pounding air attacks on North Viet Nam made American officials "more optimistic" about the war outlook. But Rusk made it clear that Red Hanoi was stubbornly holding out against peace overtures.

The U.S. Defense Department stepped up draft calls, setting a quota of 45.224 men for the Army and Marine Corps in December. This is 10,000 over the monthly maximum originally set by the President. The Army also expects to enlist 47,900 recruits in December while the Marines are shooting for 8,424. All the services are engaged in a 340,000man buildup.

DOCTORS said Johnson's overall recovery from surgery was "coming along fine" but that he was not regaining his strength fast enough to match his impatience. He was sleeping fitfully because of customary post-operative pain and discomfort from gas.

Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said it was still uncertain when the chief executive could return to the White House or go, per-haps, to his LBJ Ranch in Texas. He was taking brief walks near his suite and also was eating solid foods to restore his energy.

Mrs. Johnson canceled all engagements on her personal calendar to be with the President. The only Gen. Eisenhower told a major social event still on New York news conference the White House schedule is a dinner-dance for Britain's Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowden, on Nov. 17.

strong GOP-southern Democratic opposition and shelved until next year the President's—and labor's bill to nullify state rightto-work laws.

Among bills winning final approval were Johnson's four-year farm price support program, a $4.3 billion public works appro-priation, and Mrs. John-son's "America Beautiful" project. The latter fell far short of what the White House had requested.

Still to be passed were controversial sugar-quota, higher education and rent subsidy bills.

ON OTHER news front Cuban refugees, taking advantage of Communist Dictator Fidel Castro's new "open door" policy, poured into Key West, Fla., in boats of all types and in defiance of U.S. officials who were still dickering with Castro on voluntary exile ground rules. The offirials said they expected at least 42,500 Cubans to forsake their homeland --- unless Castro does an about face and slams the exits.

THE President and the State Department were keeping a close watch on Indonesia where President Sukarno was hard pressed by anti-Red Chinese elements demanding a purge of all Communists in the turbulent country.

U.S. officials said frankly they believed Sukarno was involved with the Communists in the Sept. 30 coup which was suppressed by the army. In the meantime mobs wrecked the Youth Front and burned tionwide order.

New Police Chief to Keep Seal Beach Clean

By CHARLES CHEATHAM town and area, Chief Case

Seal Beach, a happy hunting ground for gam-blers in years past, is a clean city and will continue to be.

Seal Beach's new chief of police, Lee S. Case, was emphatic when he said: '.

"When I took office four months ago I found a clean town. A town that was not overrun with vice. The town will continue to be clean as long as I am chief."

Chief Case was enthusiastic as he discussed the cooperation he has received from Seal Beach's city manager and City Council.

"THEY TOLD me to run a good, clean, efficient department and I will," the chief declared. Chief Case is no stranger

Seal Beach's chief graduated from the University of Southern California in 1941 with a bachelor of science degree in education and is now studying for his master's degree in public administration.

CHIEF CASE has high praise for Los Angeles Chief of Police William Parker and the Los Angeles Police Department.

HE SAID the police department has enjoyed excellent relationship with local youth groups, but outside youths have caused problems, particularly dur-

Along with many other police administrators, Chief Case is appalled by "a modern day spirit of poor respect for law enforcement among many highspirited youths."

He believes it is due to a judicial revolution.

A Red Victory

THE "VIET NAM DAY" demonstrations raise a sigificant question which cannot be precisely an-

What role do the Communists play in this and other rebellious disturbances of our era?

The Communist Party is no longer visible in the United States. Except for a handful of superannuated, diehard old revolutionists it is almost impossible to find anyone who describes himself as a Communist.

It was not always so. Back in the 1930s the Communists worked hard and rather openly. They published mountains of literature, some of it quite interesting. They fomented strikes, especially those which would lead to disaster for both management and labor. They staged and led riots. Fanatical young men went to Spain to die in the "Abraham Lincoln Brigade." In certain intellectual and even capitalistic circles it was considered quite "in" to be a Communist.

... THE REDS have disappeared—but the hallmarks of orthodox Communist conspiracy are very apparent

The Communists always move into areas of genuine social unrest. The Viet Nam policy is such an area. Many cannot understand why Americans should be dying in an exotic Asian land. Others fear the catastrophe of an "escalated" war. There are also genuine pacifists who for religious or personal convictions oppose all violence. And there are always those unstable personalities who welcome any kind of trouble for the excitement it provides.

The conspirators' first strategy is to encourage and aid such persons to stage a "spontaneous, popular demonstration." This was done in "Viet Nam Day."

THE SECOND step is the provocation of violence. The demonstrators must not be allowed to carry their picket signs and go home to supper, having had their say. They must come into conflict with rival groups or the police. This is often easily accomplished.

The third step, if the authorities do not work wisely and well, is open insurgency with murder, looting and expert sabotage.

The Communists seldom expect total success. Their slogan is "advance three steps, fall back two." Their demonstration accomplished its purpose, which was to tell the world that some Americans disapprove of their nation's anti-Communist fight.

It would be foolish to say that the Communists are the sole cause of the disturbances which wrack Means Com-America. The militant extreme right has also been guilty of conspiracy. And there are many confused, restless, unhappy young people desperately searching for a "cause," for something to fight for.

Still, the orthodox revolutionary patterns of the troubles leads to the belief that not all the American Communists are elderly or dead.

Demo Tactic: Pass Bills, Revise Later

WASHINGTON-As the first session of the 89th Congress goes into its dying days, even the most satisfied Democrats are admitting that they've left a lot of loop-holes in Great Society legislation.

Privately, most Democratic solons admit that many laws sped through Congress on a "pass now, polish later" basis. Sure there are a lot of bills that have been passed we aren't happy about," one midwestern congressman complained. "But congressional majorities are not like money in the bank," he went on, "and we probably won't have this heavy majority in the next Congress, so we have to pass the bills now while we've got the vote." He said that it would be ridiculous to "waste these heavy majorities" on refining the bills when once refined they very well might be passed by a less sympathetic As an example, he said that hardly any of the Demo-Goldwater said he missed cratic members of the House approved of the administration's highway beautification bill as it was written, but even fewer had the inclination to vote against it.

"It doesn't really matter," he said, "It (the bill) won't go into effect until 1968 and so we can spend all next year filling the loopholes left when we drew the bill." THE OFFICE of Economic Opportunity (the new federal agency in charge of poverty) has come up with a new way of gauging who's poor.

Last year the OEA simply said that any family of four whose total yearly income was $3,000 or less was a victim of "poverty." This year R. Sargent Shriver, director of the poverty program, revealed to a House committee that the definition had been refined. The relative wealth of a family now is gauged by how much money is spent for each

After extensive study, according to Shriver, the Department of Agriculture came up with statistics showing minimal subsistence per person per meal is 23 cents. USDA also came up with statistics showing that poor people generally spend one-third of their income on food. When all of these figures are tallied for a family of four, what is the average yearly income? You guessed it, $3,000.

DESPITE the bad press Mr. Johnson continues to receive abroad, diplomats here have begun to change their minds about the "Texas cowboy."

REP. ALVIN O'Konski, the outspoken Republican from Wisconsin has been called a lot of things since coming to Congress in 1943, but never a hookey player.

There are few congressmen with better records than O'Konski when it comes to answering roll call, and O'Konski proved it this week when the House called its 370th roll of 1965 on the sugar bill. For the 370th time, O'Konski was present. The 370 roll calls, by the way, are the most ever for one session of

EDITORIAL A Red Victory

THE "VIET NAM DAY" demonstrations raise a significant question which cannot be precisely an-

What role do the Communists play in this and other rebellious disturbances of our era?

The Communist Party is no longer visible in the United States. Except for a handful of superannuated, diehard old revolutionists it is almost impossible to find anyone who describes himself as a Communist.

It was not always so. Back in the 1930s the Communists worked hard and rather openly. They published mountains of literature, some of it quite interesting. They fomented strikes, especially those which would lead to disaster for both management and labor. They staged and led riots. Fanatical young men went to Spain to die in the "Abraham Lincoln Brigade." In certain intellectual and even capitalistic circles it was considered quite "in" to be a Communist.

THE REDS have disappeared—but the hallmarks of orthodox Communist conspiracy are very apparent

The Communists always move into areas of genuine social unrest. The Viet Nam policy is such an area. Many cannot understand why Americans should he dying in an exotic Asian land. Others fear the catastrophe of an "escalated" war. There are also genuine pacifists who for religious or personal convictions oppose all violence. And there are always those unstable personalities who welcome any kind of trouble for the excitement it provides.

The conspirators' first strategy is to encourage and aid such persons to stage a "spentaneous, popular demonstration." This was done in "Viet Nam Day."

THE SECOND step is the provocation of violence. The demonstrators must not be allowed to carry their picket signs and go home to supper, having had their say. They must come into conflict with rival groups or the police. This is often easily accomplished.

The third step, if the authorities do not work wisely and well, is open insurgency with murder, looting and expert sabotage.

The Communists seldom expect total success. Their slogan is "advance three steps, fall back two." Their demonstration accomplished its purpose, which after a heated reapportionwas to tell the world that some Americans disapprove of their nation's anti-Communist fight.

It would be foolish to say that the Communists are the scle cause of the disturbances which wrack Means Com-America. The militant extreme right has also been mittee, guilty of conspiracy. And there are many confused, Robert Monarestless, unhappy young people desperately searching gan, R-Tracy, for a "cause," for something to fight for.

Still, the orthodox revolutionary patterns of the troubles leads to the belief that not all the American Communists are elderly or dead.

Sure there are a lot of bills that have been passed we aren't happy about," one midwestern congressman complained.

"But congressional majorities are not like money in the bank," he went on, "and we probably won't have this heavy mafority in the next Congress, so we have to pass the bills now while we've got the

He said that it would be ridiculous to "waste these heavy majorities" on refining the bills when once refined they very well might be passed by a less sympathetic As an example, he said that hardly any of the Democratic members of the House approved of the administration's highway beautification bill as it was written, but even fewer had the inclination to vote against it.

"It doesn't really matter," he said, "It (the hill) won't go into effect until 1968 and so we can spend all next year filling the loopholes left when we drew the bill."

THE OFFICE of Economic Opportunity (the new federal agency in charge of poverty) has come up with a new way of gauging who's poor.

Last year the OEA simply said that any family of four whose total yearly income was $3,000 or less was a victim of "poverty." This year R. Sargent Shriver, director of the poverty program, revealed to a House committee that the definition had been refined. The relative wealth of a family now is gauged by how much money is spent for each

After extensive study, according to Shriver, the Department of Agriculture came up with statistics showing minimal subsistence per person per meal is 23 cents. USDA also came up with statistics showing that poor people generally spend one-third of their income on food. When all of these figures are tallied for a family of four, what is the average yearly income? You guessed it, $3,000.

DESPITE the bad press Mr. Johnson continues to receive abroad, diplomats here have begun to change their minds about the "Texas cowboy."

'The U.S. has never handled Russia better or been on better terms with them," one French official admitted recently. "Johnson has Secretary of State Dean Rusk meet with Ambassador Dobrynin two or three times a week and then he makes sure that the Russians understand every single move the U.S. makes-and it's beginning to pay off."

Among the absurd rumors going about following President Johnson's surgery is that the American Medical Association has mysteriously come into possession of the scapels used to remove LBJ's gall bladder. The AMA supposedly would auction off the instruments to fatten a "repeal medicare" fund.

REP. ALVIN O'Konski, the outspoken Republican from Wisconsin has been called a lot of things since coming to Congress in 1943, but never a hookey player. There are few congressmen with better records than O'Konski when it comes to answering roll call, and O'Konski proved it this week when the House called its 370th roll of 1965 on the sugar bill. For the 370th time, O'Konski was present. The 370

roll calls, by the way, are the most ever for one session of O'Konski has had a perfect attendance for eight consecutive years. He has averaged 225 roll calls in those years and in 23 years in Congress has been present for an average of 96% of the roll calls.

At the super-secret Central Intelligence Agency, even the telephone operators exude an aura of mystery.

The CIA operators never identify the agency by name callers-they merely repeat the CIA's main telephone number. The number, at least, is no secret-it's listed in the Metropolitan Washington Telephone Directory.

L.B. Woman Ending Viet Duty Tour With Red Cross

A Long Beach woman is winding up her second tour of duty with the Red Cross in the Far East and is scheduled to return home by Christmas.

She is Frankie L Osborne, of 3820 E. Sixth St., hospital field director for the Red Cross in the U.S. Army's 8th Field Hospital in Nha Trang, 200 miles north of Saigon, Viet Nam. "She won't want to leave," said Mrs. J. R. Tillery, a sister, who lives at the E. Sixth Street address. "She is so wrapped up in service to the patients. She works hard and long hours. On a recent three-day leave in Saigon, she spent most of her time catching up on lost sleep."

As field director, Miss Osborne's duties include for the ill and injured in the hospital, counseling, and communicating with patients' relatives at home when necessary.

"Frankie is due home for Christmas because she has served this second Far East tour since May 1962. The Red Cross usually requires that a home leave be taken after strenuous overseas service of that length of time," said Mrs. Tillery.

Nha Trang is a beach resort city on the South China Sea coast and has not been a target area, but personnel of the hos-pital often have been confined to the area where they live because of nearby bombing.

Miss Osborne was grad-

CARTOONIST DICK WALLMEYER SEES EVERYTHING IN BLACK AND WHITE

An editorial cartoonist does not draw persons and things — he draws ideas.

So, naturally, he must be more than an artist with pen, pencil, or crayon; he must be a reader and thinker; and, even more, he must have the unusual ability to crystallize in a single, simple drawing a conclusion drawn from a complex set of circumstances.

Dick Wallmeyer, staff editorial cartoonist for the Independent, Press-Telegram, is that kind of guy. He learned to draw by studying at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, by correspondence courses with Art Instruction, Inc., as an art studio apprentice, and as a paste-up artist.

The ideas came naturally from the time he first picked up a pencil as a small boy in Chicago Heights, and he tuned them up during youthful years spent as a proofreader, salesman, airman during the Korean war, and as a radio newscaster.

When Dick signed on at the I.P-T in 1961, he had never worked as a newspaper cartoonist. But, in the four years since, he has attained an enviable national reputation as one of America's most promising young editorial artists.

His cartoons have been reprinted in the New York Times and other newspapers and in Editor & Publisher magazine. They have been hung in the Congressional Library, the Historical Society of Missouri, the University of Illinois, and the Archives of American Art in Detroit. His original drawings will be found in the private collections of Barry Goldwater and Donald Douglas and Senator Tom Kuchel. They have been included in such anthologies as "Today's Cartoon" and the national yearbook of Editorial Guild. One received the 1963 National Safety Couned Award for safety cartoons.

Dick's editorial cartoons delight many readers of the I, P-T most of the time; they infuriate some of our readers part of the time. They are intended to provoke thinking and discussion, not to amuse.

They're not used to exciting football games in Missouri University's Memorial Stadium, where they proudly refer to the home team as ground hogs and turf trompers. But meth-odical Mizzou, outplayed for three quarters by the surprising UCLA team, exploded in a vicious manner in the closing seconds of the intersectional clash for two long touchdowns in the space of a handful of seconds, spoiling what looked like a sure victory the underdog Coast team.

A Blow To The Ladies

From time to time you have read here our comments on women in sports. Jokingly (you knew we weren't being too serious, didn't you, girls?), we suggested that members of the fair sex remain in the kitchen and tend to the kids instead of cluttering up the already-too-crowded sports scene.

Now, however, we have in band a professional report on women's participation in sports - and, gals, you're not going to like it. The expert is Dr. Henri Pouret, a French gynecolo-gist and former track star who delivered his observation before the International Olympic Academy, a new organization whose purpose is to restore to the Olympic Games some of the ancient idealism of a sound mind in a healthy body.

BUZZIE BAVASI

How's that for openers, ladies? The good doctor, however, had just begun to fight.

MIFFED AT BEING LIKENED to fish, the Academy ladies cited examples of such mother-champions as the Flying Dutchwoman Fanny Blankers-Koen, Then a male, Dr. Sisto Favre, Italy's eloquent Olympic historian, rose to the women's defense. He declared that the ancient Games actually originated with women 3,000 years ago during matriachal times.

But Dr. Pouret stuck to his study. With a twinkle in his eye and a smile, he insisted that "everything athletic performed vertically is dangerous for a mother, and every-thing performed horizontally all right." Leave it to a Fenchman!

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

... Startling quote from Murray Olderman, NEA sports editor—"Around Chavez Ravine, they may think of Waiter Alston as the resident genius, but at a World Series gathering, general manager Buzzie Bavast of the Dodgers looked around the room and said, 'Big league manager? What's the big deal? I could name 15 guys in this room who could manage as good as Walter Alston." . . Remember Dr. Steve Seymour, the Olympic javelin thrower from Long Beach? The good doctor has authered the book, "How To Improve Your Thinking To Solve Your Problems," and those interested in a copy can contact Steve at Logic-Westwood, P.O. Box 24509, L.A. 90024. And this postscript from Seymour. Ten years to prepare this masterpiece on communication, thinking, logic and semantics. By the way, I'm running up to 21 miles daily indoors at Los Angeles A.C. to win the national club marathon like I did swimming marathon in '51." Athletes may come and go, but Lou Johnson and Steve Sey-

... Pre-USC game comment from Stanford's John Ralstom "Talk about coaching nerves. After we beat the Air Force on a field goal with 22 seconds left, I confess I don't even remember sending my kicker (Terry DeSyfvia) into the game."

IN RESPONSE to a column note here the other day, inquiring from where did the Twins' "secret weapons" Frank Quilici and Joe Nossek come, our famed Ohio U. graduate in the editorial department, Maury Rabin, is quick to oblige: "They both come from the tough Mid-American Conference, along with another Twin, Rich Rol-lins. Nossek is a college all-America from Ohio U., Quilici is from Western Michigan, and Rollins from Kent State." Now you know.

. Twins' shortstop Zoilo Versalles always impressed this writer as a strange character, to say the least, but his post-Series blasts at the Dodgers were in the worst of taste. Versalles even had a snide remark about Sandy Koufax when the Twins came to Dodger Stadium: "Koufax isn't so great to me. Sam MacDowell of the Cleveland Indians throws harder than Koufax and his ball moves more." Significantly, none of the other Twin players supported Versalles' versions.

. Did you know that the Twins' fine pitcher, Jim (Mudcat) Grant, used to play football? He was second-string halfback at Florida A&M behind the late Willie Galimore. "Man, that Galimore was the big reason I stuck with baseball," chuckled Grant before his second pitching attempt Sunday. "I was a pretty good football player, but you know I wasn't going to play much with that cat there. When the Mudcat is on the second string, the Mudcat knows it's time to figure out something else to do." The Mudcat is a rare species—a heckuya player and one with a tremendous sense of humor.

Rams-49ers: Points Aplenty

It might be a good idea kethall scoreboard into the Coliseum for today's 31st meeting between the Rams and the San Francisco 49ers.

First of what may be many kickoffs in this battle between the National League's two California entries is scheduled for 1:05 and 37,000 fans are expected to watch. 3

Because both clubs are sending injury-riddled defenses into combat, odds-makers foresee an offensive show and rate the 49ers 2-point choices.

It was only five weeks ago that the Rams pounded the 49ers, 34-14, in preseason play. It looked like the 49ers didn't have enough buckets to catch all the leaks in the rest of the

The Rams also have lost two straight, and although they can't seem to score on the road (six points in two games), they've tacked up 65 points in their two Coliseum appearances.

S.F. quarterback John Brodie, the third-leading passer in the NFL with 971 yards and eight touchdowns, figures to severely test a Ram defensive secondary that has Aeron Martin out for the year and Chuck Lamson and Eddie Meador slowed by pulled hamstrings.

Besides losing Martin, the Ram defense is without linebacker Cliff Livingston for another week while rookie middle backer Tony Guillory is ailing with a neck injury.

The 49er defense is burtin' almost as much and young Ram quarterback Bill Munson can unlimber his accurate arm which has netted 686 yards and five touchdowns this season. Tommy McDonald has been Munson's most inviting target, ranking second

Probably the most impressive difference in the 49er attack has come with the performances of Ken Willard, 230-pound full-back from North Carolina who was S.F.'s first draft choice last year, and the polished veteran John David Crow.

Quick and powerful, Willard has averaged four yards a try thus far in to-taling 183 yards on 46 car-ries. Crow, who weighs 224, has averaged 3.9-yards per carry on 34 carries. He Bass has thrown and completed two passes, one of them to Dave Parks good for a 45yard td.

The 49ers are without the services of 1964 defen-sive stars end Dan Colchi-Dowdle and outside backet Matt Hazeltine. These three took turns playing bean bag with Munson's head when S.F. triumphed 28-7 in the Kezar rematch last year. The Rams had won 42-14 seven weeks earlier.

Don't expect a pitcher's battle today.

Sam Mele Saturday agreed to manage the Minnesota Twins for the next two years at a salary believed to be close to $50,-000 a year.

The agreement came on the same day when he was voted manager of the year in a poll of major league managers by the Sporting News.

Mele, who was paid $37,-000 each of the past two seasons, had been insistent on a two-year contract which Twins president Calvin Griffith has never before given.

reports spread that Mele might be offered the Chicago White Sox managership should present manager Al Lopex retire. It was also rumored the Boston Red Sox were interested in Mele as general manager to replace Mike Higgins, who was fired several weeks 250.

During the World Series.

In the Sporting News poll, Mele received more than half the votes cast to win the honor over Walter Alston of the Dodgers. Both managers guided their teams from 1964 sixthnant with Alston's Dodgers winning the World Series. Alston subsequently was named National League Manager of the Year, Herman Franks of the San Francisco Giants was third in the balloting with Gil Hodges of the Washington Senators fourth. ... Mele now has a new contract and a high honor, but for about nine months he's been expecting something else.

A baby is due to be horn to the Meles any hour.

A Blow To The Ladies

From time to time you have read here our comments on women in sports. Jokingly (you knew we weren't being too serious, didn't you, girls?), we suggested that members of the fair sex remain in the kitchen and tend to the kids instead of cluttering up the already-too-crowded sports scene.

Now, however, we have in hand a professional report on women's participation in sports - and, gals, you're not going to like it. The expert is Dr. Henri Pouret, a French gynecologist and former track star who delivered his observation before the International Olympic Academy, a new organization whose purpose is to restore to the Olympic Games some of the ancient idealism of a sound mind in a healthy body.

While most of the women lecturers at the Olympic Academy readily agreed with Dr. Pouret on preventive medicine, they were rather taken aback by his views on women competing in strenuous sports. A study of pre and postpartum physiologic consequences of 300 women has convinced Dr. Pouret that "women are not by nature sports creatures, despite the popular impression, and especially in view of their maternal role. Of course, it is good for a woman to practice sports. Swimming is a sport par excellence, THE FORM OF A WOMAN IS INDEED LIKE A FISH, MORPHOLOGI-

How's that for openers, ladies? The good doctor, however, had just begun to fight.

MIFFED AT BEING LIKENED to fish, the Academy ladies cited examples of such mother-champions as the Flying Dutchwoman Fanny Blankers-Koen. Then a male, Dr. Sisto Favre, Italy's eloquent Olympic historian, rose to the women's defense. He declared that the ancient Games actually originated with women 3,000 years ago during matriachal times.

But Dr. Pouret stuck to his study. With a twinkle in his eye and a smile, he insisted that "everything athletic performed vertically is dangerous for a mother, and everything performed horizontally all right." Leave it to a Fenchman!

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

. Startling quote from Murray Olderman, NEA sports editor—"Around Chavez Ravine, they may think of Walter Alston as the resident genius, but at a World Series gathering, general manager Buzzie Bavasi of the Dodgers looked around the room and said, 'Big league manager? What's the big deal? I could name 15 guys in this room who could manage as good as Walter Alston." Wow-eeee!

. . Remember Dr. Steve Seymour, the Olympic javein thrower from Long Beach? The good doctor has authored the book, "How To Improve Your Thinking To Solve Your Problems," and those interested in a copy can contact Steve at Logic-Westwood, P.O. Box 24509, L.A. 90024. And this postscript from Seymour: "Ten years to prepare this masterpiece on communication, thinking, logic and semantics. By the way, I'm running up to 21 miles daily indoors at Los Angeles A.C. to win the national club marathon like I did swimming marathon in '51." Athletes may come and go, but Lou Johnson and Steve Sey-

. . Pre-USC game comment from Stanford's John Raiston: "Talk about coaching nerves. After we beat the Air Force on a field goal with 22 seconds left, I confess I don't even remember sending my kicker (Terry DeSylvia) into the game."

IN RESPONSE to a column note here the other day, inquiring from where did the Twins' "secret weapons"-Frank Quilici and Joe Nossek come, our famed Ohio U. graduate in the editorial department, Maury Rabin, is quick to oblige: "They both come from the tough Mid-American Conference, along with another Twin, Rich Rollins. Nossek is a college all-America from Ohio U., Quilici is from Western Michigan, and Rollins from Kent State." Now you know.

. . Twins' shortstop Zoilo Versalles always impressed this writer as a strange character to say the least, but his post-Series blasts at the Dodgers were in the worst of taste. Versalles even had a snide remark about Sandy Koufax when the Twins came to Dodger Stadium: "Koufax isn't so great to me. Sam MacDowell of the Cleveland Indians throws harder than Koufax and his ball moves more." Significantly, none of the other Twin players supported Versalles' versions.

. Did you know that the Twins' fine pitcher, Jim (Mudcat) Grant, used to play football? He was secondstring halfback at Florida A&M behind the late Willie Galimore, "Man, that Galimore was the big reason I stuck with baseball," chuckled Grant before his second pitching attempt Sunday. "I was a pretty good football player, but you know I wasn't going to play much with that cat there. When the Mudcat is on the second string, the Mudcat knows it's time to figure out something else to do." The Mudcat is a rare species—a heckuva player and one with a tremendous sense of humor.

People would ask why do you do this, why do you do that, how come you're not like the rest of the guys, and I'd say, I don't know how come. Now I got an answer: I'm an alcoholic and that's it. That explains all my actions."

PART ONE OF A TWO-PART SERIES

For most people, a house is a home, but for Howard Young it was a bottle. For 12 years, he thought it was a sanctuary, when in reality it was his own private prison.

It started when a 16-year-old boy dropped out of school, joined a work gang and boozed his way into the company of men. It ended five months ago when a washed-up hockey player kicked in his own apartment door because he was too drunk to find

"I guess from my very first beer I was an alco-holic," he says. "I didn't have any problems. That's typical of the way an alcoholic thinks. Everything else is a problem, but the main one that is your prob-Iem you don't accept.

"Alcoholics are the biggest con artists in the world. They even con themselves. But I've accepted it . . . and right there is a big load off my mind because it gives me all the answers."

* * FOR A GUY who saw more ice at the bottom of a glass. Young forged an amazingly successful professional hockey career. His ability got him into the major leagues with the Detroit Red Wings in only three pro seasons—and in only three more his drinking got him out.

The Red Wings, their patience exhausted by Young's frequent binges along the NHL trail, event-ually dealt him to the Chicago Black Hawks, where he lasted only half a season before his conduct got so bad that the league suspended him.

NHL president Clarence Campbell called Young

"the greatest detriment to hockey that ever laced on a pair of skates," and he wasn't far from right.

LIKE MOST ALCOHOLICS, Howie was prone to get involved in some pretty wild incidents. "It's all part of the pattern," he says, and it's a part of his life he would rather forget.

"A lot of the stories are exaggerated," he adds with a wry grin. A recent story quoted Young as saying he was "drunk the last four games" of last

"Actually, it was only one of the four, a game at Vancouver," he says.

How about the celebrated incident at Edmonton when he climbed a ballroom chandelier and had to be hauled down a ladder by Bud Poile, then coach at Edmonton, now at San Francisco?

"Naw, I got down myself," Howie corrects.
"Hell, one story even said I threw Frank Sinatra off his yacht when we were over in Hawaii making that movie last year. I don't know where that one got

YOUNG'S MOST RECENT escapade was last season when he went AWOL from the Blades at Portland, drawing a short suspension.

"I went to bed when the guys were getting up. How'm I gonna catch a plane? So then I figured. well, I've done it now, so what am I gonna do. I went out and got blasted again.

"It's the way you think Everything's an excuse to get drunk ... anything to give you the false sense of doing right."

Young says he has no feelings of guilt over his past conduct, but he did before he realized his prob-

"I had a disease. I still have it and always will. Just because you're sober doesn't mean you aren't an alcoholic. Naturally, I felt terrible all the time. You can't even begin to think of the problems an alcoholic has on his mind."

THE GREATEST of Young's problems—the ones he thought he had—was his livelihood. Because it was easier to foul an opponent than hustle, he set penalty records in the National and Western

"My playing just went along with my general attitude," he says. "I didn't have time for hockey. It was a burden. I played it grudgingly because I had to play this tough, hard sport, which I didn't have the physical strength to play . . . I had to play it to keep drinking.

"It's tough enough to play it sober. Now I go out there and think, how could I ever do it?"

Last May 3 Young was drunk, as usual, and kicked in the door of his Hermosa Beach apartment because he couldn't find the key. He raised such a ruckus that the neighbors called police and he wound up in the drunk tank of the Los Angeles

His sweetheart had left him, and there he sat, as low as he could go.

"I felt like an empty bottle," he recalls.

Next Sunday: Howie Young, at 28, does something to change his whole life.

By RICH ROBERTS

PART ONE OF A TWO-PART SERIES

For most people, a house is a home, but for Howard Young it was a bottle. For 12 years, he thought it was a sanctuary, when in reality it was his own private prison.

It started when a 16-year-old boy dropped out of school, joined a work gang and boozed his way into the company of men. It ended five months ago when a washed-up hockey player kicked in his own apartment door because he was too drunk to find

"I guess from my very first beer I was an alcoholic," he says. "I didn't have any problems. That's typical of the way an alcoholic thinks. Everything else is a problem, but the main one that is your problem you don't accept.

'Alcoholics are the biggest con artists in the world. They even con themselves. But I've accepted it . . . and right there is a big load off my mind because it gives me all the answers."

FOR A GUY who saw more ice at the bottom of a glass. Young forged an amazingly successful professional hockey career. His ability got him into the major leagues with the Detroit Red Wings in only three pro seasons—and in only three more his drinking got him out.

The Red Wings, their patience exhausted by Young's frequent binges along the NHL trail, eventually dealt him to the Chicago Black Hawks, where he lasted only half a season before his conduct got so bad that the league suspended him.

NHL president Clarence Camphell called Young "the greatest detriment to hockey that ever laced on a pair of skates," and he wasn't far from right.

LIKE MOST ALCOHOLICS, Howie was prone to get involved in some pretty wild incidents. "It's all part of the pattern," he says, and it's a part of his life he would rather forget.
"A lot of the stories are exaggerated," he adds with a wry grin. A recent story quoted Young as saying he was "drunk the last four games" of last season.

"Actually, it was only one of the four, a game at Vancouver," he says.

How about the celebrated incident at Edmonton when he climbed a ballroom chandelier and had to be hauled down a ladder by Bud Poile, then coach at Edmonton, now at San Francisco?

"Naw, I got down myself," Howie corrects. "Hell, one story even said I threw Frank Sinatra off his yacht when we were over in Hawaii making that movie last year. I don't know where that one got

YOUNG'S MOST RECENT escapade was last season when he went AWOL from the Blades at Portland, drawing a short suspension.

"I went to bed when the guys were getting up. How'm I gonna caich a plane? So then I figured, well. I've done it now, so what am I gonna do. I went out and got blasted again.

"It's the way you think. Everything's an excuse to get drunk . . . anything to give you the false sense of doing right."

Young says he has no feelings of guilt over his past conduct, but he did before he realized his proh-

"I had a disease. I still have it and always will. Just because you're sober doesn't mean you aren't an alcoholic. Naturally, I felt terrible all the time. You can't even begin to think of the problems an alcoholic has on his mind."

THE GREATEST of Young's problems—the ones he thought he had—was his livelihood. Because it was easier to foul an opponent than hustle, he set penalty records in the National and Western

"My playing just went along with my general attitude," he says. "I didn't have time for hockey. It was a burden. I played it grudgingly because I had to play this tough, hard sport, which I didn't have the physical strength to play . . . I had to play it to keep drinking.

"It's tough enough to play it sober. Now I go out there and think, how could I ever do it?"

Last May 3 Young was drunk, as usual, and kicked in the door of his Hermosa Beach apartment because he couldn't find the key. He raised such a ruckus that the neighbors called police and he wound up in the drunk tank of the Los Angeles County Jail. His sweetheart had left him, and there he sat, as low as he could go.

"I felt like an empty bottle," he recalls.

49ers Could Doom Rams to Cellar

Looking at the situation coldly with no sentiment to sway their thinking, pro football men did not think the Rams would make much noise in the NFL's Western Division race this season for a number of

But when they plowed under the San Francisco 49ers, 34-14, in the final exhibition game, it appeared that they had found at least one team they could beat . . . thus, while they might not move up in the standings, they wouldn't finish last. However, when the 49ers move into the Colisum today, the Rams will be looking at a much different team than they faced a month ago . . . one that might well lock the cellar door on them.

In their exhibition, the 49ers were playing it cozy while laying in the bushes for the following week's league opener with the Chicago Bears.

They threw everything but the kitchen sink—their whole repertoire - at the Bears and slaughtered them, 52-24 . . . leading 45-3 at one stage before "easing

The 49ers then knocked off the Pitt Steelers before losing to the top two teams in the division — Baltimore and Green Bay.

But they gained added respect in those losses. They had a shot at beating the Colts in the final two minutes before bowing, 27-24, and were giving Green Bay a whale of a battle before Mike Dowdle — their important defensive leader — was put out of commission in the sec-bod quarter. The Packers then went on to win, 27-10.

JACK CHRISTIANSEN

'We're on the Upgrade'

INJURIES PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE in the 49ers' last-place finishes the past two years. No team in pro-football suffered so many key injuries. In 1963, even quarterback John Brodie was shelved with a broken arm.
The 49ers escaped major injuries through the pre-season games, but have now lost three key defensive men in the last month — Dowdle with a shoulder separation, and linebacker Matt Hazeltine and defensive end Dan Hazeltine and Colchico were burt in the opening Bear game, and both have undergone surgery.

With the loss of Hazeltine and Dowdle, two-thirds of the 49ers' rugged linebacking crew has been lost, thus will be in the same position as the Rams today of having to start two rookies — Jack Chapple, highly-rated 227-pounder from Stanford and Ed Beard, considered the hardest tackler on the team.

KEY TO THE SHARP DIPROVEMENT of the 49er attack is their new running game.

What little running talent the club has had the past couple of years was hobbled by injuries and as a result, rival clubs were able to stack their defenses against

But things are different now. The 49ers' No. 1 draft choice was North Carolina's fine 230-pound running back, Ken Willard . . . and they got John David Crow in a trade with the Cardinals. They picked up their understudies-Gary Lewis and Dave Kopay—as free agents.

"Boy, it feels good to have those guys around," says Brodie. "It's comforting to look back and see those run-ners and know that the defense no longer can get set for your passes without having to worry about a running

Furthermore, this is a 49er team whose key material is gradually coming to the fore.

IT WAS VINCE LOMBARDI who said that the only way to build a sound team in pro football is with quality draft picks. This is how he was able to mold the downtrodden Green Bay Packers into champions.

The 49ers are following the same format although coach Jack Christiansen warns that the club is still far from being a title contender. "But," he adds, "we and the Rams are on the upgrade and maybe in two or three years we'll be fighting it out for the title rather than Green Bay and Baltimore."

The 49ers have II first-round draft choices on their squad - nine of whom are starters while a 10th fensive back George Donnelly - is expected to gradually work his way into a starting job.

In addition, there are nine other players who were picked on the second and third rounds ... and 28 of the 40-man squad were selected in the top five rounds.

The Rams have first-round draft choices on their squad, including Jack Snow, drafted No. 1 by the Minnesota Vikings last December.

WE WROTE A COLUMN just before the Ram-49er exhibition game in which we pointed out that Brodie was one of the most under-rated quarterbacks in the league, actually was a fine passer.

We got the horselaugh from a lot of people when the 49ers had such a rough afternoon against the Rams. But Brodie came back in the first two games to complete a fantastic 75% of his passes to prove the point. Playing under coach Red Hickey almost ruined

"I was a confused guy," John admits, "and because of that I didn't throw well. Now everything has been simplified by our new coach. Our line blocking has been standardized. Our pass patterns are more simple, which helps the receivers run them better.

"Dave Parks, for instance, has made the biggest improvement in a year that I have ever seen . . . primarily because he runs his patterns exactly this season. He's becoming a great end."

49ers Could Doom Rams to Cellar

Looking at the situation coldly with no sentiment to sway their thinking, pro football men did not think the Rams would make much noise in the NFL's Western Division race this season for a number of

But when they plowed under the San Francisco 49ers, 34-14, in the final exhibition game, it appeared that they had found at least one team they could beat . . . thus, while they might not move up in the standings, they wouldn't finish last.

However, when the 49ers move into the Colisum today, the Rams will be looking at a much different team than they faced a month ago . . . one that might well lock the cellar door on them.

In their exhibition, the 49ers were playing it cozy while laying in the bushes for the following week's league opener with the Chicago Bears.

They threw everything but the kitchen sink-their whole repertoire — at the Bears and slaughtered them, 52-24 . . . leading 45-3 at one stage before "easing

The 49ers then knocked off the Pitt Steelers before losing to the top two teams

But they gained added respect in those losses. They had a shot at beating the Colts in the final two minutes before bowing, 27-24, and were giving Green Bay a whale of a battle before Mike Dowdle — their important defensive leader - was put out of commission in the second quarter. The Packers then went on to win, 27-10.

JACK CHRISTIANSEN

'We're on the Upgrade'

INJURIES PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE in the 49ers' last-place finishes the past two years. No team in pro football suffered so many key injuries. In 1963, even quarterback John Brodie was shelved with a broken arm. The 49ers escaped major injuries through the pre-season games, but have now lost three key defensive men in the last month — Dowdle with a shoulder separation, and linebacker Matt Hazeltine and defensive end Dan

Hazeltine and Colchico were hurt in the opening Bear game, and both have undergone surgery.
With the loss of Hazeltine and Dowdie, two-thirds of the 49ers' rugged linebacking crew has been lost, thus will be in the same position as the Rams today of having to start two rookies — Jack Chapple, highly-rated 227-pounder from Stanford and Ed Beard, considered the hardest tackler on the team.

KEY TO THE SHARP IMPROVEMENT of the 49er attack is their new running game.

What little running talent the club has had the past couple of years was hobbled by injuries and as a result, rival clubs were able to stack their defenses against

But things are different now. The 49ers' No. 1 draft choice was North Carolina's fine 230-pound running back, Ken Willard . . . and they got John David Crow in a trade with the Cardinals. They picked up their understudies-

Gary Lewis and Dave Kopay—as free agents. "Boy, it feels good to have those guys around," says Brodie. "It's comforting to look back and see those run-ners and know that the defense no longer can get set for your passes without having to worry about a running

Furthermore, this is a 49er team whose key material is gradually coming to the fore.

IT WAS VINCE LOMBARDI who said that the only way to build a sound team in pro football is with quality draft picks. This is how he was able to mold the downtrodden Green Bay Packers into champions.

The 49ers are following the same format although coach Jack Christiansen warns that the club is still far from being a title contender. "But," he adds, "we and the Rams are on the upgrade and maybe in two or three years we'll be fighting it out for the title rather than Green Bay

The 49ers have II first-round draft choices on their squad - nine of whom are starters while a 10th - defensive back George Donnelly - is expected to gradual-

In addition, there are nine other players who were picked on the second and third rounds . . . and 28 of the 40-man squad were selected in the top five rounds.

The Rams have first-round draft choices on their squad, including Jack Snow, drafted No. I by the Minnesota Vikings last December.

WE WROTE A COLUMN just before the Ram-49er exhibition game in which we pointed out that Brodie was one of the most under-rated quarterbacks in the league, actually was a fine passer.

We got the horselaugh from a lot of people when the 49ers had such a rough afternoon against the Rams. But Brodie came back in the first two games to complete a fantastic 75% of his passes to prove the point.

Playing under coach Red Hickey almost ruined

"I was a confused guy," John admits, "and because of that I didn't throw well. Now everything has been simplified by our new coach. Our line blocking has been standardized. Our pass patterns are more simple, which helps the receivers run them better.

"Dave Parks, for instance, has made the biggest improvement in a year that I have ever seen . . . primarily because he runs his patterns exactly this season. He's be-kicker later missed a 48yard attempt.

As for the two Mizzou runbacks, Prothro said "any time they run them back that far, the other team has to be helping them. It was a fatigued and our boys thought they'd just let the other guy do it. I hope we Iearned a lesson from that."

The first half was filled with groans from the audience as first-string quarterback Gary Lane, unfresh from a 10-day stay in the infirmary with a virus, completed only one of seven passes (for 12 yards) and the ground game that has maining. been the Mizzou trademark for decades was limited to 59 vards. Mizzou got only 116 yards total rushing.

UCLA's first-half touchdown came on a pass play from Beban to Nelson only seconds after Kurt Zimmerman had missed on a 48yard field goal try.

The Bruins regained possession after Zimmerman's kick when Lane's only completion was fumbled by the receiver and Bob Richardson recovered on the Missouri 35. On third down Beban lofted a pass that Nelson took on the run between two defenders on the goal line, a picture play.

In the previous three minutes of play Nelson had dropped two short passes while in the clear.

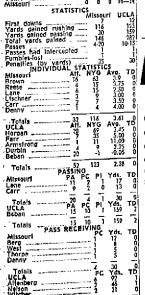

UCLA ran the score to 14-0 in the opening seconds of the fourth period on another 34-yard pass play, this time from Beban to Altenberg. But the credit has to go to Altenberg, for it was a short pass across the middle and Altenberg broke three tackles along the way.

The Bruin TD drive, elned along by a roughing the kicker penalty that had the Missouri crowd and players booing so loud the game was held up five minutes, seemed to ignite the Tigers.

They proceeded to score two touchdowns in the span of 21/2 minutes, getting the first on a 79-yard kickoff runback by halfback Charlie Brown and then on a 65yard punt runback by defensive halfback Johnny converted a superb punt return and a fumble recovery into its touchdowns, Idaho safety man Bill (Scooter) Scott set up the first touchdown of the game. With less than a minute left in the first quarter, the senior speedster gathered in an OSU punt on his own 38 and returned it 39 yards to the Beaver 23.

-Roland. Missouri tried for the two-point conversion after both scores. The first one was short by a yard on an end sweep and the second was a good pass, Roland to end Earl Denny.

Vandal fullback Ray Mc- ldaho .... Denald reeled off one 10yard gain as Idaho drove to the one-yard line in five plays. From there the 248-the Beavers as they took the ensuing kickoff and drove 62 yards in 11 plays to tie the score.

The key play was full-back Pete Pifer's 25-yard gainer. Pifer ended the drive by bucking over from the one.

dians rolled on to the USC 17 where, on 4th-and-4, De-Sylvia came in for the field goal try that was destined to fail. It was all downhill for the Trojans after Garrett exploded a few plays later.

Garrett broke over tackle, reversed his field as he cut back to his left and picked up a convoy of blockers who escorted him to the end zone. Sherman and Winslow threw the final key blocks to clear the way,

THE TROJANS were slow in getting started . . . partially because of the superb kicking of Stanford's Abena. The sophomore punting specialist netted 253 yards on five kicks for a brilliant 50.6 average and kept the Trojans backed up to their goal line most of the first half with two magnificent boots. He kicked one 47 yards to the USC three . . . and moments later, booted one 46 yards that hit a yard in the end zone, then bounced back onto the field of play and finally was ruled dead on the one-foot line! Troy's biggest threat of the first half came halfway through the initial quarter after recovering Handley's fumble of a pitchout on the Stanford 47. However, USC

Fishin' Around for Donnell Culpepper, Who Is in Canada
What may be the biggest fish ever from the Salton Sea-certainly a record for this year and some seasons past—is the prize of Daisy Kadoun, 846 E. San Antonio Drive. She took a corvina that weighed over 23 pounds.

Mrs. Kadoun, who outfished her husband Leonard, made her feat a little more fantastic by hooking this giant in only about 6 feet of water while drift-fishing off Sundial Beach on the western shore of the sea.

The big corvina apparently was cruising inshore to feed on the schools of young sargo and gulf croaker in shallow water when Daisy made her lucky cast. She had a mudsucker on a 3/0 hook, on a two-foot leader of plasticroated wire and 20-pound-test monofilament line on a small reel and light rod.

"I didn't think I'd get him in," she said.
But the fish has been on display at Mike's Tackle Box. Desert Shores, to prove that her modesty was de-

Fishing conditions at the sea, where fall weather turns the desert into near paradise, have been good. There have been lots of good catches of 3-to-8-pound fish, some of them checked in by Long Beach parties.

The best fishing may be at the south end of the sea and at White Water. It's well to pick up some mudsuckers and check with the bait shop that's selling them before you head that way.

Daisy's may be Salton Sea record

LACLARONGE, Sask .- This is the return to one of finest fishing resorts in North America.

The flight was arranged by Butch Cortwright, manager and owner of Butch's Fishing Camps Ltd. Noah Byrd and Jack Bell both Cree Indians were our guides.

AMONG THE WONDERFUL experiences was a fish dinner on shore. We enjoyed Northern pike cooked both in frying pans and on sticks of birth wood. The Indians called the latter method ponass, a method of cooking all wild game, without the use of butter or oil. Lake trout are delightful because they have much natural oil whereas pike do not.

While this dinner was being prepared two whisky jays, birds related to the jay family, were trying to steal us blind. They are impolite birds who have no fears and who try to take everything that you have in the way of These birds, although having no resemblance to the blue jay family, or the California jays will take the food out of your hands even though they have never seen you before. We used all kinds of lures including ruby-eyed and Thompson jigs.

But, it seemed to make no difference to the pikes, they snapped at everything that was thrown into the water. Our largest fish weighed 12½ pounds and the smallest was 6 pounds.

WE HAD A THRILL on the way out. Eddy McIver, who has fun looking for experiences in planes, came in with a twin Beechtraft and buzzed us so close that our guide, Jack Bell, almost went out of his mind. Inasmuch as we had gone into Pipestone in a Norseman V-5 we were not expecting a buzzing from a twin Beechcraft.

Anyhow we have had one of the most exciting fish-Ing trips of all times and are now looking forward to more thrills south of Prince Albert where the weather now layors duck and geese.

By ERNIE MASON

Saturday dawned beautiful and peaceful at Hollywood Park but before the day was over a crowd of 20,069 harness racing fans has been treated to enough thrills to last an entire week, Emerging from all the ex-citement as the biggest noisemaker of them all was Com bat Time, who paced bril-liantly to win the $20,000 Fall Maturity Pace in a swift 1:59-2/5.

Combat Time, whose vic ory was extremely popular since he had been made a solid 6-5 favorite, needed to come up with a superlative performance to outshine the day's earlier activities, which included the season's first sub-two minute mile by Tarport Prince, a blazing display of final-quarter speed by Cardigan Bay and a shocking $94.20 upset by Game Pick.

HOWEVER, in the end the day belonged to Bruce Nickells, who for the second straight Saturday had flown in from Pittsburgh, Pa., to drive Combat Time.

A consistent runner-up to the great Race Time in many of the four-year-old stakes in the East this year, Combat Time's speedy clocking and authority with which he won makes him a key factor for the rich $50,000 American Pacing classic Nov. 6.

Mohammed Gamoudi of Tunisia ran the 5,000 meters
Saturday in 14 minutes, 40.6 seconds, snatching a Little Olympics victory from a race billed as a showdown between World Record holder Ron Clarke of Australia and U.S. Marine Lt. Billy Mills, the Olympic champ at 10 nonly two lengths at Garden State, running the 1½ miles in 1:45-4/5 and paid $5.60, $3 and $2.20. Cordially paid $6.80 and $3.20 for second and Tosmah $2.80 to show, Steeple Jill carried high weight of 123 and it was her seventh win in 13 races this season. the Olympic champ at 10,000 Clarke was second in 14:41.8 and Yuri Turin of Russia third in 14:45.6. Mills was a distant fifth in 15:10.2. Mexico's Juan Martinez was fourth. Gamoudi, Mills and Clarke all indicated they thought Mexico's altitude was responsible for the finishing order. "Any time I run this poorly something has to be wrong," said Mills.

"I trained for 20 days in the downpour of France before coming here and trained at this altitude for another 9,20 eight days," said Gamoudi. 4,60 That made the difference. I Bond, feel just great."

War at Sea Attains Grim Reality in Viet

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

WITH THE SEVENTH FLEET OFF SOUTH VIET NAM (P)—"After every war they write the Navy off, consign it to mothballs and declare it obsolete," the captain said. "So here we are again."

Capt. John E. Kennedy sat in his high-backed leather "throne" on the bridge of the aircraft carrier USS Independence looking down on his three football fields of flight deck lately come alive with minute figures in Mickey Mouse hats and brightly colored sweat-

Night was falling fast on the South China Sea and the afterburners of the Vigilante attack bombers, poised on the steam-hissing catapults, glowed like huge acetylene torches in the gathering gloom.

One hundred and twenty miles out to sea "The Big Eye" was clearing her decks for another night launch, another series of bombing attacks and strafing runs in support of South Vietnamese government troops against Viet Cong positions below the 17th parallel.

Pilots in red glasses moved out of the ready rooms and down the narrow passageways, softly lit with red bulbs, going through the "night adaptation" procedures of getting their eyes accustomed to the dark.

THE TAIL END of a typhoon sweeping toward Japan curled the sea into skittish whitecaps. Destroyers riding the carrier's wake to pick up downed pilots took green waves over their bows, but the Independence plowed stolidly into the wind at 14 knots, barely bowing before the horizon.

Two hours later the planes came back, flight after flight of them. They hit the deck of the floating airport in a shower of sparks and joited to a stop as their tail hooks caught the big rubber band called the arresting gear. Plane directors in yellow sweatshirts urged the big silver birds forward with a wave of their lighted red wands; plane pushers in blue sweatshirts folded the wings and stacked the planes on the bow, only inches apart.

TWO HUNDRED MILES to the north, similar progress reports were being broadcast over the speaker systems of the Midway, the Oriskany, the Bon Homme Richard and the other carriers carrying the war to North Viet Nam through a curtain of heavy antiaircraft fire and under constant threat of the deadly SAM (surface to air missiles).

In this weird war, where major air-ports like Tan Son Shut and Bien Hoa in the Saigon area, Soc Trang and Can Tho in the Mekong Delta, and Da Nang and Na Trang in the north have been hit by mortar fire and crippled by sabotage, where sudden monsoon squalls can shut down flight operations and flip over parked aircraft, carriers float in a virtual sea of safety. 1944.

"We can run away from the weather, move where the targets are and are far less vulnerable to attack or sabotage, unless a P-T boat wants to chance a suicide run past our destroyers," said Rear Adm. James R. Reedy, commander of Task Force 77, which directs all carrier-based air strikes.

FAR OUT to sea in an antiseptic, air conditioned world of crisply starched khakis and hot buttered popcorn every night at the movies and the aroma of freshly baked bread wafting up from the galley, the war at times can seem very far away. But always there are reminders, more shrill than the banshee wail of the jets, more soul shuddering than the thunderous rumble of the catapults.

On the bulletin board of every squadron ready - room little black - bordered cards with a cross and a spray of lilies attest to the accuracy of Viet Cong ackack and an occasional SAM launch:

"At this tragic time, the family of Lt. Cmdr. . . . expresses its sincere gratitude

For the hundreds of Seventh Fleet ships, from swift gunboats and darting destroyers to lumbering oilers and mighty cruisers, the long empty days at sea can drag on with numbing monotony, but the war is never really very far away. The guns of the cruiser Galveston

Destroyers like the USS Newell and the USS Hanson regularly hazard treacherous reefs and rocky coves to run in close to shore and fire their three-inch guns, artillery-style, in support of ground bark, and the forests along the shore explode in fire and smoke.

CASUALTIES have been high among Navy men serving as advisors of Vietnamese RAG (river assault group) boats, the gunboats that deliver troops up the narrow, Viet Cong-infested canals in the Mekong Delta. But much of the Navy's job on the high seas consists of just watching and waiting.

They challenge unidentified ships, passing junks and fishing fleets for caches of ammunition and floating grenade and uniform factories, and keep a constant lookout for supplies being smuggled to the enemy, whether by sampan or cargo freighter.

Perhaps of all its varied operations in Viet Nam, the Navy could scoff loudest at the beckoning mothballs during "operation starlight," when U.S. Marines trapped a regiment of Viet Cong regulars on the Van Tuong Peninsula 12 miles south of Chu Lai, inflicting the heaviest enemy casualties of any American action thus far in the war.

While the cruiser Galveston and a small armada of destroyers paved the way with constant offshore salvos and carrier-based jets rained havoc on enemy positions, Marines stormed ashore from the LSD (landing ship dock) Point Defiance and from the Navy troop carrier USS Talladega. Almost at the same time a battalion landing team of Marines was flown beyond the enemy lines from the belicopter carrier Iwo Jima to launch a rear action that caught the Communists in a deadly pincer. "Vertical envelopment" the tactic is called, a new wrinkle in helicopter warfare that is proving it-

ALL DAY LONG, as the battle moved inland, Navy ships lying off the peninsula launched their landing craft to keep the troops supplied with food, water and ammunition. "Happiness is a full canteen," one of the ships in the harbor blinked out on signal lights, as another call for fresh water came from the Marine C.P. (command post) ashore.

FAC (forward air controller) planes directing the bombing strikes took off from the new airstrip at Chu Lai, built in six days by the Seabees.

Twenty-five-year-old destroyers, fighting a losing battle against rust and already sentenced to be decommissioned, suddenly found themselves in demand as floating artillery and responded with a vigor that belied their antiquity.

New ships got their baptism of fire in an operation that began only as a standby mission. For the first time since it was commissioned five years ago in Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, the decks of the copter carrier Iwo Jima ran red with blood, as the wounded were flown aboard by helicopter and lifted by elevator to her sparkling 40-bed hospital.

Lt. Cmdr. Barney Scott, a surgeon lately graduated from the University of Tennessee Medical School, worked 27 straight hours and couldn't recall when he had ever been that fired. 👍

THAT WAR that had often seemed so very far away now seemed agonizingly close. Lt. (J.G.) Henry Dronsek of Boston, Mass., who as officer of the deck had been watching and listening to the battle from the bridge all day long, turned over the watch and responded to a loudspeaker call for blood donors.

He turned to the young Marine lying next to him in a passageway outside the operating room and knew that the surgeons had just removed both legs.

In a sheltered cove of the South China Sea, Lt. Dronsek left his youth behind.

The war at sea, whether from the smoking deck of a gunboat or the steaming hold of a cargo ship, where deckhands labor 18 hours a day to keep the fleet supplied with ammunition, food and fuel has attained a reality in Viet Nam that no enlistment poster can ever depict. And, perhaps, that no mothballs can keep closeted very long. I fold to

War at Sea Attains Grim Reality in Viet

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

WITH THE SEVENTH FLEET OFF SOUTH VIET NAM (A)-"After every war they write the Navy off, consign it to mothballs and declare it obsolete," the captain said. "So here we are again."

Capt. John E. Kennedy sat in his high-backed leather "throne" on the bridge of the aircraft carrier USS Independence, looking down on his three football fields of flight deck lately come alive with minute figures in Mickey Mouse hats and brightly colored sweat-

Night was falling fast on the South China Sea and the afterburners of the Vigilante attack bombers, poised on the steam-hissing catapults, glowed like huge acetylene torches in the gathering gloom.

One hundred and twenty miles out to "The Big Eye" was clearing her decks for another night launch, another series of bombing attacks and strafing runs in support of South Vietnamese government troops against Viet Cong positions below the 17th parallel.

Pilots in red glasses moved out of the ready rooms and down the narrow passageways, softly lit with red bulbs, going through the "night adaptation" procedures of getting their eyes accustomed to the dark.

THE TAIL END of a typhoon sweeping toward Japan curled the sea into skittish whitecaps. Destroyers riding the carrier's wake to pick up downed pilots took green waves over their bows, but the Independence plowed stolidly into the wind at 14 knots, barely bowing before

Two hours later the planes came back, flight after flight of them. They hit the deck of the floating airport in a shower of sparks and joited to a stop as their tail hooks caught the big rubber band called the arresting gear. Plane directors in yellow sweatshirts urged the big silver birds forward with a wave of their lighted red wands; plane pushers in blue sweatshirts folded the wings and stacked the planes on the bow, only inches apart.

TWO HUNDRED MILES to the north, similar progress reports were being broadcast over the speaker systems of the Midway, the Oriskany, the Bon Homme Richard and the other carriers carrying the war to North Vict Nam through a curtain of heavy antiaircraft fire and under constant threat of the deadly SAM (surface to air missiles).

In this weird war, where major airports like Tan Son Shut and Bien Hoa in the Saigon area, Soc Trang and Can Tho in the Mekong Delta, and Da Nang and Na Trang in the north have been hit by mortar fire and crippled by sabotage, where sudden monsoon squalls can shut down flight operations and flip over parked aircraft, carriers float in a virtual sea of safety.

"We can run away from the weather, move where the targets are and are far less vulnerable to attack or sabniage, unless a P-T boat wants to chance a suicide run past our destroyers," said Rear Adm. James R. Reedy, commander of Task Force 77, which directs all carrier-based air strikes.

FAR OUT to sea in an antiseptic, air conditioned world of crisply starched khakis and hot buttered popcorn every night at the movies and the aroma of freshly baked bread wafting up from the galley, the war at times can seem very far away. But always there are reminders. more shrill than the banshee wail of the jets, more soul shuddering than the thunderous rumble of the catapults.

On the bulletin board of every squadron ready - room little black - bordered cards with a cross and a spray of lilies attest to the accuracy of Viet. Cong ackack and an occasional SAM launch:

"At this tragic time, the family of Lt. Cmdr. . . . expresses its sincere gratitude to the members of Squadron . . . for their kind condolescences . . .

For the hundreds of Seventh Fleet ships, from swift gunboats and darling destroyers to lumbering oilers and mighty cruisers, the long empty days at sea can drag on with numbing monotony, but the war is never really very far away. The guns of the cruiser Galveston bark, and the forests along the shore explode in fire and smoke.

Destroyers like the USS Newell and the USS Hanson regularly hazard treacherous reefs and rucky coves to run in close to shore and fire their three-inch guns, artillery-style, in support of ground

CASUALTIES have been high among Navy men serving as advisors of Vietnamese RAG (river assault group) boats, the gunboats that deliver troops up the narrow, Viet Cong-infested canals in the Mekong Delta. But much of the Navy's job on the high seas consists of just watching and waiting.

They challenge unidentified ships, search passing junks and fishing fleets for caches of ammunition and floating grenade and uniform factories, and keep a constant lookout for supplies being smuggled to the enemy, whether by sampan or cargo freighter.

Perhaps of all its varied operations in Viet Nam, the Navy could scoff loudest at the beckoning mothballs during "operation starlight," when U.S. Marines trapped a regiment of Viet Cong regulars on the Van Tuong Peninsula 12 miles south of Chu Lai, inflicting the heaviest enemy casualties of any American action thus far in the war.

While the cruiser Galveston and a small armada of destroyers paved the way with constant offshore salvos and carrier-based jets rained havoc on enemy positions, Marines stormed ashore from the LSD (landing ship dock) Point Defiance and from the Navy troop carrier USS Talladega. Almost at the same time a battalion landing team of Marines was flown beyond the enemy lines from the helicopter carrier Iwo Jima to launch a rear action that caught the Communists "Vertical envelopin a deadly pincer. ment" the tactic is called, a new wrinkle in helicopter warfare that is proving itself in Vietnam.

ALL DAY LONG, as the battle moved inland, Navy ships lying off the peninsula launched their landing craft to keep the troops supplied with food, water and ammunition. "Happiness is a full canteen," one of the ships in the harbor blinked out on signal lights, as another call for fresh water came from the Marine C.P. (command post) ashore.

recting the bombing strikes took off from the new airstrip at Chu Lai, built in six days by the Seabees,

Twenty-five-year-old destroyers fighting a losing battle against rust and already sentenced to be decommissioned, suddenly found themselves in demand as floating artillery and responded with a vigor that belied their antiquity.

New ships got their baptism of fire in an operation that began only as a standby mission. For the first time since it was commissioned five years ago in Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, the decks of the copter carrier Iwo Jima ran red with blood, as the wounded were flown aboard by helicopter and lifted by elevator to her sparkling 40-bed hospital.

Lt. Cmdr. Barney Scott, a surgeon lately graduated from the University of Tennessee Medical School, worked 27 straight hours and couldn't recall when he had ever been that tired.

THAT WAR that had often seemed so very far away now seemed agonizingly close. Lt. (J.G.) Henry Dronsek of Boston, Mass., who as officer of the deck had been watching and listening to the hattle from the bridge all day long, turned over the watch and responded to a loudspeaker call for blood donors.

He turned to the young Marine lying next to him in a passageway outside the operating room and knew that the surgeons had just removed both legs.

In a sheltered cove of the South China

Sea, Lt. Dronsek left his youth benind. The war at sea, whether from the smoking deck of a gunboat or the steaming hold of a cargo ship, where deckhands labor 18 hours a day to keep the fleet supplied with annunition, food and fuel, has attained a reality in Vict Nam that no enlistment poster can ever depict. And, perhaps, that no mothballs can keep closeted very long.

ON ORDERS of the commission, United Gas Pipe Line is holding fast to $7.7 million of the money until the FPC makes its decision. The other suppliers are holding the remainder.

The commission took the position that Texas Eastern had posed a major policy problem in relation to consumer protection. It said that in the absence of FPC action, any pipeline could use refunds any way it wanted to, even though it already was earning a reasonable rate of return on its invested capital.

It hastened to add that it was not prejudging the case. It said there could be instances where a company might be entitled to keep all or part of supplier refunds.

But, it continued, it does not believe a pipeline "is automatically entitled to keep refunds merely because it didn't match the suppliers' rate hikes with one of its own." Also, it said, failure to file an offsetting rate increase does not necessarily mean a

Royal hideaway: 'Tony's Room'

Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon will be staying at America's finest hotels, in the poshest royal suites, on their visit here in November. One would expect that royal tastes could demand no less.

Yet a scruffy little waterfront room in London's tough East End was for five years a favorite hideaway for the young couple.

William Glenton, their landlord (who also happened to be a newspaperman) tells for the first time of this unbelievable home-away-from-home and life-away-from-protocol in his forthcoming book, "TONY'S ROOM: THE SECRET LOVE STORY OF PRINCESS MARGARET," scheduled to appear on U.S. bookstands Oct. 25.

Here is 'The Room' as it began to shape up under William Glenton's astonished eyes:

"I imagined, simplicity being the theme Tony always

For five years London waterfront reporter William Glenton was guardian of the best-kept secret of the decade. Now he tells his experiences as landlord of a royal hide-away—an account which, because of Palace censorship, will never be published in England.

talked about, that he might have bought some of the charming, clean-lined Scandinavian-type wooden chairs and tables that seemed highly appropriate and would match the long, planked cupboard wall.

"When he arrived in his car with the first of several loads of fittings, I thought he must have raided the Victoria and Albert Museum, or more likely, its repair rooms.

"It was one of the strangest loads of old jurk and bric-a-brac I have ever seen. Tony's idea of simplicity was based on a dream of Victoriana—only this lot looked more a nightmare. Piled on top of boxes of peculiar china ornaments were a golden cage containing three stuffed lovebirds, a glass display cabinet with more lovebirds inside, a chiming wall clock, a stand carved in the shape of a Nubian page boy and a large ornate mirror.

That was all I could discern at first glance, but as he tenderly unloaded these scourings from a score of secondhand shops, I got a further look at a strange assortment of china and metal ornaments—including a pair of china cows; a miniature brass catafalque; a wooden box shaped like a book; a plate painted with the faces of a saint and a sinner, which changed from one to the other when turned upside down; a French-made locket with a few strands of human hair inside.

"THIS SELECTION was arranged on the open shelves of an old wooden corner cupboard, so tall that it just fitted under the ceiling. Even so, it was not big enough to take all the bric-a-brac, and Tony had to erect more shelves on one of the walls.

On these he placed a small bird cage fitted with a musical box; a china bowl filled with dusty wax flowers: a big china globe covered with the stenciled flags, crests and soldiers of many nations, and a large selection of Victorian glasses, plates, vases and carved ivory.

"With what seemed a concession to The Room's nautical situation, he added a sailing ship in a bottle and a large primitively painted representation of Grace Darling rowing to the rescue of shipwrecked sailors.

"Tony also toyed with the idea of buying a ship's wheel for The Room, but decided that this would be too chichi. He did, however, because it could be practical as well, buy a hammock. It was not the seaman's type made from canvas but the garden, fishnet variety.

"For the other, more stable furnishings he had bought a less ornate but quite varied collection—including a half-rocker with basketwork back; a small upright chair inlaid with mother of pearl; a brassbound wooden chest for use as a wine locker; a round, well-scrubbed deal table, a bit shaky on its legs, and two basket chairs of the kind found in old-fashioned conservatories.

"All this succeeded in filling The Room but did not make it look particularly livable.

Time and the erosion of human progress—man's need for more and more space to live and play—have taken their toll on what once was California's heritage of vast land grants and sprawling ranchos. And so it is with Bixby Ranch on East Seventh Street.
Known in the early days as Rancho Los Alamitos, it then encompassed 28,000 acres.
Today's ranch has dwindled to 100 acres of rolling countryside. By next year, only the house and seven acres of open land will remain. To relive a moment of history before the building boom begins, Women's Architectural League will sponsor a tour of the ranch next Sunday. For story, see Page W-6.

According to a local psychologist (he claims to have given the matter considerable study), there's much more to a well-turned ankle or leg than meets the eye. In fact, there's a direct connection, he observes, between certain basic personality traits and the way legs are crossed, draped, stretched or wrapped. To illustrate, we've pictured some of these "character-revealing aspects" which our scientific leg-watcher says his research has revealed. # 'Sad, glad-funny, too!

By Iola Masterson 34775. I, P-T Society Editor

SAD, BUT TRUE. When Independent Insurance Agents of Long Beach host their gang's 58th annual state convention, beginning next Sunday, they'll be hosting it in old Smogdhad-by-the-On-and-Off-Ramp, Los Angeles. That's because we just don't have enough centrally located hotel accommodations for the crowd of some 2,000 expected.

Wives of LB Agents, who have never been known to stuff a ballot box, are caught (photo right) stuffing convention folders with every bit of Long Beach mem-orabilia they can. Whenever the wives gather, during specially planned events for women only or for delegates and wives together, the word is out from general chairman Bill Wilson and Frances (Mrs. Cecil) Fulcher, in charge of women's activities, "You may be in LA. but brag it up for Long Beach!" Be assured, they will GUESS YOU could expect this of a Phi Beta Kappa. Lois (Mrs. Odie) Wright, the perky smarty, is getting a straight A in a course in recuperation after delicate heart surgery, undergone Oct. 4. She'll be home from the hospital, Odie thinks, by about next Friday. But no company until you get the green light. Of course, mail is always welcome-so write right now in care of their home and our school superintendent-turned-mailman will give it the personal special delivery rush to olis.

Peek's squeak's back

FUNNY THING happened at the bowling alley the other night. One of Kenny Wing Jr.'s Kiwanis bowling teammates hailed him with "Hey, squeaky!" Slightly abashed, Kenny was quick to explain that he couldn't understand it, but that his favorite shoes had been squeaking like crazy all week.

A puckish light of understanding dawned on Mott Peek's face, anoher teammate, "That's funny," he said. This week's been the first time in ages my favorite shoes HAVEN'T squeaked."

Seems the week before the two men, in changing back to regular shoes from bowling shoes, had inadvertently switched their identical black Florsheims and, except for the squeak, hadn't noticed any difference. Ken wears an 111/2E, Mott a 12D.

Needless to say, Mott is again the squeaker and Kenny walks as silently as an Indian stalking his prey.

It's the Carolyn way to go

NOTORIOUS for not wanting to dawdle over shopping chores is Carolyn (Mrs. Larry Jr.) McDoweil. But this time she outdid herself. Currently living in a rented apartment on the peninsula, Larry said to Carolyn: "Why don't you go house-hunting?"

Not only dutiful, but quick, she did—that very same day—and bought (with Larry's approval) a house at 292 Corona Ave. They'll move in, hopefully, about mid-November.

LEADING OFF big swing of pre-wedding parties for Pauline Neal (magic date is Oct. 29, when she be-comes bride of young Dan Dunlap) was affair given by Marlene (Mrs. Dean) O'Hare, the matron of honor-tobe: an evening dessert, coffee and linen shower.

"B" (Mrs. John) Hancock had a dinner and miscellaneous shower for Pauline at her home. To avoid the feminine rush (there were 25 women at dinner) John ducked out and went duck hunting in Utah. Next Tuesday, Mildred Wing is cooking up a kitchen shower for 25 guests.

There are more, but that's a pretty sturdy indication of the party plot.

SOME OF the happiest, certainly the brightest, smiles in town were much in evidence at Petroleum Club when Dental Assistants of the Harbor Area had its annual dinner dance benefit for members, guests and bosses (see photo, left).

After cocktails and dinner, it was time to dance. The lively crowd did everything from the Bunny Hop to the Freddie. Understand it was Dave and Dellene Story, guests of Fred and Terry Hawkins, who started the Freddie—soon had everyone doing it.

Dr. Gerald Felando won the $25 money tree door award and wife, Sonna, promised to tend it. She did. Pruned every branch bare-what wife wouldn't? Anyhow, lots of gaiety and a tidy sum realized to go into assistants' scholarship funds.

WILD WAVES SAY

Sad, glad-funny, too!

By Iola Masterson I, P-T Society Editor

SAD, BUT TRUE. When Independent Insurance Agents of Long Beach host their gang's 58th annual state convention, beginning next Sunday, they'll be hosting it in old Smogdhad-by-the-On-and-Off-Ramp, Los Angeles. That's because we just don't have enough centrally located hotel accommodations for the crowd of some 2,000 expected.

Wives of LB Agents, who have never been known to stuff a ballot box, are caught (photo right) stuffing convention folders with every bit of Long Beach memorabilia they can. Whenever the wives gather, during specially planned events for women only or for delegates and wives together, the word is out from general chairman Bill Wilson and Frances (Mrs. Cecil) Fulcher, in charge of women's activities, "You may be in LA, but brag it up for Long Beach!" Be assured, they will.

GUESS YOU could expect this of a Phi Beta Kappa. Lois (Mrs. Odic) Wright, the perky smarty, is get-ting a straight A in a course in recuperation after delicate heart surgery, undergone Oct. 4. She'll be home from the hospital, Odie thinks, by about next Friday. But no company until you get the green light. Of course, mail is always welcome-so write right now in care of their home and our school superintendentturned-mailman will give it the personal special delivery rush to oLis.

formal in that funny, little room'

became the secret royal rendezvous.

"Tony might have been overexuberant about the charm of The Room, but Margaret's first impression, as I found out later, was indeed a very happy one.

That may have been due to its cory intimacy, but it certainly must have made her feel much closer to him as well, for everything about The Room was a definite expression of his tastes—and a much truer expression than the more showy examples at his studio.

"It was quite enough to make her happy to shed her chaperones along with her natural worries about the outcome of the romance and to enjoy, as I have described, a normal equality of courtship, with Tony feeling at ease in his own surroundings.

The house reminded them that theirs was not the fairy-tale existence that some people liked to think they had—even if the proof was only in the plumbing at No. 59—the cold tap marked hot, and vice versa, or the dampening effect of my dirty water suddenly gushing through the overflow into their cupboards.

And it certainly had taught Margaret a lot more about life outside the palace walls than she had gleaned before she came, an excitedly nervous woman enjoying for probably the first time in her 23 years the simple kind of romantic pleasure that far younger girls take for granted.

"For the first time she saw the deeper kind of luxury in being able to lounge about without a solitary thought for what anyone felt, be they hosts, guests, or servants, knowing that it was quite pointless to be formal in that funny Room with its white stone walls.

"As she put it: 'I really can put my feet up when I come down here."

AFTER THE MARRIAGE Glenton had hoped that the love nest would be abandoned and the burden of his secret world be lifted.

"How could I politely let them know I did not want any more fuss, without them thinking that it was they that were the nuisance? If they could come down without attracting massive attention, I would be happy, but were they going to continue taking the risk?

"Luckily, Margaret gave me a chance to find out by saying, "I think this is one of the sweetest rooms I know. It's made us so happy."

Cautiously, I suggested they must be unhappy to have to give it up now they were married. Their reaction was so great that I was left in no doubt about their intentions. 'But you must let us go on using it,' begged Tony, and Margaret's, 'You must,' was equally emphatic."

Toward the end of 1963, the London County Council began razing waterfront property. Marked for demolition was No. 59 Rotherbithe Street.

Glenton records the despair that Margaret and Tony felt in Iosing their hideaway. As Tony said: "There'll never be anywhere quite like, or as simply terrific, as this for me—ever again. I don't know how I'm going to live without it."

On the eve of their departure they carefully wrapped and packed The Room's possessions. The only article that Princess Margaret refused to take along was the old, worn divan mattress.

Unwilling to leave behind a single trace of their occupancy, Margaret and Tony cautiously launched it out of the window and into the Thames, bringing to a close five years of secret romance in Tony's Room.

NEXT SUNDAY: "The swinging princess"—Margaret's private vaudeville act revealed in new book.

HISTORIC BIXBY RANCH WAS A

Last year's tour of Bixby Ranch (it was the first time it had been opened to the public) resulted in a fusion of yesterday and tomorrow. WAL donated proceeds to the Chamber of Commerce women's division for publication of a brochuse, "Choice," which has been included in President Johnson's packet on civic beautification currently being distributed to civic leaders throughout the nation.

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN

So great was public response to the Women's Architectural League-sponsored tour of Bixby Ranch last year, the league again has arranged with the Bixby family for the public to visit the historic landmark.

From 1 to 5 p.m. next Sunday, visitors will be invited to browse through the 19-room ranch house with its three-foot walls of adobe; visit the now-deserted stables and barns; or stroll through the many colorful gardens to renew the romance of California's early history.

Members of WAL, headed by Mrs. Edwin Ripperdan, president, will be strategically stationed in each of the rooms and throughout the grounds to answer visitors' questions and to share the area's history.

Added this year are two period wedding gowns worn by Bixby brides of yesteryear displayed on mannequins in the living room.

Schools throughout the area have been notified of the tour, and youngsters are sure to be as fascinated by the ranch's many nooks and crannies as were youngsters of WAL members on a preview tour.

ALL PROCEEDS from tickets, nominally priced at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, will go toward the WAL scholarship program for architectural students at USC. They may be obtained at the ranch.

Visitors are advised that the Anaheim Road entrance to the rancho is closed. Access to the grounds will be off Seventh Street, immediately east of Long Beach State College, where there will be adequate

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN

So great was public response to the Women's Architectural League-sponsored tour of Bixby Ranch last year, the league again has arranged with the Bixby family for the public to visit the historic landmark.

From 1 to 5 p.m. next Sunday, visitors will be invited to browse through the 19-room ranch house with its three-foot walls of adobe; visit the now-deserted stables and barns; or stroll through the many colorful gardens to renew the romance of California's early history.

dan, president, will be strategically stationed in each of the rooms and throughout the grounds to answer visitors' questions and to share the area's history. Added this year are two period wedding gowns worn by Bixby brides of yesteryear displayed on mannequins in the living room. Schools throughout the area have been notified of the tour, and youngsters are sure to be as fascinated by the ranch's many nooks and crannies as were youngsters of WAL members on a preview tour.

ALL PROCEEDS from tickets, nominally priced at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, will go toward the WAL scholarship program for architectural students at USC. They may be obtained at the ranch.

Visitors are advised that the Anaheim Road entrance to the rancho is closed. Access to the grounds will be off Seventh Street, immediately east of Long Beach State College, where there will be adequate parking.

GATES ARE FOR looking behind, finds Richard Grossgolds of Long Beach, on ranch tour.

I. P-T Food Editor

From the picture, you'd think he was sitting in judgment of spices, rather than on the Municipal Court Bench. He knows a great deal about both, you may be sure.

Today's Chef of the Week, Robert A. Wenke, a Long Beach attorney and former legislative assistant to Republican Sen. Thomas Kuchel, was appointed to the L. B. Municipal Court bench on Aug. 6. He succeeded Judge Max Wisot, who had been elevated to the Superior Court.

In making the announcement from Sacramento, Gov. Brown praised Wenke as "one of the truly outstanding practicing attorneys in Long Beach."

In 1956 he was elected to the Republican County Central Committee, and in 1959 he went to Washington as Kuchel's assistant. (Kuchel is also a Chef of the Week.)

Born in Stanton, Neb., Wenke attended the same high school as did our own Burton Chace, chairman of the Board of Supervisors. He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Nebraska with a degree in law

Nebraska U. actually provided him with more than a law degree. It was there he met his wife, the former Suzanne Samuelson of Long Beach. It was the persuasion of his bride and her dad, Atty. C. R. Samuelson, which brought the Wenkes to Long Beach in 1951. They have two children, Cindy, 13, and Tom, 8.

A MEMBER of the American, California and Long Beach Bar Associations, Wenke is currently a member of the board of governors of the Long Beach Bar. Chairman of the Eagle Scouls Board of Review, he serves on the board of directors of the Downtown YMCA, the Travelers' Aid and the Boys' Club. He belongs to the Downtown Because "one thing led to another," lyric soprano Carol Taylor Todd of Long Beach is now playing a featured role in "The King and I" at Anaheim's Melodyland Theater.

Established in opera, Miss Todd is in her first light opera—and finds it interesting.

"It's a new experience, and I love it," she enthused.

There have been many new experiences for her since the days of Long Beach Poly High, where she did her share of school theatricals, singing-and rooting

Travel potpourri:

While abroad, Americans are wheelers and dealers, generally speaking. First-time travelers, from the VIP to the meek little spinster schoolmarm, figure things work out best on the velvet carpet. Repeat gadders, recalling their first trips with pleasure, continue to swing and sing . . .

visit two Japanese families as a guest for two or three days. Could you possibly suggest a gift that I can bring from the States?"

DIFFICULT, because Japan has all the gadgets. I usually take a record of a late Broadway musical to friends overseas. It packs flat and is lightweight.

Or-Japanese are big on gardens. Could your local nurseryman suggest some of our native flowers? You could take the seeds. (Tokyo climate is about like Washington, D.C. Humid cold mers.) We are asked if we are carrying seeds when we come back through Honolulu - some aren't permitted. But I've never been asked entering Japan.

Or-a book with colored nictures of American scenes. (But no pictures for framing. They don't fit the decor of Japanese houses.)
Gifts must be gift-

wrapped — gift-giving is quite a ritual. The receiver doesn't open the gift in front of you. And usually he goes right out and buys YOU a gift.

Don't give handkerchiefs. except for farewell gifts. (Handkerchiefs are for weeping.) No gifts in sets of four—the word "four" also means "death." Nothing in sets of nine-"nine" is also "pain." ### Autobahn just grows and grows

Germany's autobahn su perhighway system, which now extends 2,000 miles, will be lengthened to 3.125 miles by 1975. Some 625 miles have been added in the last four years, according to the German Tourist Office.

The German system is the ongest in Europe: Italy follows with 937 miles. There are no tolk levied on the roads, which are paid for by gasoline and general taxes. When completed, the network will have cost about $10 billion. Approximately 2% of the country's gross national product is invested in the expressway each year.

Restaurants and filling stations are becoming more common along the routes, and the German government spent almost $9 million to construct and maintain them in 1963. One of the most scenic

"While in Tokyo, I will been taking foreigners visit two Japanese families as a guest for two or three days. Could you possibly suggest a gift that I can bring from the States?"

DIFFICULT, because Japan has all the gadgets. I usually take a record of a late Broadway musical to friends overseas. It packs flat and is lightweight, wrapped - gift-giving is quite a ritual. The receiver doesn't open the gift in front of you. And usually he goes right out and buys YOU a gift.

Or-Japanese are big on gardens. Could your local nurseryman suggest some of our native flowers? You could take the seeds. (Tokyo climate is about like Washington, D.C. Humid cold are carrying seeds when we come back through Honolulu some aren't permitted. But I've never been asked entering Japan.

Don't give handkerchiefs, except for farewell gifts. (Handkerchiefs are for weeping.) No gifts in sets of four-the word "four" also means "death." Nothing in sets of nine—"nine" is also "pain." The Japanese aren't any more superstiit's more polite this way. And politeness is VERY important.

"We are looking for a with as many stops as possible in the West Indies. . . ."

PAN AMERICAN runs an island-hopper I was on a few years ago. Gets in just about everything in the Leeward and Windward islands. What they don't get, they'll arrange by transfers to British West Indies Airways. Stopovers as long as you like at carts or arrange for canoe no extra cost.

TURN THEIR HAND TO CONTROLLING CRIME ... DISPOSING OF SMOG ... AND UNCLOGGING FREEWAYS.

By LARRY LYNCH

The same human and mehanical brains that launch our astronauts into space are aiming to help us solve the problems of livieg on this planet: crime, smog, transportation and communication.

Already California's space scientists and their computers have made an initial probe into these four areas.

IF FINANCED to go ahead scientists and technical men might be heavily committed to the job of making life here tolerable in 50 years. Many of these people live and work in the Long Beach area. They can turn ideas into working equipment like underground pipelines to deliver farm produce to Long Beath markets in a matter of hours.

"The idea of transferring talented systems engineers from the field of space hardware to the broader field of human need is, in itself, a breakthrough of significant proportion," notes Gov. Brown, whose office has begun to make this proposal a reality. "The talent has been there for some time. It just took us awhile to see its tremendous potential."

ABOUT THE FIRST of the year the Governor asked Southern California's serospace companies to use their systems engineers to study problems closer to home. Fifty-one study proposals came back. From these the Governor's office selected four to go ahead under initial $100,000 study contracts.

Space-General Corp., a subsidiary of Aerojet-General Corp., began to delve into the prevention and control of crime.

What the companies came up with—in brief and by example—in the initial probes was this:

CRIME: Fourteen days after the frightening Friday 13 of the Watts Riots, Space General reported the crime-inducing burdens of low income, school dropouts and dense population weigh more heavily on Watts than on any other section of Los Angeles.

The report called for "initiation of feedback to judges on the results of their decisions in order to progressively sharpen those decisions . . (because) Judges now operate with little or no data on the results of their court decisions with respect to individual offenders.

New equipment that would employ "voice prints" rather than fingerprints, the company pointed out, would speed up police

Space-General said it could design a complete system to help control crime for $122 million over five years.

WASTE DISPOSAL: "In 25 years, the direct cost to California taxpayers for the job of getting rid of waste, with present techniques, will triple to reach nearly $1 billion annually, and still would result in a worse environment than we live in today," Aerojet-General concluded. "Adding indirect costs in the form of pollution damage to crops, industry, tourism, etc., will shoot the yearly cost to more than $7 billion. "The systems approach, the management tool developed in the aerospace industry to identify, solve and manage complex space and weapons programs, can be applied in making overall waste management more efficient and-in the long run-cheaper." TRANSPORTATION: Within 50 years the demands in California for moving people and commodities may increase 500% to 700%. To handle a population that will occupy 71% of the land North American suggests a number of systems:

Trains gliding through tubes at the speeds of todays' jetliners; electronic freeways automatically guiding and spacing individual vehicles which do not emit noxious gases; underground tubes to carry farm products to the cities; aircraft that rise vertically from tops of buildings and move forward at 400 miles an hour; ships that fly above the waves; and trucks that ride a cushion of air on guide ways between cities and then change to slowrolling wheels on city streets.

COMMUNICATION: Lockheed Aircraft Corp. says all government agencies' computers should be tied together to "talk" to each other, making information collected by one agency instantly available to any other agency. The system to put this into operation would cost $100 million over 10 years but at the end of that time would save $4 to $5 million annually, the company said, "When we talk about the cost of putting these ideas into operation we're talking about money that will have to be spent anyway. explains Burby, the Governor's press secre-

Bullock's Lakewood store last week was presented the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce "city-beautiful" award. Donald Weist, general store superintendent, standing second from right in group of executives in front of the store's upper level, accepted the honor at a Wednesday luncheon. The latest edition to the chain is an impressive split-level plan with 270,000 square feet of selling space on four levels. With Weist are (from left) Phil Stein, divisional administrator of collegian and children's wear; Bruce Pusch, home store divisional administrator; and Wes Lloyd, divisional administrator of women's ready-to-wear accessories and the men's store.

As a teenager, she's in a position occupied by few? She has gone to school here and abroad.

A native of Brussels, Belgium, she returned to that ountry in 1961 to spend a year with an aunt.

It was a year that, of course, included going to school. "It's no secret that school over there is much stricter and more difficult." said Diane.

Her subjects at a public school, non-coeducational, included Latin, Dutch, French, algebra, geometry, music and art "and 10 hours of homework every day." .

She was, at the time, 13 years old,

Over there, when you are 12 or 13 years old, you have to seriously decide what you're going to do with your life. You must determine whether you want to go to a technical school or plan on attending college. You can't reverse your decision."

DIFFICULT SUBJECTS and strict supervision, however, don't necessarily add up on the plus side of the school ledger, according to Diane.

"Over here we have less difficult subjects, but more creative thinking," she said.

"As far as I'm concerned, that's the most important

Peter Falk Pleads Case

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Peter Falk says he is, too, kempt, and he's also couth

"I got a barber I pay $25 a pop to cut my hair," Peter snorted a recent night in Sandi's

"I got 15 suits, custom-made, hand tailored, $175 apiece, 15 of em. I got a personal man changes my shirt four times a day and my pocket handkerchief twice a day. You sweat a lot, you know, in television. Chinese coolies never worked this hard, Aryway, if I got a personal man, can I be unkempt?"

Peter was railing back at the American Bar Assn. committee that has protested that the criminal lowver he plays in "Trials of O'Brien" on TV is unkempt, lazy, disorganized, divorced and a gambler... and therefore a blot on the bar.

"I know some lawyers, maybe 15, Peter said, scowling at the table cloth. "As for gambling, I got a lot of money. It would be profitable if I could get a dime for every lawyer that's gonna be at a race track next week.

"And they're all good lawyers . . . they just happen to gamble a little."

"BUT, PETER, you're not taking their protest seriously?' I was turning the interrogating lawyer for a moment.

"You got to," he soomled through his cigaret smales "Lawyers may have influence with the networks."

"Are they really hothering you...how "

"Don't press me, now Earl, don't press me!"

Peter resumed the defense's defense. "You know there've been some pretty good lawyers that drank. And Clarence Dorrow and Abe Lincoln never and any medals for sartonal splendor."

The names of Rill Fallon, Dudley Field Malone, Malvin Belli and others were mentioned. "Colorful mira... individuals," Fallo colid. "None of em endeared themselves to the bar association."

Peter said he feels that the character he plays is sort of a colorful but dedicated rascal who "is in how with life... every minute of it... he thinks anythme worth doing is worth overdoing."

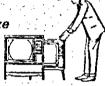

"I wish the lawyers would loosen their ties, take off their shoes, and relax. They should realize this is a comedy...it's entertainment."

AMERICA'S CRISES Show expands to 90 min-utes at 8:40 p.m., ch. 28, for a probe of how problems within a family are solved by family therapy. Dr. Na-than Ackerman, one of the first exponents of the sys-tem, is interviewed, and we suburban family, filmed behind one-way glass in actual sessions.

PERRY COMO -- Ex-TW3 girl Nancy Ames is sole guest for a backward musical journey down 30 years to the "Kraft Music Hall" of radio days by Crosby and Jolson. The two singers team for a medley of 1935 tunes, followed by songs from the 40s, 50s and 60s. No longer on the road, Como's 7 musical hours this season will be colorcast, at 9 p.m., ch. 4, with the next one, Nov. 22, featuring Gertrude Berg, Bobby Vinton and the Lennon Sisters.

STEVE LAWRENCE-Tennessee's Governor Frank Clement joins in a salute to Nashhville as the country music center of the world during a postponed hour at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Country music stars parade up Broadway to CBS' 53rd Street studio riding horses, wagons, mule trains and kindred indigenous conveyances, with guests including Eddy Arnold, Minnie Pearl, Johnny Cash, Boots Rand-olph, Grandpa Jones, the Jordanaires, the Tennessee Cut-Ups and the Stony Mountain Cloggers. (See also Friday's "Jimmy Dean" box.)

We are interested in some information concerning Oct. 5 segment of "The Fugitive." Could you tell us where the country scenes were filmed?

They resemble our locality. Gary Troost, Dairy Valley

They were of your locality. Another Fugitive drama, "Once A Thief," will include more Dairy Valley scenes. Air date has not yet been set. * * * *

Would you please confirm for me some rumors about "Peyton Place?"

The first is that Rita Jacks and Connie Carson are either going to become pregnant or already are.

The second is that the P-TA is fighting to take it off the air. I don't know what makes them think they have the right to deny the public what they want to watch.

Chrys Stone, Long Reach

There will be a video pregnancy on "Peyton Place" soon. 20th Century-Fox does not yet want to disclose who will be the expectant mother.

As far as the P-TA is concerned, the studio says there has been no concerted, unified effort that they know of where the national organization has 🥯 Pan and Fan Mail 🐃 spoken against "Peyton Place," A few chapters, on their own, have voiced disapproval.

Personally, 1 defend their right to disapprove or approve. Any organization, any individual, in-cluding all members of the public, have a right to voice their opinions-even about television.

Is it possible to write to try and get Red Rowe back on his Panorama Pacific Show?

He and his gang always started our day off to a good start. We watched his new show on channel 11 and it was good, but still not the old Red Rowe.

BARBRA'S UNDERSTUDY

Shadow' on Her

OME 10 P. M. THURSDAY, channel 4, "The Dean Martin Show," and Lainie Kazan is going to:
"Spread my wings a little wider and fly a little higher

OD DOY OWIL

Not literally. Lainie is a singer, not a sparrow.

As a singer, Dino thought so highly of her that he's arranged for her to guest on two more of his shows. There's also a "Danny Kaye Show" in the offing.

All of which, Lainie will explain to you, is great for eliminating "the psychological problems of living in the shadow of a talented lady."

The "talented lady" is Barbra Streisand Lainie was her understudy in the New York stage production of "Funny Girl," a musical about Fanny Brice.

"And I developed an ulcer."
Originally hired for a minor role in the musical, the part was cut and Lainie, a high school classmate of Barbra, was assigned the understudy task.

"I was mis-cast," said Lainie.

"You need to have a certain kind of temperament to be an understudy. You need to accept the idea that it's just a job. All you're doing is going to work and getting a salary. Just be happy that you're working."

THAT WASN'T HER attitude. She'd stand backstage biting her fingernails. And she'd be thinking:
"Why isn't it me? Why can't I be there?"

Then one day, just like a B-movie, the star became ill and the understudy went on.

Lainie, herself, on her own, "was there."

Not as a mimic of Barbra Straisand. Not conforming. "I've been a rebel from the day I was born."

And the critics praised the rebel.

A national magazine said:

There was a part there, not just songs. Continuity and growth. Maturity."

Shortly afterwards, Lainie and "Funny Girl" mutually agreed to part company

"It's no secret that Barbra and I weren't getting along," said Lainie.

IT WAS THE RIGHT time to part company. For the only thing that could happen would be that the understudy might repeat her victory if the star ever was ill again.

And it really wouldn't be another victory.

What Lainie had waited for had happened, Now it was time to fly on her own.

"I'm thankful for the doors that were opened to me because I was an understudy," she said.

"But I will never, never do it again. I hate it. I am me and nobody else. I have something to say and I want to say it my way."

LAINIE KAZAN ... Sings With Dino

Currently, she's generally unknown to the Southern California viewing public.

"But they will know me," she said, "I'm going to walk the ladder to the top-barefoot because I hate shoes.

Something besides the shoes will be missing in that climb to the top. Lainie's ulcer is healed. It departed with the end of the understudy role.

Program: "The Andy Williams Show," aired last Monday on channel 4.

Andy Williams accidentally slipped off his stool in mid-show-one of those hopeful portents we've been looking for.

NBC's weekly "Andy Williams Show" is taped, usually several weeks before we see it on our screens. It would have been fairly easy to have re-taped the sequence with guest Bob Hope in which Andy lost his balance and dropped momentarily out of sight. They did not choose to re-tape, however.

We've been watching singers and guest stars climb up on high stools at least once per variety show ever since Dave Garroway—may be be forgiven—started the

A pair of high stools, set in stage center, has come to mean that it is time for the star and his guest to engage in some informal, carefully written and well rehearsed persiflage leading up to a song. Maybe Andy's minor mishap will persuade him to drop the weekly bit.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: "The Great Love Affair" (about automobiles), aired last Tuesday on channel 2.

The one-hour special was constructed for human pleasure and the shared experiences of millions, not for deep-think consideration. The script was written by Andrew Rooney and Richard Ellison, and it was a wise and witty and incisive and even loving piece of American experience as they treated it.

Narrated expertly by Harry Reasoner, the program chose to pass over the often-reported problems of the Imaginative — that's how we like to think of today's cover illustration by Staff Artist Clem Gandara—a handful of aces in home improvement as Southland presents its annual Fall Fix-Up and Garden Edition. Getting ready for fall and winter in Southern California doesn't mean shutters, storm doors and storing of garden tools. The imaginative homeowner is out with aces—

the aces of paint pots and handsful of seeds, some bulbs, perhaps, and some cans of plants from the nursery. Not only can winter be made cheerful, but the garden can be made ready for a blaze of beauty come spring. To help you stir up the imagination—get plans

A whole new galaxy of research submarines is under development in the U. S. and some of the developments would have delighted the heart of Capt. Nemo. Strange vehicles are building and diving into the deeps as man tries to find out more about the mysterious world of the waters. A look at what's going on will be given next week in Southland's "New Breed of Subs," by Lou Jobst.

UNDREDS of practical ideas are being incorporated into new and remodeled homes these days. And not a few of them add beauty. For instance, the Warren Merrills enhanced the beauty of their stairway (right) by carpeting to match rooms below, adding a chandelier hung by a heavy chain, and a mural which carries out the design of the chandelier.

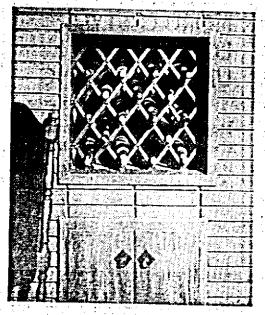

-STELLA GEORGE

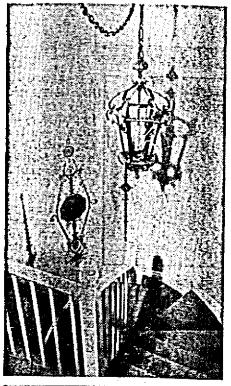

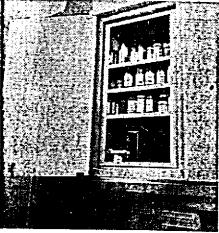

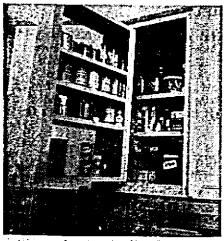

The Allan Zipperts utilized a recessed area in their dining room, probably intended for TV or barbecue, for a wine cellar (below) to conform to the formal styling they desired.

When Lowell Smith designed a new kitchen in the Sydney Willner home, he set a swiveled spice shell into a cabinet above the center island stove, an arrangement that increases storage, creates convenience.

It usually isn't fatal, just a drawn-out illness, but the results are worth it!

Bite of the Fix-Up Bug

By EV HOSKING

The OF THE fall fix-up bug isn't usually fatal—but it sometimes results in a long drawn-out "illness."

The side effects aren't too bad.

Usually the only symptoms evident are sore muscles and a few blisters here and there.

Ben Zinser, the I, P-T's medical writer and expert on the subject, insists that the only satisfactory cure is a pat on the back from the ever-lovin', and more work—plenty of it.

The most favored approach to the work cure is to take a long careful look at the house while it is still too warm and lazy to do any real work.

THEN COMES a period of planning—a search for ideas—and probably a contractor if the project is a major one.

Prior to starting any major construction projects, however, it might be a good idea to check any fall maintenance that might be necessary.

Gutters and downspouts are a good place to start. Clean them of all leaves, dirt and debris. If rusty inside, they should be painted. Check for low spots, improper pitch and any loose mails.

Check the roof for broken, damaged or loose shingles. Check the television guy wires and roof mounting where twisting might cause a leak.

CHECK THE HOUSE for its paint requirements. Fall is a good time to paint, whether it is a spot repair of defective areas, trim or a complete job.

Check your furnace—or have it checked. Now is the time—today's heat will be mighty cold tomorrow.

If your window air conditioner is to be left in, put a weatherproof cover on it to prevent air leakage and to protect the unit.

Concrete driveways should be checked and cracks repaired.

Good weather stripping in top condition is necessary during the winter. Check all rubber or felt stripping for deterioration and replace where necessary. Metal stripping should be checked for dents, bends and breaks and replaced where necessary.

Take those old, sticky drawers and replace them. Use ball-bearing runners. A variety of types of ball bearing, nylon runner drawer fixtures are available.

You can plan the big jobs while you are doing the routine work—it helps to pass the time.

KICK AROUND the idea of enclosing that open porch.

It isn't such a tough job with modern materials.

Converting the porch to a family room establishes a living center for full year-around use—and still, during the summer, outdoors is just a step away. A separate electric heating unit will help warm the room, or a duct from the forced air heating system can be added reasonably.

Conversion of the garage or carport into a family room is another angle. Usually it can be done simply. Paneling, cork tile, and burlap are excellent for walls. In the case of a carport, used brick makes a fine wall. Paneled or acoustical tile ceilings are good for this type of project. Lazy, comfortable furniture adds a lot. Floor-to-ceiling bookcases can provide a lot of book space and contribute a lot to the looks of the room. They are very easily constructed.

HOW ABOUT brilding some cabinets on one side of a double door opening? Remove unwanted door, build a frame, cover the back with plywood, mount adjustable shelf brackets, add glass shelves and moldings and the job is done.

There are a million and one things to do on a cool fall day around the kids' room. Build bunk beds, bookcases, built-ins, a bunk with toy storage and drawer space in the base.
Sunday, October 17, 1955

Redoing the interior walls is an interesting project. Synthetic coverings such as vinyl fabric make ideal ways to conceal old, cracked walls. Modern-day, easy-to-wash plastic-coated wallpaper is easy to apply, and durable. Paints, of course, are the old standby, and the modern paints have become easier to apply and still easier to maintain.

Forget Winter! Use the Pool

Pool for all-year use and an enclosed family room form a combination that's center of attraction at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Franks.

MALL AND WINTER swimming pool maintenance used to be a subject for conversation—but no longer.

The modern-day swimming pool owner has three choices:

- I. Heat the pool, swim the year around and forget that winter exists.
  - 2. Maintain the pool electronically.

3. Combine the first two choices.

Heating the pool is a practical, comparatively lnexpensive solution to a lot of problems. Southland pool owners can heat their pools during the coldest months—November through April—for about $1 a day, or at an average yearly cost of 65 to 75 cents a day.

THE AMERICAN Red Cross and gas suppliers generally recognize temeratures of 76 to 78 degrees as healthful and economical for pool heating. To achieve low cost and proper temperatures the pool owner will have to keep the temperature in mind.

Temperature control is the key to how much fuel is consumed when thousands of gallons of water are involved. If you move the temperature up by I degree you can increase fuel consumption by 10%.

Some pool owners, of course, feel that higher temperatures are enjoyable enough to justify the added cost,

ONE THING is certain—fall is the time to install the heater if you don't have one. Pool contractors sometimes make better deals for heaters in the fall when business slackens and it is necessary to keep their crews going.

Built-ins have proven time and again the most satisfactory means for storing the necessities of everyday living, books, collector's items and even entertainment devices.

Homeowners who may be contemplating a move and particularly apartment dwellers are futsifiably reluctant, however, to spend considerable money on a storage wall that would become a permanent fixture.

TO SOLVE this problem, Simpson Timber Company commissioned New York designer Franklyn Jacoby, ASID, to develop a new concept for home storage: the portable built-in wall.

Jacoby and Simpson believed that a well-planned unit would not only solve storage and space problems but would be a handsome piece of furniture enhancing the decor of any home or apartment. Since everyone's storage and built-in needs are different, it was felt that this project would contribthe idea which the ute handyman could easily adapt to fit the needs of his own home.

In assembling this wall, the base is placed on the floor. The lower units rest on this and the top hutch units stack one on top of another. All of the basic units are interchangeable to allow complete versatility and even cabinets, speakers and shelves are flexible within these units.

Autumn Pathway to Most

By KAREN SMITH

FALL GARDENING season is here, not around the corner. It presents a challenge, as a harvest of beauty at this time is not a matter of course. It is a matter of winter rains are on the way. There is extra work because of a long dry summer. Also work, too, because autumn is a time of preparation for winter and spring blooms.

Get busy and remove all withered flowers and foliage. Cut back established perennials and divide crowded clusters or renew the entire bed. Some perennials can be cut back to six inches from the ground to provide a bonus if weather continues warm. Try this on penstemon, daisies, coreopsis, delphinum, and nepeta. Seeds to consider immediately, or seedlings, are carnation for neutral soil, and columbine, campanula, gaillardia, geum, primula, scabiosa, trasvall, Iceland and Oriental poppies.

Rake up all dead foliage on the ground. Hiding under it may be hordes of snails and slugs. Also check under rocks for these pests. And use a combined medicide and insecticide to cool off the arder of spider mites and aphids for next year. You may discover that these tiny bugs have made big, ugly marks on tender, juicy foliage of annuals, perennials, and shrubs. They may have shriveled leaves into knots, too. While in the raking mood, get out your pruners and remove dead branches and crossed ones from trees and shrubs. If in doubt, consult your nurseryman; it's his business to help you.

GET A LOAD of humus for the winter annuals you plan to grow. Dig the soil, remove all debris, dog bones, etc., and enrich the soil according to the plants' requirements. A host of annuals can be used. Topping the list are the wonderful sweet peas. Last year in England, David Burpee received the Henry Eckford medal as the man who had done most for sweet peas in America, and you will find his winter bloomers reliable. Look for seedlings planted in a nursery last August, or try the seeds. Consider also snapdragons, stock, calendula, pansy, viola, alyssum. Cineraria and English primrose always do better started in a good nursery.

Don't forget bulbs. Some should already be awakening in your soil even though you may not see them yet. But still obtain some that appear to be asleep. High on the list are bearded iris, lycoris, and white calias. Bulbs like a bed deeply spaded and enriched with digested sludge. This mellow mixture makes them prolific and helps them to return year after year. Do not dig close to established bulbs. Some bulbs, notably tulips, do best if new ones are planted each year.

THE AUTUMN scene is always gay with the big B flowers, big, bold, beautiful thrysanthemums started in the spring. You can obtain some in full bloom and set them in pots in the patto. When the flowering season is over, arrange them in the garden where you want them to grow.

The earth warmed by summer will nourish many flowering shrubs. Use camellia and azalea in shady areas and other showy plants for full exposure to the sun. The Geraldton waxflower is a graceful native that attains a height of 10 to 12 feet if staked. It also is attractive sprawling over a wall or down a slope. Flowers are small, waxy, fragrant, and a lovely pink. You will use armloads of them for indoor arrangements.

It is said that Capt. Cook's intrepid men brewed leaves of the Australian tea tree (a shrub) to cure scurvy. Perhaps so, but you'll like this plant as an excellent screen and windbreak. And it has few requirements other than good drainage and light occasional trimming during the growing

Fall's the time to get ready for spring in the garden—and now's the fall season. Some bulbs should be in the ground now, others should be going in. Sweet peas—there's a window box full of David Burpee's Bijous (center)—should be started now. Plant sweet alyssum (lower) for border fragrance.

Mums may be obtained in bloom and used for bold garden color.

High on the list are bearded iris, lycoris, and white calias. Bulbs like a bed deeply spaded and enriched with digested sludge. This mellow mixture makes them prolific and helps them to return year after year. Do not dig close to established bulbs. Some bulbs, notably tulips, do best if new ones are planted each year.

THE AUTUMN scene is always gay with the big B flowers, big, bold, beautiful chrysanthemums started in the spring. You can obtain some in full bloom and set them in pots in the patio. When the flowering season is over, arrange them in the garden where you want them to grow.

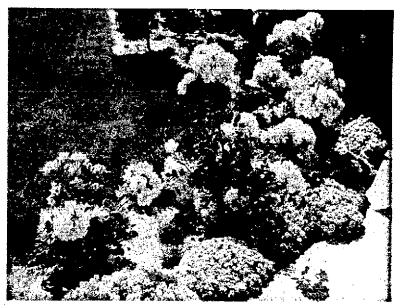

The earth warmed by summer will nourish many flowering shrubs. Use camellia and azalea in shady areas and other showy plants for full exposure to the sun. The Geraldton waxflower is a graceful native that attains a height of 10 to 12 feet if staked. It also is attractive sprawling over a wall or down a slope. Flowers are small, waxy, fragrant, and a lovely pink. You will use armloads of them for indoor arrangements.

It is said that Capt. Cook's intrepid men brewed leaves of the Australian tea tree (a shrub) to cure scurvy. Perhaps so, but you'll like this plant as an excellent scree and windbreak. And it has few requirements other than good drainage and light occasional trimming during the growing

When asked if she used the new commercial air-fresheners, she replied: "My herbs from my garden provide my air fresheners."

She considers aromatics a household art. She creates her own home perfumes, using them throughout her house to scent drawer liners for her wardrobes, linen closets and dressers; dainty sachets tucked into shoulder pads, amid her lingerie, even into the hems of draperies and in the corners of cushions, also silk-sacheted covers that fit over her clothes hangers. All were made with her own flower garden as first assistant, Through summer and fall, she gathers fragrant flower petals and herb buds and leaves from her garden, dries them and makes spicy scented potpourri for her own home and for gifts. She uses the potpourri mixture in her various sachets, 🛴

POTPOURRI, a blend of dried flower petals and leaves is one of the oldest and earliest forms of perfumery. The Bible mentions potpourri as do records of ancient China, Egypt and India.

In medieval times the floors of castle and cottage, alike, were carpeted with sweet herbs. The Greeks used to strew pungent saffron on the floors of their baths and theaters. Boudoirs of famous beauties were laden with lavender and rosemary. By Cleopatra's time fragrant oils and highly-scented pomades provided a lively trade in the far and middle east.

Interest in potpourri continues. Today, smart shops tempt with fragrant bath cils, sachets, and bowls of potpourri...

Home-grown potpourri is easy to make. Its spicy aroma lasts for years.

In a potpourri mixture, rose petals usually predominate, though petals of other fragrant flowers and herbs can be added to the mixture. Also ground peel of lemons and oranges. Remove the white lining of the fruits, then grind the peel in a food grinder.

5 New Roses

Now Available for First Time

TIVE NEW ROSES, each offering fresh beauty to Southland gardens, will be available for planting for the first time during the coming season in the Long Beach-Orange County area.

One of the new varieties, the Matterhorn, is an All-America Rose Selection for 1966.

Facts about the new varieties:

MATTERHORN: a white hybrid tea variety with good-sized, shapely buds opening to long-lasting flowers that are especially welcome for cutting. The bushes grow rather tall. Developed by Armstrong Nurseries, Ontario.

HALLMARK: a fragrant red hybrid tea rose with a prolific blooming habit. Its long, shapely buds open into blossoms often five inches across with thick, long-lasting petals, Bushels grow to three-foot plant first year, the foliage bronze with a wax finish. Developed by Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N.Y.

The swimming pool is a major family investment and it should be used the year around to realize full returns for that investment.

This year seems to be the year of the fully-automated pool. Cleaning, chlorination and filtering are-or can be -all done automatically now. And this means trouble-free winter maintenance.

From the pool owner's point of view, probably the most interesting bit of automation is that which relieves him of the tedious task of cleaning the pool—the automatic sweeper. Three models are now on the market and apparently all the bugs have been worked out of all three, thus making for trouble-free cleaning the year around.

AUTOMATIC feeding of chemicals is now here, too. Four methods are now available to pool owners for trouble-free operation all year. Each system is different and employs different chemicals, either in powder or liquid form. A check of reputable contractors should give you a quick answer about which which is the most economic al.

Filtering, of course, Is still the No. 1 item for the pool owner. While this is built in when your pool is constructed, constant improvements are being made and it might be profitable and wise to check your contract and see if your filtering system needs modifications for completely automated and satisfactory operation.

It all boils down to this: Combine heating and automation-then settle down and enjoy your pool the year around and forget about maintenance whether it be is best for your pool and winter or summer.

next year. The answer is to plant Dutch bulbs now. This is the season when you can plant a section of the sun itself and "paint" the spring garden of your dreams.

No flowers are more exciting and satisfying than bulbs. You have every color of the rainbow at your fingertips in the many classes and varieties of tulips. Your garden will sparkle with the many bright yellow daffodils, and hyacinths are the double-duty flower bringing both a multitude of color and delightful fragrance at the same time.

Best of all, bulbs can be planted almost anywhere. If you are looking for a touch of color in the shade of a tree or shrub, look no further than the enchanting spring-flowering bulb.

By themselves in a border in the open sun, as an edging along walks or naturalized in woodlands, bulbs will find a welcome home.

Every nook and cranny can be converted into an enchanting spring wonderland with pockets of the "minor" bulbs. The deep blue Muscari, bright colored crocus and the light blue Chionodoxa shout out that "Spring Is Here!"—sometimes even before the snow leaves.

Planning your spring garden is as easy as planting it. Color pictures of bulb flowers can be found in catalogues and at stores where bulbs are sold.

To plant, place the larger bulbs—tul ps. daffodils and hyacimhs—six inches deep and six inches apart. Smaller bulbs are placed three inches apart and deep. Bulbs can be planted until the ground freezes hard, but early planting is best.

Bread in a Dual Role

Fruit and Cheese Custard Bread goes double - as bread and as a dessert.

By Mildred K. Flanary Southland Magazine Masse Economics Editor

ARE YOU looking for something to serve that's both appealing and different? Well, here's a colorful hot bread that doubles as a dessert. It's Fruit and Cheese Custard Bread, a delightfully fancy yeast bread as pleasing to the eye as to the taste.

A package of roll mix is shaped into a circle, with a bowl hollowed out in the middle, leaving a one-inch high rim. The hollow is filled with cheese custard and canned fruit cocktail, and a jelly giaze is poured over the top. The fruit cocktail blends deliciously with the cheesa custard, as well as providing color for eye appeal. The fruit cocktail syrup adds flavor to the jelly glaze.

Fruit and Cheese Custard Bread should be served slightly warm, cut into wedges. A great convenience is the fact that it can be reheated and served the following day.

This hot bread is also good for a Sunday brunch menu

From information received from Luis, when the Communist government took possession of Cuba in 1961, all the gold and silver coins in circulation were recalled. They were then melted and made into bars and eventually sent to Russia as payment for arms and other military supplies.

In 1961 and 1962, nickel coins of the 1, 5, 20, and 40-cent denominations were issued, and in 1963, aluminum coins of 1 and 5 cents were made. The fact is, all that Cuban coins of every denomination are becoming rare today, and this not only applies to the pre-Castro coins issued until 1958, but even the new ones produced recently and which are circulating

The Castro government does not allow any coins to be taken out of the country, and any citizen departing Cuba is searched to prevent him from leaving with any kind of valuables at all. In 1948, the price of silver rose and the Cuban government decided to melt and sell the silver from the dollar-size coins. The Liberty dollar type (1934-1939), when originally issued, was in very little demand and few were in circulation. THE 1937 ISSUE, which was minted in the amount of 11,500,000 pieces, did not reach circulation at all, and all of these were melted, except for 11 which appeared and were immediately purchased by coin collectors.

Very few of the Cuban silver dollars were brought out of Cuha in the exodus, and this applies to all of the types.

This proves that many of the Cuban coins which now show high mintage figures may actually be very rare and will be more difficult to find as time goes on.

You will find collectors who will tell you that the collecting of the Cuban series is one of the most fascinating in the West Indies group.

DO YOU HAVE a 1954 English penny? This coin is worth thousands of dollars, but do not bother looking for it, as the piece is unique and there is no chance of finding another one.

This rare piece was brought over from England by a coin dealer in upstate New York and it has been on exhibition at a number of conventions. It came from the famous collection of C. Wilson Peck, numismatic author and collector.

A very small number of English pennies were struck in 1954 at the Royal Mint in London, but when no further orders came for coins of this denomination, the dies, along with the coins, were destroyed, except for the one which was acquired in 1956 by an English dealer. He eventually sold it to Peck for his collection of British coins.

To order the new "Coins of Special Value" booklet, send 50 cents with name and address to Coin Roundup, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. Allow three weeks for delivery.

is, all that Cuban coins of every denomination are becoming rare today, and this not only applies to the pre-Castro coins issued until 1958, but even the new ones produced recently and which are circulating

The Castro government does not allow any coins to be taken out of the country, and any citizen departing Cuba is searched to prevent him from leaving with any kind of valuables at all.

In 1948, the price of silver rose and the Cuban government decided to melt and sell the silver from the dollar-size coins. The Liberty dollar type (1934-1939), when originally issued, was in very little demand and few were in circulation.

THE 1937 ISSUE, which was minted in the amount of 11,500,000 pieces, did not reach circulation at all, and all of these were melted, except for 11 which appeared and were immediately purchased by coin collectors.

Very few of the Cuban silver dollars were brought out of Cuba in the exodus, and this applies to all of the types.

This proves that many of the Cuban coins which now show high mintage figures may actually be very rare and will be more difficult to find as time goes on.

You will find collectors who will tell you that the collecting of the Cuban series is one of the most fascinating in the West Indies group.

DO YOU HAVE a 1954 English penny? This coin is worth thousands of dollars, but do not bother looking for it, as the piece is unique and there is no chance of finding another one.

This rare piece was brought over from England by a coin dealer in upstate New York and it has been on exhibition at a number of conventions. It came from the famous collection of C. Wilson Peck, numismatic author and collector.

A very small number of English pennies were struck in 1954 at the Royal Mint in London, but when no further orders came for coins of this denomination, the dies, along with the coins, were destroyed, except for the one which was acquired in 1956 by an English dealer. He eventually sold it to Peck for his collection of British coins.

To order the new "Coins of Special Value" booklet, send 50 cents with name and address to Coin Roundup, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. Allow three weeks for delivery.

CAN EXPOSURE to radar (microwave radiation) increase the risk of developing cataracts?

This has long been the fear because radar can cause cataracts in laboratory enimals.

However, a new study of Army and Air Force personnel who operated radar equipment during World War II and the Korean War shows that exposure does not increase the risk of getting a cataract.

Just the same, the case isn't closed, according to New York University researchers in a report in Archives of Environmental Health.

Radar equipment is now more powerful than that formerly used in the military services. Thus the occupa-tional hazard now may be different.

Oriental 'Pilgrim's Progress'

By Vera Williams

IT IS a joy to discover a book that may - very likely WILL - become a classic.

"NO HEAVEN FOR GUN-GA DIN" (Dutton, $3.50) by a Persian peasant with the formidable name of Ali Mirdrekvandi Gunga Din, is such a book - innocent, naive, yet somehow sophisticated.

Written by a Persian peasant whose self-taught knowledge of the English language is enchanced by his familiarity with the Bible and association with British and American Army officers for whom he worked in Te-heran in World War II, "No Heaven" can be likened to an oriental Pilgrim's Progress in which Army officers wander about the firmament in search of Heaven. Their adventures and the resourcefulness they employ overcoming obstacles make fascinating reading.

It's a book of 128 pages. It

ANDREW EWART, author of "THE WORLD'S WICKEDEST WOMEN" (Taplinger, $4.50) says 77 plays, 45 operas and five ballets have been based on the women in his book-the 20 most notorious femme fatales of all time.

The worst ones, according to the author: Cleopatra, Lucrezia Borgia, Catherine the Callous of France, Queen Theodora of Byzantium, Empress Dowager Tzu Hsi of Imperial China, and Agrippina of ancient Rome.

"ALCOHOLISM; Its Facets and Phases" by Marvin A. Block, M. D. (Day, $5.95), is a comprehensive surveystudy of the disease (he emphatically calls it a disease) which affects much of the population. He discusses the problem drinker, the alcoholic, the motivation to drink - partial or total escape is the most common cause, he says; medical and psychological effects of alcohol, and treatment at varions levels.

IF YOU ARE in good physical condition, you can lie on your stomach with your hands behind your neck and arch your body by raising your chest and legs off the floor-15 times. So says Thomas K. Cureton Jr., professor of physical education, University of Illinois, "PHYSICAL FITNESS & DYNAMIC HEALTH" (Dial, $5.95). He advocates a program of regular exercise, beginning gradually and advancing to more difficult variations, performed for longer periods. The exercises are illustrated.

THE LUSTY IMAGE of 19th Century Africa when tribal chieftains and white invaders waged bloody wars of conquest and power is reflected in the blography "DINGANE, KING OF THE ZULU 1828-1840" by Peter Becker, authority on Bantu history and culture and a fluent Zulu linguist (Crowell, $5.95). Dingane usurped the Zulu throne in 1828 after assassinating his brother Shaka. He then massacred Zulu dignitaries, vassal clans, relatives, lifelong friends and eventually Boers and Englishmen. Overthrown by the Boers of Natal who supported his brother, Umpanda, he finally fled murdered. The book is illustrated with rare prints and drawings.

IN ANTARCTA, where the temperature drops to degrees below zero Fahrenheit, there is no cold war. By a formal treaty ratified by a dozen nations, the ice-clad continent that comprises nearly 10% of the earth's land and 17% of its water, is an international laboratory dedicated to global science.

Richard S. Lewis, Chlcago newspaperman, made two trips to Antarcta to report on scientific developments, and as a labor of love wrote 'A CONTINENT FOR SCI-ENCE. The Antarctic Adventure" (Viking, $7.95), illustrated with photos, maps and drawings.

Beginning with the belief of the ancient Greeks that a southern polar land existed, Lewis traces the evolution of this concept through the centuries until the land was sighted in 1820. The International Geophysical Year brought modern technology and teamwork. The author's text and illustrations depict scientists at work and the significance of their findings.

AS RICHLY varied as America itself are its regional foods and cooking customs, "RED - FLANNEL HASH AND SHOO-FLY PIE, American regional foods and festivals" by Lila Perl, illustrated by Eric Carle (World, $5.95) explores festivals and folkways, history and traditions, national origins and their accompanying foods. Included to Swaziland where he was are contributions of the American Indians in New England and the West, the Dutch in old New York, Germans in Pennsylvania and the West, Spanish, French, Negroes, Chinese, Italians and Eskimos.

> ANYONE troubled by the apparent sway of science in today's world will welcome "THE AMAZING HUMAN MIND" by Herbert H. Busher, M.D. (Fell, $3.50). Busher traces the "muscle power" phase of evolution that ended with the dinosaur, then the mind-power phase that finally produced homo saniens. There are fascinatlng details about the functions our brains have retained from primitive animal forms and those that are unique to man.

WHILE Napoleon Bonaparte enjoyed his greatest triumphs on the battlefields, he suffered emotional defeats at home, from the ingratitude, greed and selfishness of his seven brothers and sisters.

A loser in his own married life, Napoleon carried to thrones and dominated, unhappily, "THE GOLDEN MILLSTONES" (Harper & Row, $4.95) by R. L. Delderfield. They were Lucien, the most independent of the lot. and a friend when needed; Joseph, a failure as a king; Louis, embittered and quar relsome; Jerome, a vain spendthrift; Carolyn, the most treacherous of the clan; Elisa, cast from the venal and irresponsible.

German shepherd dogs often are considered to be warlike, but their preference is for peace and a place in the family, as portrayed here.

By Eleanor Avery Price

AST Sunday, we presented a picture of a German shepherd dog in show pose. Today, we feature one of the breed as he prefers to be - part of the family and pal to children. This seven-year-old shepherd dog is Lynn-Den's Silver Trojan C.D.X. (Companion Dog Excellent), being fed by "his" niece, Marsha Ann Bess, 2½, of Garden Grove, and owned by George and Princine,

It is pleasing, also, to read that German shepherd dogs are now being used to protect the New York Bronx Zoo at night from trespassers who have been cruelly attacking zoo animals with rocks. Of course, it is nicer to think of dogs being home bodies like Trojan.

season. Time was when this shrub was available only in pink blooms, but this has changed since a noted rose hybridizer, Dr. Walter Lammerts, developed new hybrid teas. You can buy red and white flowers as well. They really are spring bloomers, but cut back in late summer and fall, they are apt to have another showing of flowers.

OTHER GOOD shrubs are Breath of Heaven, a small plant, wormwood with feathery, silver-green leaves and gold flowers, Bouvardia, Fraser photinia, native therries, oleander, and many others including of course the berried plants such as pyracantha, holly, and toyon. ## Strawberry Tree

NE OF CALIFORNIA'S most useful garden subjects is the Strawberry Tree, so-called because of strawberry-like fruits that appear in late summer and fall in heavy clusters near the tips of the older gowth. Tiny, bell-shaped, white flowers sometimes also appear, creating pretty effect with the fruit. It will accept water in copious supply or do with very little. It can be pruned into a compact tree, allowed to grow into a tall, open shrub or pruned into a standard tree form.

From a distance, the Strawberry Tree resembles California's native Toyon in structure and foliage. It makes an excellent screening shrub, or grouped as a background for lower growing flowering shrubs and taller perennials and annuals or as a foundations shrub set between windows to conceal blank walls.

> AT THIS POINT add lime and fertilizer-preferably a plant food high in nitrogen content-to the soil to neutralize and rid it of any impurities that might interfere with the growing seeds.

> Spread it evenly, You're ready now to sow your new lawn. Selecting the right kind of seed is one of the most important steps toward establishing a beautiful, thick lawn. Avoid "bargain"priced seed that often contains impurities and a high percentage of miscellaneous grasses and weeds.

> For homeowners in bluegrass areas, pure Merion Kentucky Bluegrass, or mixtures with 40% or more are best.

One pound of Merion seed contains up to 2,500,000 seeds. Because a reduced quantity of the small-sized seed is required for a given area, it's best to use a spreader that can be adjusted to drop seed evenly at the desired rate. A general rule of thumb is to use one pound of seed to 750 square feet of soil If you sow by hand, divide the seed into two parts and sow half in one direction, and the other half at right angles to the first direction.

SOME HOMEOWNERS use the professional method of speeding up germination -soaking the seed in water before it's sown-to establish quicker strands of grass. Here's how it's done: put the seed loosely in a cloth bag and soak overnight. Then with the seed still in the bag, wash with a spray until the water runs clean. months of careful planning that Mrs. Jones and her husband, Harold A. Jones Sr., first opened the Dining Room at 120 E. 5th St. They were already experienced restaurateurs, having operated the adjacent Jones Cafeteria for 10 years, but they were totally unprepared for the way the eager public swarmed into the new establishment on opening day, Hordes of families arrived to fete their mothers with delicious dinners at Jones's. The place became a Mother's Day madhouse. At the height of the confusion, Mrs. Jones everworked, exhausted and having seen all her gracious plans go awry - broke down and cried. Several of her waitresses also collapsed into tears. They all pulled themselves together and did a great job, making 99% of their patrons happy, Over 26 busy years have passed since that tumultuous day and Mrs. Jones, a cheerful, outgoing personality, can laugh now as she recalls the experience. Through trial and error like that; she, her husband and their son, Harold Jr., have created one of the most successful restaurant businesses in the city. Even more important, theirs is one of the best-liked enterprises here because the three Joneses are genuine people, sincerely interested in the activities of the patrons, many of whom they have known for decades.

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is it true that Pierre Salinger has received more than $350,000 in advance for his book on the Kennedy administration? Is it also true that Ted Sorensen and Arthur Schlesinger will each earn more than $500,000 from their books? Why doesn't Mrs. Kennedy write a book and join the gravy train?—Bernard Fine, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Salinger has received an advance of approximately $150,000 for the hard-cover rights from Doubleday. Since he owns all the subsidiary rights to his work, his advance take is expected to exceed $350,000. Sincensen and Schlesinger have already received large payments for their books, will probably gross more than $500,000 each after foreign, paperback and subsidiary rights have been sold. Mrs. Kennedy has no intention of writing a book at this point. Unlike Salinger, Sorensen and Schlesinger, she doesn't need the money.

Q. What is the frank honest critical opinion of Tuesday Weld's acting?—Frank A. Connors, Washington, D.C.

A. Adequate.

Q. Mystery writer Agatha Christie—her real name? It she married?—L. T. Knox, Savannah, Ga. A. Agatha Christie Mallowan is married to M. E. L. Mallowan, distinguished Eritish archaeologist.

Q. Please identify the following quotation: "The fundamental defect of fathers is that they want their children to be a credit to them." — Walter Rick, Wilmington, N.C.

A. Bertrand Russell, writer, mathematician, philosopher.

Q. It is my understanding that the radio and TV stations in this country are largely owned by members of Congress. Is this so?—Ron Cannett, Platisburgh, N.Y.

A. Directly or through family connections, 23 members of the U.S. Congress own radio or TV stations.

Q. When the Beatles were made Members of the Order of the British Empire, many men who had preciously been awarded that medal sent them back to the Queen. My question is, how did the Beatles react to that?—Donna Jameson, Alexandria, Va.

A. Says John Lennon, spokesman for the group: "Those other fellows got their award for killing people. We got ours for selling records."

LUISE RAINER, WILLIAM POWELL, IN GREAT ZIEGFELD.

Q. Recently Luise Rainer, who won Academy Awards in 1936 and 1937, returned to Hollywood for a TV episode. Now that he is dead can you tell the true story of why L. B. Mayer, the mogul of MGM, had her banished from Hollywood?

Was it because the denied him her favors?-F. T. Merced, Calif.

A. Luise Rainer was at MGM from 1936 to 1938. In that time she and Mayer argued frequently about her roles and her salary. Although she won two Oscars for the studio, Mayer by 1938 was paying the actress only $250 a week. The actress asked for more money, top roles. A tyrant of no taste and less talent, Mayer screamed: "We made you and we're going to kill you." The actress replied, "God made me," then walked out on her seven-year contract. In 1943 Luise Rainer returned to Hollywood for Paramount, appeared in a lemon, Hostages, stayed away for 22 years until last month, when she acted in Combat, a TV series.

Q. Whatever has become of Howard K. Smith? Why has he seemed to drop out as one of our leading news analysts? — H. D. Cedarfield, Walpole, Mass.

A. Smith represents the ABCTV network in Washington, is still a top news analyst. O. Lucie Valore, widow of the great French painter Maurice Utrillo, did she really give away priceless masterpieces by her husband to a collection of young gigolos? Isn't that what the Paris art world is currently talking about, or is that just the gossip?—D. E., New York, N.Y.

A. Lucie Valore who died in France a few weeks ago owned 50 of her dead husband's paintings. In the ten years since Utrillo's death, 45 of these Utrillos have disappeared. Lucie Valore, despite her age—she died at 87—kept several young lovers. It is believed she paid for their services with her husband's paintings. As a result the market in Utrillos has been upset.

Q. Is it true that one member of the crew after another is walking off the set of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?—F. R. R., Boston, Mass.

A. Cameraman Harry Stradling and assistant director Buck Hall walked off after differences with director Mike Nichols, brought in from Broadway to direct the film starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton.

Q. I understand that the Central Intelligence Agency, which goofed in Singapore and Cuba, was responsible for providing planes and Cuban exile air crews to Maj. Mike Hoare of the Belgian Congo mercenaries, and that these planes and their Cuban crews were responsible in part for beating the anti-Tshombe rebels in the Congo. Is this story on the level, or was it merely leaked to make the C.I.A. look good?—B. L. T., Chicago, Ill.

A, It's on the level. The C.I.A. employed Cuban exiles to fly for the mercenaries in the Congo.

Q. Tish Sterling, Ann Sothern's daughter, is supposedly the most beautiful of all the stars children. Could you run a picture of her and the guy she married in Las Vegas, the wedding her mother refused to attend?—BeeBee Anderson, Denver, Colo.

Q. Recently Luise Rainer, who won Academy Awards in 1936 and 1937, returned to Hollywood for a TV episode. Now that he is dead can you tell the true story of why L. B. Mayer, the mogul of MGM, had her banished from Hollywood?

Was it because she denied him her facors?—F. T. Merced, Calif.

A. Luise Rainer was at MGM from 1936 to 1938. In that time she and Mayer argued frequently about her roles and her salary. Although she won two Oscars for the studio, Mayer by 1938 was paying the actress only $250 a week. The actress asked for more money, top roles. A tyrant of no taste and less talent, Mayer screamed: "We made you and we're going to kill you." The actress replied, "God made me," then walked out on her seven-year contract. In 1943 Luise Rainer returned to Hollywood for Paramount, appeared in a lemon, Hostages, stayed away for 22 years until last month, when she acted in Combat, a TV series.

Q. Whatever has become of Howard K. Smith? Why has he seemed to drop out as one of our leading news analysts? — H. D. Cedarfield, Walpole, Mass.

A. Smith represents the ABC-TV network in Washington, is still a top news analyst.

Q. Lucie Valore, widow of the great French painter Maurice Utrillo, did she really give away priceless masterpieces by her husband to a collection of young gigolos? Isn't that what the Paris art world is currently talking about, or is that just the gossip?—D. E., New York, N.Y.

A. Lucie Valore who died in France a few weeks ago owned 50 of her dead husband's paintings. In the ten years since Utrillo's death, 45 of these Utrillos have disappeared. Lucie Valore, despite her age—she died at 87—kept several young lovers. It is believed she paid for their services with her husband's paintings. As a result the market in Utrillos has been upset.

Q. Is it true that one member of the crew after another is walking off the set of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?—F. R. R., Boston, Mass.

A. Cameraman Harry Stradling and assistant director Buck Hall walked off after differences with director Mike Nichols, brought in from Broadway to direct the film starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton.

Q. I understand that the Central Intelligence Agency, which goofed in Singapore and Cuba, was responsible for providing planes and Cuban exile air crews to Maj. Mike Hoare of the Belgian Congo mercenaries, and that these planes and their Cuban crews were responsible in part for beating the anti-Tshomha rebels in the Congo. Is this story on the level, or was it merely leaked to make the C.I.A. look good?—B. L. T., Chicago, Ill.

A. It's on the level. The C.I.A. employed Cuban exiles to fly for the mercenaries in the Congo.

Q. Tish Sterling, Ann Sothern's daughter, is supposedly the most beautiful of all the stars' children. Could you run a picture of her and the guy she married in Las Vegas, the wedding her mother refused to attend?—BeeBee Anderson, Denver, Colo.

SPACE PROGRAM'S CHRIS KRAFT

HE STANDS OUT IN A FIELD OF STARS

by FRED BLUMENTHAL

hen our Gemini VI spacecraft attempts soon to link up with an unmanned rocket circling the earth at 17,000 miles on hour, two more astronauts will join the others who've gained world-wide fame. Yet sinting in relative obscurity making the life-or-death decisions in a control room here will be the same man who has directed our orbital flights since the days when we were sending up chimpanzees.

We've successfully sent many astronauts into space: Glenn, Carpenter, Schirra, Cooper, Grissom, Young, Mc-Divitt, Conrad. But the awesome job of ground control has been left to the unique talents of Christopher Columbus Kraft.

Others may get the headlines and the ticker tape parades; he gets the responsibility.

At 41, the salty, blunt-spoken, quickthinking Kraft is top man in a far-out field of human knowledge and adventure that was still in the science fiction stage as recently as his high school days in Hampton, Va. As director of the U.S. managed space flight program, he commands the ground control teams of scientists and technicians that direct our orbiting spacecraft from liftoff to splashdown. In the astronauts' own language, Kraft is the "go, no-go guy." The spacemen can and do maneuver their ships in flight, and they participate in critical decisions affecting their missions, but Kraft gives the final word and shoulders the life-or-death responsibility.

Yet, although he is charged with a job with such world-wide ramifications, Kraft could pass unnoticed even here where the NASA Manned Spacecraft Center is headquartered. Conservative in dress, he is medium good kooking, of medium height and build, with blue eyes and just-beginning to thin brown hair; he looks exactly like a modestly successful young business executive. He might well be described as "Mr. Average."

The truth is that Chris Kraft possesses one of the keenest intellects in the entire space program, which is chock-full of brilliant scientists, engineers, mathematicians and assorted specialists in the enormous spectrum of space disciplines. He stands out in a field of stars.

Interestingly, Kraft is neither pilot, mathematician, scientist nor specialist in electronics or celestial mechanics. He holds a degree in aeronautical engineering from Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and for 13 years he was a flight director in the aeronautical test program at Langley A.F.B. research center. He himself compares his job to that of a symphony conductor-I can't play all the instruments, but I do know how I want the total effort to sound, and what to do about it if it doesn't sound right." But associates say his special gift is his ability to absorb-in a business where the margin for error is measured in micromillimeters and microsecondsthe most complex technical information, analyze it and render a decision.

One aide who has observed Kraft in action ever since the first Mercury shots,

"Chris can handle problems that are unique, that have never arisen before. They are beyond the power of a computer because there are no precedents from which to get data for the computer to work on. But Chris can solve them, because he has this tremendous capacity for synthesizing, for pulling together a tast array of facts and coming up with solutions."

"GO" DECISION

When Gemini V was still in the early orbits of its scheduled eight-day flight in August, trouble developed in the oxygen supply for a vital fuel cell, and it appeared that the mission might have to be ended early. While astronauts Pete Conrad and Gordon Cooper hurtled through space and the world held its breath, Kraft went calmly about his job. Teams of specialists pulled in every fragment of information on the defective equipment and fed it to the flight director. Within a matter of hours he had sorted out the data and come to a "Go" decision. Orders were fed to the spacecraft, the disabled cell was reactivated exactly as Kraft had predicted and Gemini V went on to complete its mis-

"No computer could have handled that one," an associate recalls. "It took the human brain—the kind of problemsolving that Chris specializes in."

Kraft modestly dismisses the incident as routine. "Weeks before every space flight," he explains, "we try to have a solution for every problem we can foresee. In this case, we could give the problem our full-time attention because we already had the other problems solved in advance."

But if Kraft is modest, he is also tough. The men around him regard him with awe, but there is no easygoing familiarity such as the astronauts enjoy among themselves. A no nonsense perfectionist, Kraft demands superior performance from his subordinates as well as himself and can be brutally frank in criticizing failure. Moreover, when he gives an order, he expects it to be obeyed.

Thus, when astronaut Edward White took his celebrated walk into space during the Gemini IV mission last summer, he enjoyed it so much that he was reluctant to return to the spaceship. Up from the Houston headquarters went a peremptory order in a familiar business-like voice. "Tell him to get back in," pilot James McDivitt was instructed. White got back in.

Similarly, during the second U.S. orbital flight, astronaut Scott Carpenter was found to be using too much fuel in his first pass around the earth. Kraft snapped an order to the capsule communicator in voice contact with Carpenter's ship: "Tell him to go easy on the fuel, or 111 pull him down early." There was no need to repeat the order.

At home, Krast is equally plainspoken. "Don't ask Chris a question unless you want a straight answer," says his attractive wise, Betty Anne. "If I ask him how he likes a new dress I've bought, he tells me. And it's not always what I want to hear."

Chris and Betty Anne were high school sweethearts back in Hampton, Va., and Betty Anne recalls that on her first date she made him produce his driver's license to prove that he really was named Christopher Columbus. He inherited the name from his father, who was born while the U.S. was celebrating the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the New World. Betty Anne concluded that two Christopher Columbuses in the family were enough. Their 13year-old son is named Gordon. But she relented slightly when their daughter came along. Now 10, she is called Kristi Anne.

The family lives in a brick rambler home in suburban Houston, but Kraft has little time to relax. Almost every night after dinner, he retires to his study, lights a cigar and pores over a mass of reports and data accumulated during the day in the Center. When he does relax, however, he seldom talks shop. "All I know about the space program," says his wife, "is what I read or see on television. And sometimes Chris discusses it when we have guests in from the Center."

Those rare social evenings give Kraft an outlet for one of his lesser known talents. He likes to work with his hands, and the surest way for a guest to please him is to ask for a complicated cocktail that has to be "built" from a wide variety of ingredients. "He doesn't mix a drink," Betty Anne says, "he manufactures it."

HANDIWORK

Kraft has little time for other handiwork, however. He once set out to be an amateur carpenter, built a workbench in the basement, but a flight interrupted and he got no further. He still plays golf—he shoots consistently in the low 80's—and goes to an occasional ball game with young Gordon. Otherwise, he is a full-time man of space.

He also gives a good deal of thought to the subject. He and his team for example, have given much thought to the possibility of a space tragedy. He has discussed it personally with the astronauts before each flight. Characteristically, he has laid it on the line. "If one of you becomes incapacitated — or worse — up there," he has told them, "I don't want the able man to be a big hero and stay up there with his buddy." Asked what we would do if an accident killed both crew members, he replies, "We've thought hard about that. Don't know the answer. If it ever does come to that, I guess you'd just have to try to live with it."

Feeling that way, Kraft also resents the enormous publicity each space shot receives, particularly the moment-by-moment coverage. If, ultimately, there were an accident, he feels it would be of such momentous proportions that there would be great public outery, a rash of investigations, and possibly the whole space program would be crippled.

What makes Chris Kraft uniquely valuable to the multibillion-dollar project that aims at landing man on the moon by 1970 is not training or scientific knowledge, but the rare quality of command and the even rarer quality of decision in an area where man has never before ventured.

How did he arrive at this position of command decision in a field dominated by men of vastly greater scientific knowledge?

Chris Kraft himself offers a modest answer:

"I was in the right place at the right time. I was just lucky."

Gemini V astronauts Pete Conrad (I.), Gordon Cooper (c.) confer with Kraft before mission, completed despite fuel-cell trouble.

"Two Christopher Columbuses are enough": Chris and wife Betty Anne named son Gordon, relented with daughter, Kristi-Anne.

Set up as model institution, Sagamore Hills is plagued by staff and fund shortages, recently "borrowed" $300 to advertise for personnel. "There isn't a good long-term psychiatric treatment center for children in Ohio," says one Sagamore Hills official.

WHAT STATE MENTAL HOSPITALS OFFER CHILDREN: INDIFFERENCE, HOPELESSNESS, SHACKLES, DESPAIR

ow are children treated in American mental hospitals today? This is the depressing picture:

In Tennessee, a 9-year-old girl is confined to a dreary, cell-like room where she butts and bangs her head against thesprings of a metal cot.

In West Virginia, a 14-year-old girl aives amid psychotic adults who, in her words, "scream and moan and cry at night and try to climb the walls."

Above all, with few exceptions, everywhere and in every state, sick children are given little or no treatment, no therapy, no attention and almost no hope. Though less dramatic, the lack of program for child patients, for whom there should be hope, is the most scandalous aspect of all.

These shocking and saddening facts are the result of a lengthy PARADE investigation into the plight of mentally ill children. For nearly a year reporters have traveled to all parts of the U.S. to see how we care for this unfortunate and neglected minority. They have visited mental hospitals (sometimes unannounced), talked to doctors, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, ward attendants, mental health officials, judges, parents and children themselves. And what they found in most places was a shameful, incredible mess.

"No matter how bad you say it is in your article," one psychiatrist told PARADE, "it won't be as bad as it really is." But what PARADE found was bad enough. Hundreds upon hundreds of children are confined in foul snakepits that smack of the 17th century pesthouse—even, in one case, complete to the shackles. Many of them are thrown in with adult patients to live out their lives in deprayity and hopelessness. Almost none are getting the benefits—any benefits—of this age of supposed psychiatric enlightenment.

Thus, in Greystone Park Hospital, New Jersey, PARADE found a boy 5 years old, dressed in dirty T-shirt and soiled shorts, sitting out a sunny afternoon in a dank ward while three attendants busily ignored him. Cheerful Hank listened to voices and laughter drifting in through the window, but explained that he could not go out among the grass and trees because he had been out that morning. Tomorrow, however, he would spend one of his two mornings a week in the hospital play school. Does he ever receive any therapy? PARADE asked an attendant. The attendant merely shrugged.

The situation is so bad, in fact, that no one even knows the extent of it. According to the National Association for Mental Health, a half-million children in this country are in need of some kind of psychiatric care. Only 5,000 are in state hospitals, and of these fewer than 1,000 are getting proper treatment, says NAMI

WHERE DO THEY BELONG?

Moreover, the problem is not limited to state hospitals. PARADE's investigation disclosed that hundreds of children are in correctional institutions who ought to be in hospitals; hundreds more are in hospitals and ought to be in correctional schools. There are not more than 200 residential treatment and day-care centers for children in the U.S., and even these are improperly used. They are understaffed, underfinanced and cluttered with children who don't belong there.

Tragically, almost everyone agreed such conditions need not exist. As a few pioneering institutions—notably in Tennessee, Michigan, Colorado and California—have already proved, pediatrics, education and psychiatry now have within their power the ability to aid most of these children.

Unfortunately, this is not being done. The way is blocked by monumental apathy and staggering indifference. Furthermore, the problem is so newly recognized and so unbelievable to many people that programs have not had a chance to get organized. Pinchpenny legislatures frequently prefer to pour money into pet pork barrel projects rather than into financing treatment programs for young people-although in the long run a child who is not cared for in the early stages of illness may cost the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars in his lifetime. Nor are the hospitals themselves blameless. While it is true that they are short of money and personnel, it is also true that this frequently serves as an alib! for not trying to do more with what they have.

In the overwhelming majority of hospitals today, children are thrown in with adults. But equally distressing is what happens in the special "children's units" theoretically established to cope with this problem. Often they are grim, grimy, redolent of institutional smell and institutional paint. And even when they are cheerful and pleasant, they are often inadequate in scope and program. Some limit themselves to children of one ow are children treated in American mental hospitals today? This is the depressing picture:

In Tennessee, a 9-year-old girl is confined to a dreary, cell-like room where she butts and bangs her head against the springs of a metal cot.

In Ohio, an 1 I-year-old girl is kept in her ward five weeks without even so each as a chance to go outside.

In West Virginia, a 14-year-old girl aives amid psychotic adults who, in her words, "scream and moan and cry at night and try to climb the walls."

Above all, with few exceptions, everywhere and in every state, sick children are given little or no treatment, no therapy, no attention and almost no hope. Though less dramatic, the lack of program for child patients, for whom there should be hope, is the most scandalous aspect of all.

These shocking and saddening facts are the result of a lengthy PARADE investigation into the plight of mentally ill children. For nearly a year reporters have traveled to all parts of the U.S. to see how we care for this unfortunate and neglected minority. They have visited mental hospitals (sometimes unannounced), talked to doctors, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, ward attendants, mental health officials, judges, parents and children themselves. And what they found in most places was a shameful, incredible mess.

"No matter how bad you say it is in your article," one psychiatrist told PARADE, "it won't be as bad as it really is." But what PARADE found was bad enough. Hundreds upon hundreds of children are confined in foul snakepits that smack of the 17th-century pesthouse—even, in one case, complete to the shackles. Many of them are thrown in with adult patients to live out their lives in depravity and hopelessness. Almost none are getting the henefits—any benefits—of this age of supposed psychiatric enlightenment.

Thus, in Greystone Park Hospital, New Jersey, Parade found a boy 5 years old, dressed in dirty T-shirt and soiled shorts, sitting out a sunny afternoon in a dank ward while three attendants busily ignored him. Cheerful Hank listened to voices and laughter drifting in through the window, but explained that he could not go out among the grass and trees because he had been out that morning. Tomorrow, however, he would spend one of his two mornings a week in the hospital play school. Does he ever receive any therapy? PARADE asked an attendant. The attendant merely shrugged.

The situation is so bad, in fact, that no one even knows the extent of it. According to the National Association for Mental Health, a half-million children in this country are in need of some kind of psychiatric care. Only 5,000 are in state hospitals, and of these fewer than 1,000 are getting proper treatment, says NAMH.

WHERE DO THEY BELONG?

Moreover, the problem is not limited to state hospitals. PARADE's investigation disclosed that hundreds of children are in correctional institutions who ought to be in hospitals; hundreds more are in hospitals and ought to be in correctional schools. There are not more than 200 residential treatment and daycare centers for children in the U.S., and even these are improperly used. They are understaffed, underfinanced and cluttered with children who don't belong there.

Tragically, almost everyone agreed such conditions need not exist. As a few pioneering institutions—notably in Tennessee, Michigan, Colorado and California—have already proved, pediatrics, education and psychiatry now have within their power the ability to aid most of these children.

Unfortunately, this is not being done. The way is blocked by monumental apathy and staggering indifference. Furthermore, the problem is so newly recognized and so unbelievable to many people that programs have not had a chance to get organized. Pinchpenny legislatures frequently prefer to pour money into pet pork barrel projects rather than into financing treatment programs for young people-although in the long run a child who is not cared for in the early stages of illness may cost the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars in his lifetime. Nor are the hospitals themselves blameless. While it is true that they are short of money and personnel, it is also true that this frequently serves as an alibi for not trying to do more with what they have.

In the overwhelming majority of nospitals today, children are thrown in with adults. But equally distressing is what happens in the special "children's units" theoretically established to cope with this problem. Often they are grim, grimy, redolent of institutional smell and institutional paint. And eyen when they are cheerful and pleasant, they are often inadequate in scope and program. Some limit themselves to children of one sex, with one particular disorder or of a certain age, shutting out all others from treatment or program. In others, children of all ages, shapes, sizes and afflictions are lumped together. In some hospitals there are tots, teenagers, violent cases, withdrawn children, retarded, epileptic, brain-damaged and wildly psychotic sharing a ward—and none of them receiving any therapy.

Even more tragic, already limited facilities and staff are often taken up by children who are not mentally ill but have "behavior problems" or "personality disturbances"—children who have been dumped in the hospitals by parents, schools, community agencies and courts because there seems nothing else to do with them. "We get a lot of hids who really aren't sick enough to be hospitalized," an official of Colorado State Hospital at Pueblo told PARADE. "And we're tired of being a dumping ground." By his estimate more than half of hospitalized children fall into this category.

Typical of them is 11-year-old Billy, whom PARADE talked to at Huntington, W. Va., State Hospital. According to Superintendent Gaston P. de Lemos, Billy is not even seriously disturbed. But he comes from a sordid family background. and he has a record of petty thievery. setting fires and breaking into stores, so by court order he went to Huntington State. "He should be in a nice foster home somewhere," says the nurse on Billy's ward. "Therapeutically we're not doing anything for him." Adds Dr. de Lemos: "All his life Billy will have the stigma of having been in a mental hospital."

NO PROGRAM FOR RETARDED

Equally pathetic are the large numbers of retarded and brain damaged children lodged in mental hospitals. Their affliction is not one of disturbance but of failure to develop (although some are both retarded and disturbed), and they should be in special schools where they could be educated to their proper potential. "We have no program for these poor little things," says Dr. Nancy Durant, a psychiatrist and director of the children's unit at New Jersey's Marlboro State Hospital. "We're just giving them housekeeping care and allowing them to regress."

Still a third tragic group in mental hospitals are the so-called chronic or severely disturbed children allegedly "too sick to be helped." Hospitals generally make only minimal attempts to treat them, concentrating what meager facilities are available on children more amenable to treatment. Instead the "too sick" children are filed and forgotten in the back wards of the hospital. Yet many authorities believe that most of these hopeless cases could indeed be helped, if not completely cured.

"Saying that any child or group of children are hopeless will guarantee they'll be hopeless," says Dr. Leon M. Eisenberg, professor of child psychiatry at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. Dr. Lauretta Bender of New York, a leading specialist in treating autistic children and childhood schizophrenics, says, "There have been many childhood schizophrenics and autistic children who have been treated and recovered and become useful, functioning people."

Even when the children are not hopeless, administrators often are more inclined to run a tight ship than pay attention to the welfare of their young natients.

In Chicago State Hospital, for instance, one ward houses 218 male patients, 16 of them young boys. Until 3:30 each afternoon most of these youngsters attend school. But after that there is nothing for them to do but sit. So by 6 or 6:30 they are bundled off to bed. At bedtime the staff on duty numbers two, sometimes only one! If a child needed attention, he would have no one to turn to.

"BIG THING IS ATTENTION"

If staff members had time for the children, it might make up for other deficiencies. "In every form of treatment the big thing is attention," says Dr. Donald Bourg, director of the Children's Division of Colorado's Fort Logan Mental Health Center. But, authorities readily admit, children in state mental hospitals—particularly those who are quiet and give no one any trouble—rarely get any attention.

For those who do "act out," the attention they get is apt to be in the form of restraint, seclusion—or, usually, tranquilizers. The hospitals explain that "shortage of staff" makes it necessary to tie up and pacify young patients. And often this is absolutely true. In one Illinois hospital, where PARADE found an 8-year-old boy tied to a chair, there were exactly two attendants to watch over 28 small children, several of whom were violently psychotic.

In some cases, hospitals have staff, programs and attention on paper, but lack of funds or trained personnel keep them from being put into effect.

are compounded by shortages outside. Many kids stay in institutions because there is no place else to put them. In a grim ward in Central State Hospital, Indianapolis, Ind., PARADE found a girl suffering from sickle cell anemia who had been there three years after she was pronounced cured of her psychiatric symptoms. But her home situation was bad and she could not be returned to it, and no other institution or agency would accept her because of the anemia.

"For three years now," her doctor says,
"she has had to live with sick kids—really sick kids—although she no longer has any mental problems. She can't work or support herself because of the anemia.
We can't just send her home. So tell me, what can I do?"

Why, in a civilized nation, do we allow children to be handled in such barbarous and neglectful ways? Aside from the obvious reasons of apathy, indifference, neglect, another major reason is that the problem has crept up on us so suddenly. Even within the field of psychiatry itself, child psychiatry was not recognized as a specialty until 1959. A few years ago the federal government sponsored a Joint Commission on Mental Health; its report barely mentioned children. Not a single child psychiatrist was on the study board. The NAMH says that even today 21 states have no public facilities for children at all.

The in certain places pioneering institutions are confronting the problem of how to provide good treatment for mentally ill children, and with excellent results. Hawthorn Center in Northville, Mich., perhaps the best children's psychiatric hospital in the country, has adequate numbers of top trained staff in a modern facility that looks and operates like a boarding school. It offers not only inpatient treatment, but consultative services to children and their families and a five-day-a-week day care program for children not sick enough to be hospitalized. It also operates as a training and research headquarters. Other fine programs are at Colorado's Fort Logan Mental Health Center and one for younger children at California's Camarillo State Hospital. A few other good programs on a smaller scale exist in places like New Jersey.

NASHVILLE PROGRAM

Perhaps the most exciting of all is the remarkable "Project Re-Ed" residential treatment program in Cumberland House Elementary School, Nashville, which operates on the theory that education can be used in lieu of conventionally disturbed children. Children aged 6 to 12 are under the full round-the clock supervision of skilled "teacher-counselors" in a program that provides both education and behavior improvement 16 hours a day. Psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers are only called in on a consultative basis. One of the merits of the "Re-Ed" concept is that it helps avoid the problem of training enough psychiatric staff. Its proponents also believe that "Re-Ed" principles can be used effectively in mental hospitals and correctional schools.

Although Project Re-Ed has been in operation only two years, Principal Charles McDonald says "an exceedingly large percentage" of children are now "integrated successfully back into the community."

Obviously one answer to the problem of mentally ill children is more Project Re-Eds, Hawthorn Centers and better community facilities and programs generally. But authorities agree that even within the present framework, certain steps could be taken to improve the care of hospitalized mentally ill children. And they think these steps should be taken right now:

1. No children should be kept in wards with adults—ever. If no separate children's facility is available, patient population should be rearranged to provide at least some sort of separate—and cheerful—living quarters and treatment and classroom areas.

2. Treatment programs stressing full education and vocational training should be established. These programs should provide individual attention—which means adequate staffing is necessary. Staffs should include both trained professionals and people whose primary qualification is simply that they love children. As Dr. M. T. Faruki, superintendent of Ohio's Dayton State Hospital, says: "I'd use a plumber if he were good with children!"

3. Hospitals should explore all possibilities of using cottage homes, halfway houses and other group and foster care setups. The over-all philosophy should be "the less hospitalization the better"

4. Above all, hospitals should abandon the notion that nothing can be done for certain children and set as a goal meaningful programs that will really try to assist every child and to give him and his family hope for the future.

Obviously, to improve the care of mentally ill children is going to cost money. Hospitals are expensive to improve, expensive to build and good staffs must be recruited and paid. What is needed is massive public support.

How can you help? You should investigate facilities and programs for mentally ill children in your community. If none exist, try to get one started. Watchdog to make sure it has adequate funds, adequate staff. Organize a group that will support the operation. Volunteer to visit children and to help them—remember that what will assist them most is attention.

"It is possible to help mentally ill children," says Michael Freelund, director of the Childhood Mental Illness Service of the National Association for Mental Health. "The only question is whether the public cares enough to press for adequate services for them."

dresses, jackets and pants. Their designs range in price from $125 to over $600. Using a die process long known to the fabric industry, the designers stencil furs to look like herringbone tweeds, Scotch plaids, pin stripes and houndstooth designs. While they can make an ordinary jack rabbit look like a sumptuous chinchilla, they are proudest of their original Kuku dot design. In the première collection the designers showed evening dresses, at-home costumes and pants suits of sheared white rabbit with brown and black Kuku dots. If you didn't look close you'd swear the clothes were made of velvet.

Using a die process long known to the fabric industry, the designers stencil furs to look like herringbone tweeds, Scotch plaids, pin stripes and houndstooth designs. While they can make an ordinary jack rabbit look like a sumptuous chinchilla, they are proudest of their original Kuku dot design. In the première collection the designers showed evening dresses, at-home costumes and pants suits of sheared white rabbit with brown and black Kuku dots. If you didn't look close you'd swear the clothes were made of velvet.

Though the business is practically brand-new, the designers hope to make a pretty silk purse out of their sows' ears.

Designers Foster (f.) and Booker (r.) adjust model's chinchilla-dyed rabbit coat.

Is overcrowding a problem in your house?

Here's a valuable guide to the financial aspects of building an addition or modernizing your home.

Planning to build an extra bedroom or bathroom? Remodel your kitchen? Finish off your attic or basement? If so, you'll want to know approximate costs...the best way to finance such additions...how you can keep costs down. And here's the booklet to guide you, available only from New York Life.

"Expanding or Improving Your House," written by an expert in this field, offers a great deal of sound advice to homeowners who need more living space. Maybe you can't decide whether to expand or move; this booklet weighs the "pros and cons." It contains detailed discussions on different types of loans and comparative interest rates—could save you money! included, too, are helpful hints on choosing a contractor, and how you can economize with "do-it-yourself" projects.

How to get your copy. "Expanding or Improving Your House" is the newest in New York Life's series of free booklets on Family Financial Planning. All you need do to get a copy is send the coupon or get in touch with the New York Life Agent in your community. You'll find he's a good man to know!

CHILDHOOD AND GREATNESS. From what sort of home background does greatness in people spring? Victor and Mildred Goertzel, two California research psychologists, have investigated the childhood background of 400 famous world figures. More than 75% of the top 400, the Goertzels learned, were hurt and troubled by having been born into broken homes, poverty-stricken homes, homes ruled by tyrannical parents -- in short, unhappy homes. Many leading actors and singers had alcoholic fathers; many writers, overemotional parents; many dictators, soldiers and poets, overprotective mothers. Many great . explorers and adventurers were accident-prone as children. Adolf Hitler had a mother who smothered him with love, kept him away from girls. At 15, when a girl named Stephanie refused to smile at him, he threatened suicide. Maria Callas. the opera star, was a rejected girl. Her mother wanted a son to replace her dead brother. Mac Tse-tung quarreled incessantly with his father, threatened to drown himself if his father berated him one more time. Charles de Gaulle, calléd "Long Asparagus" because of his height and his nose, was a poor student, had few friends, overcame his handicaps by reciting the famous nose speech of Cyrano de Bergerac every chance he got. Adlai Stevenson, so gentle and kind that he was . kiddingly called "The Brute" at home, was a supersensitive child completely devoted to his parents. Benito Mussolini, whipped day in and day out by a vicious father, contracted a venereal disease at 16 stabbed a mistress at 18, grew up without a friend, determined to get even with the world. The Goertzel research appears in a fascinating book, Cradles of Eminence.

CATS TAKE THE LEAD AS AMERICA'S FAYORITE PET.

PET POPULATION. America used to be a dog country. No more. Cats are rapidly becoming America's favorite pet, now outnumber dogs by a million or more. As people congregate in cities, living in apartments and small houses, dogs become too difficult to manage. Cats require less space and exercise.

CALIFORNIA LEADS. Latest population estimates from the Census Bureau proves that California is now the number one State in the union with 18,602,000 residents compared to New York's 18,073,000. Although Revada ranks 47th in population with a total of 440,000 residents the state's rate of growth in the past five years. up 52.4%, has been fastest in the union. Second-fastest growth is Arizona with 1,608,000 up 306,000 or 23.5%.

TITLE CHANGES. Hollywood believes the moviegoing public has gone . spy-happy. Result: It is hypoing film titles by adding a "spy flavor" to them. Morituri, the Marlon Brando flop, has been changed to Saboteur, Code Name --Morituri. An MGM release, Operation Crossbow, is publicized as The Great Spy Wission. Cary Grant's starrer, Father Goose. has been changed to Operation Father Goose. And Masquerade has been altered to Operation Masquerade.

CHILD STATUTES. A total of 37 states have now enacted laws which make it mandatory for doctors to report all cases of child abuse.

Many parents, deranged, vicious, suffering from nasty tempers and mental upsets. have beaten their children so violently that these laws have become necessary as a deterrent. Some physicians are vary of the laws, afraid of lavsuits by accused parents. To neutralize this fear several states -- New York and . California are two -have made co-operative physicians immune to Such lawsuits.

BUSINESS FORECAST.
Business prospects for the rest of the year are excellent, largely because of increased government spending. That's the opinion of 20 company presidents polled by the American Stock Exchange. These executives forecast sales increases from 1% to 25%, an over-all average profit increase of 5%.

BOOKS NOT WANTED.
Three years ago Somerset

Maugham, the novelist. sold his art collection for approximately $1,500,000. A few weeks ago he tried to give avay 400 valuable books from his Riviera library. First he offered them to the British Library in Nice. It had no room. Next he offered them to other charities. Still no takers. The books are now going to the Anglo-American hospital in Nice. Moral: Buy paintings.

ANTOMINE TO THE WEST OF THE

hree years ago British secretaries, attracted by better working conditions, the climate and the increased availability of potential husbands, began trickling into the U.S.

Soon the trickle burgeoned into a flood, at times overran the labor markets of New York, San Frantisco, Los Angeles, other American cities.

Eighteen months ago, for example, so many English girls settled in New York that our own office cuties complained to U.S. labor and immigration officials, who promptly slapped a ban on those British secretaries emigrating to the nation's largest city.

Today our overseas cousins are permitted to arrive and take secretarial work in any American city except New York, where they've been accused in some instances of lowering the wage scale and taking jobs away from industrious American girls.

Most responsible for the influx of English secretaries into the U.S. is Margery Hurst, 45, millionaire owner of the Brook Street Bureau of Mayfair, largest employment agency of office personnel in Great Britain which has sent thousands of English girls with their highly desirable, distinctive, clipped accents to this country.

A feisty, ambitious Napoleon of a woman as sharp as finely honed Sheffield steel, Margery Hurst decided a few years ago to conduct an international exchange program by bringing American secretaries to England. "The idea," she explains, "was to spread goodwill, give your American secretaries a working holiday."

"The idea," claims one of Mrs. Hurst's competitors, "was to help lift the U.S. restriction on British secretaries landing in New York by pointing up in contrast how welcome American secretaries were in London."

OFF TO ENGLAND

Whatever the motivation of the program, it has resulted in hundreds of American secretaries, 21 to 55, flying to England, working for British companies between March and November and in the process providing up-and-coming British executives with a new status symbol.

The London businessman who employs an American secretary today wears the badge of progress. He is regarded in his own country as efficient, forward-hoking, up-to-date, an executive more interested in the use of smart, quick, productive American know-how than in the maintenance of hoary-haired traditional British office practices.

Listen to Malcolm Sargeant, manager of H. B. Owen, sales agency for Rolls-Royces and Bentleys.

"Over the years," Mr. Sargeant says, "we've tried secretaries from Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, other Commonwealth nations. Of late we've been using American girls, and in many cases they make the best secretaries we've ever had. In fact they make some of our own London girls look like amateurs.

The American secretary arrives promptly. She is always clean, trim, well-dressed and groomed. She's a pleasure to look at, and most important of all, she's highly skilled. She knows her business. I can't speak too highly of these girls. This past summer we had a New York girl working here, a Miss Terry Borak, and she was martelous. This is a small, intimately run office; she fit in beautifully; the salesmen loved her. We paid her 18 or 20 pounds a week [$50.40], and she was more than worth it."

Egon Ronay, a London publisher of guidebooks who specializes in advising readers on restaurants, hotels and pubs throughout the United Kingdom, is so pleased with his American secretary, Carole Keith, 25, that he's promoted her to the permanent position of executive assistant.

"She's the first American girl I've hired," says Ronay, "and she is outstanding, I will keep her as long as she possibly cares to stay."

According to Sheila Rhodes of the Brook Street Bureau, in charge of looking after the U.S. secretaries in London: We've been fabulously lucky in our choice of girls. We haven't had a single complaint from a single British employer. They think the Americans are 'terrif.'

When Margery Hurst first announced in a secretarial magazine that she was looking for American secretaries to work in England, she expected to attract the younger, more adventurous types.

"It hasn't turned out that way," she explains. "What we're getting are the more mature, more experienced American girls, those in their late 20's, 30's, even 40's. Before we consider a girl we make sure she can take dictation at 100 words a minute and type at 60. In that way we're assured of her secretarial skills before we recommend her." American secretaries are allowed to work four months between March and November unless a British company hires them on a permanent basis.

FAREWELL WYOMING

Typical of the American secretary in England is Ann Woodhouse, 31, of Rawlins, Wyo. A former secretary in Washington, D.C., for various congressmen—Charles Mosher of Ohio, Keith Thomson of Wyoming—Ann was earning $525 a month as personal secretary to Clifford Hansen, Governor of Wyoming, before she deckled to thuck it all and fly to London where she now nets 13 pounds per week [$36.40] working for James Sage, a distributor of Scottish wools and knitwear.

"What made me do it?" she asks. "Wyoming is a great state, and I truly love it. But we don't have the ballet, the art galleries, the exciting cultural life they have in London. I haven't met any interesting Englishmen here as yet, but the people are extremely kind and polite. I live in a room off the Old Brompton Road with another American girl, Anne Fisseman from Fresno, and I plan to stay here indefinitely. It's a welcome change."

Rhonda Bishop, 24, of New York, who came to London a year ago and has subsequently worked for a British advertising agency, an employment agency and the Department of Economic Affairs, claims, "British bosses are easier to work for than American. That's the first thing an American secretary here observes in her work. At least that's been my experience. The British men are slower, more deliberate and infinitely more polite and gentle. They are not accustomed to well-dressed, well-groomed secretaries, and consequently they expect more in the way of intelligence from a secretary than they do of dress. When they get both they're gratefully surprised.

"I must tell you I think British men are tops," Rhonda says enthusiastically, "not only at work but also socially. Their approach is much more civilized, much more restrained. I'm talking about dating.

"When an Englishman takes you home after a date, he makes another date right at the door if he likes you. He's not like the American who makes a game out of it. The American takes you home, casually says, 'I'll see you around.' Then a girl has to sit and wait by the telephone until he makes up his mind."

Terry Borak (see cover) is similarly enthusiastic about British men. "We have seven car salesmen on the floor," she explains, "a fair representation of English manhood. I've seen these men operate, and they're okar.

"A lot of American girls will tell you that as a date the Englishman compared to the American is much slower. I haven't found him that way. He is more subtle in flirting, more indirect in his approach, but when the Englishman gets you alone he's just as forthright and red blooded as anyone."

A tall, dark-haired beauty of 28, Terry spent most of her working life in American advertising agencies before trying London "just for the change." Now she plans to work her way across Europe.

Carole Keith, formerly a secretary at Restaurant Associates in New York and now Egon Ronay's assistant in London, places British employers in two categories. "Either they are terribly kind and martelously considerate," she asserts, "or they're a bunch of phony stuffed shirts hiding behind a ridiculous mask of what they consider old school dignity. London is a fabulous city for American secretaries, but taxes here are worse than in the States. Out of a weekly salary of 20 pounds [$56], which is quite high for a girl, I take home after deductions for the income tax, the graduated pension tax and the National Health Service deduction, a little more than 15 pounds. They put you on what they call the emergency tax system and take 25 per cent right off the 100.

Even so, I share a very nice flat with three English girls, and we're all having a ball. The Englishmen I've met and dated are fine men. They make you respect them, and frankly I'd much rather work in London than in New York. The people are polite, friendly and helpful. And as I said before, the men are particularly outstanding. But what counts most is that so many of them are still single."

THE WOMAN WHO BOSSES LATIN-AMERICAN REVOLUTIONARIES

by ANDREW ST. GEORGE

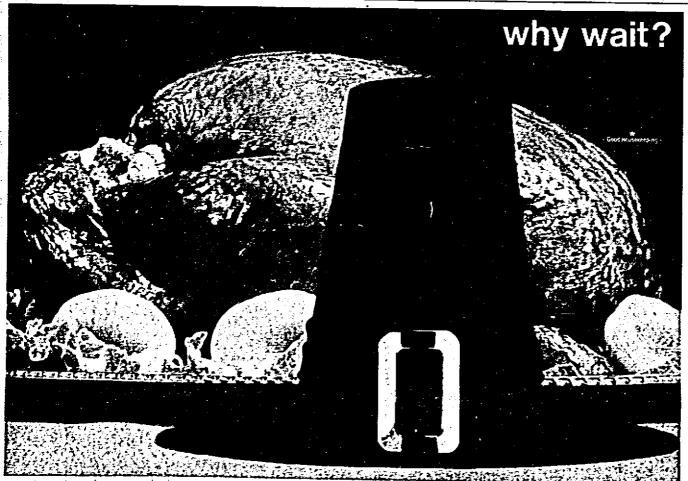

Seductive and deadly serious, Raul Castro's wife Vitrna rose with rapidity to the top of revolutionary ladder, n another formight it will be time again for the martial, missile-studded parade with which the government of Cuban dictator Fidel Castro commemorates the 30th day of October. The somber ceremonies recall the day, three years ago, on which the military march-past was first staged in honor of U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant. On that first occasion it celebrated the end of the tense missile crisis; this year it will usher in a new wave of revolutionary struggle throughout Latin America, where for the first time in history every revolt-torn country from Guatemala all the way south to Peru is living in a troubled state of siege.

And this year, for the first time, the Cuban leader who is, next to Fidel Castro himself, most directly responsible for the upsurge of crisis in the hemisphere will be watching the ceremonles from Castro's own reviewing stand. There is already a good deal of guessing and betting among seasoned observers that the kind of stardom which attends striking premières—the kind of stardom which once attended the now-fallen Ché Guevara—will also attend this event. For the new leader appearing in the topmost reviewing stand of revolutionaries will be a woman—young, slim, attractive and magnetically feminine. Nevertheless, for all her beguiling looks, Vilma Espin de Castro, 32, the mother of two small daughters—and wife of Cuba's No. 2 man, Defense Minister Raul Castro—is quite probably the most successful young woman revolutionary in the world right now.

Americans, who think of sandals, wild hair and black fingernails when they think of revolution, would find Vilma Espin familiar in a disconcerting way. She brings to mind a familiar image, not of a beatnik but rather of Betty Furness.

Like Miss Furness, Vilma is trim, thic, lovely and terribly hard-working. She can sound sincere and quietly persuasive

Do make sure it's the bird that's tender as its name ... Butterball! The bird that's bred and fed to have slice after slice of tender white meat...and flavorful dark meat. We remove most leg tendons. to make the drumsticks. as easy to carve as the big white breast! We tuck the legs, to hold stuffing inside without skewering or sewing. And we bring you Butterball Ready-To-Stuff — or already-Stuffed with a fresh old fashioned stuffing.

In more ways than one, Vilma probably represents her fastrising generation of young international revolutionary leaders better than anyone in sight. She is, first of all, a woman—one of several coming to play a major role in Latin-American politics for the first time in modern history. At college, stubbornly and characteristically, she signed up for engineering rather than one of the traditional humanities. "It trains you," she is fond of explaining, "to deal with the future."

Then, barely out of college, Vilma put her education to work as an unpaid volunteer in the Cuban revolutionary underground, first as a bomb maker, then as a cell organizer.

"My postgraduate training," she once told a friend, "was in demolition . . . and death."

While still in the underground, she fell in love with a thin, scragely-bearded, unknown youth named Raul Castro Ruz. She married him despite his recklessness, his ever-muddy boots and his inability to remember her birthday.

NO MORE MUD

These days, less than seven years later. Vilma's husband, the younger brother of Cuban dictator Fidel Castro, is commander in chief of Cuba's armed forces and a world-famous revolutionary. There are carpets for Raul and Vilma to walk on-dazzlingly magnificent ones, gifts from Egyptian strongman Nasser -and never a speck of mud in sight. When they take a trip there are personal planes escorted by jet fighters and, on arrival, the thunder of ceremonial cannon. But the "boom," Vilma says, still reminds her of the noise of homemade hombs.

In reality, success has never spoiled Vilma's enthusiasm for bomb making, demolition, sabotage or any of the revolutionary arts. In fact today the revolutionary results of her work are being demonstrated all over South America.

Take, for instance, the recent fighting in luckless little Santo Domingo. Vilma Espin has never even visited the Dominican Republic. Yet for years she has been untiring in support of a school that contributed to the education of many Dominican Hidden discreetly in a quiet Havana suburb, Vilma's school is officially known as the C.E.T.U .- that is, the Urban Tactics Training Center. Here, in a ten-month course, volunteer revolutionaries from all over Latin America receive expert instruction in the arts of streetfighting, sabotage, demolition, urban terrorism, hand gunnery, the rigging of high explosives, incendiary techniques and so forth. Wherever in the Americas violent revolution erupts, Tarara School alumni appear.

🌞 "TRAINED IN CUBA"

In Santo Domingo, graduates of Tarara School quickly emerged as the leaders of the touchest anti-American streetfighting commandos. In Guatemala and oil-rich Venezuela, guerrilla warfare and city terrorism are mounting ominously under Tarara-trained leaders such as Comandante Fabricio Ojeda. In Peru, where armed, organized Indian guerrilla bands are appearing in the highlands from Junin to Pucallpa, President Fernando Belaunde Terry, the young reformer who reluctantly clamped martial law on his large country, identified who was directing the movement: "Guerrilla leaders trained in Cuba." And in Colombia, where the dreaded specter of "La Violencia"—the blood frenzy of torture and killing which periodically engulfs the country—is riding in the wind again, testimony comes from Gloria Gaitan, the slim, raven haired, melting-diamond eyed daughter of a great family: "Fidel Castro made me a revolutionary in spirit. But it was Vilma who showed me how to become a revolutionary in practice."

Not long ago, in a characteristic more, Vilma engineered a secret deal with a group of Mexicans sympathetic to Castroism headed by the aging ex-President Lázaro Cárdenas.

The Mexicans undertook to buy and lease strips of land along the Mexican-Guatemalan border. The purpose: to provide a sanctuary and supply base for the faltering Guatemalan EUCTTIFLES.

Vilma's deal proved, in retrospect, a turning point.

While still in the underground, she fell in love with a thin, scraggly-hearded, unknown youth named Raul Castro Ruz. She married him despite his recklessness, his ever-muddy boots and his inability to remember her birthday.

NO MORE MUD

These days, less than seven years later, Vilma's husband, the younger brother of Cuban dictator Fidel Castro, is commander in chief of Cuba's armed forces and a world-famous revolutionary. There are carpets for Raul and Vilma to walk on—dazzlingly magnificent ones, gifts from Egyptian strongman Nasser—and never a speck of mud in sight. When they take a trip there are personal planes escorted by jet fighters and, on arrival, the thunder of ceremonial cannon. But the "boom," Vilma says, still reminds her of the noise of homemade bombs.

In reality, success has never spoiled Vilma's enthusiasm for bomb-making, demolition, sabotage or any of the revolutionary arts. In fact today the revolutionary results of her work are being demonstrated all over South America.

Take, for instance, the recent fighting in luckless little Santo Domingo. Vilma Espín has never even visited the Dominican Republic. Yet for years she has been untiring in support of a school that contributed to the education of many Dominican youths.

Hidden discreetly in a quiet Havana suburb, Vilma's school is officially known as the C.E.T.U.—that is, the Urban Tactics Training Center. Here, in a ten-month course, volunteer revolutionaries from all over Latin America receive expert instruction in the arts of streetfighting, sabotage, demolition, urban terrorism, hand gunnery, the rigging of high explosives, incendiary techniques and so forth. Wherever in the Americas violent revolution crupts, Tarara School alumni appear.

"TRAINED IN CUBA"

In Santo Domingo, graduates of Tarara School quickly emerged as the leaders of the toughest anti-American streetfighting commandos. In Guatemala and oil-rich Venezuela, guerrilla warfare and city terrorism are mounting ominously under Tarara-trained leaders such as Comandante Fabricio Ojeda. In Peru, where armed, organized Indian guerrilla bands are appearing in the highlands from Junin to Pucallpa, President Fernando Belaúnde Terry, the young reformer who reluctantly clamped martial law on his large country, identified who was directing the movement: "Guerrilla leaders trained in Cuba." And in Colombia, where the dreaded specter of "La Violencia"—the blood frenzy of torture and killing which periodically engulfs the country—is riding in the wind again, testimony comes from Gloria Gaitan, the slim, raven-haired, melting-diamond-eyed daughter of a great family: "Fidel Castro made me a revolutionary in spirit. But it was Vilma who showed me how to become a revolutionary in practice."

Not long ago, in a characteristic move, Vilma engineered a secret deal with a group of Mexicans sympathetic to Castroism headed by the aging ex-President Lázaro Cárdenas.

The Mexicans undertook to buy and lease strips of land along the Mexican-Guatemalan border. The purpose: to provide a sanctuary and supply base for the faltering Guatemalan guerrillas.

Vilma's deal proved, in retrospect, a turning point.

TOUGH GIRL VILMA: SHE WENT FROM M.I.T. TO BOMB-THROWER TO INTERNATIONAL DIPLOMAT

"Back in those days," recalls a veteran U.S. intelligence analyst, "the Guatemalan guerrillas were just a mosquito nuisance. But after they acquired those 'safe havens' across the border, they began to pick up speed. Now they're operating in strength and even openly preparing to fight U.S. troops."

The Guatemalan and Colombian guerrila leaders have in fact unleashed a startling diplomatic offensive recently. First they publicly declared their affiliation with the "anti imperialist camp" led by the Chinese Communists. Then they set out to negotiate a war alliance among guerrilla forces in El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala, Venezuela and Colorabia.

A Pan-American reunion of guerrillas is now all set. Representatives from North Vietnam, the Viet Cong, Algeria and Cuba will attend. The purpose: to hammer out a joint strategy against what the Communist leaders call "inevitable" U.S. intervention."

In this new revolutionary movement, Vilma Espin de Castro stands a good head above the rest. Her credentials as an elite "terror-maker," an organizer of discontent, insurrection and violence. go back almost ten years. Claude Julien, the famous French journalist, took, a look at her five years ago and described her as a "dur de dur"-the "toughest of the tough."

fronically, Vilma Espin's childhood was anything but the harsh, deprived experience thought to breed revolutionaries. The daughter of a well-to-do rum company executive, Vilma was born and raised in a pleasant, marble-floored Snanish-style town house of Santiago, Cuba's second city.

Out of high school-with high honors -Vilma wangled admission to Oriente University. She graduated second in her class and went on to the U.S. for advanced courses at that queenly alma mater of engineering, M.I.T.

"She was very active in school, an organizer, what you call a wheel on campus," recalls Maria-Theresa Taquechel, college classmate who now lives in New York. "Yet, you know, no one really liked her. There was always something remote about her. She always seemed to know exactly what was best for her."

Whatever that was, Vilma obviously didn't look for it in chemistry or engineering. By 1956, back in Cuba, she joined the student underground supporting Fidel Castro.

Within a year, she was a precinct leader in Santiago. At the outset of 1958 she was appointed "coordinator"-director-of the entire civilian underground motement.

Both Vilma's predecessors in this job had died bloody, violent deaths. The underground fought the government forces with bullets and bombs; the beleaguered constabulary struck back with roundups, torture, indiscriminate executions.

Hundreds died in the bitter struggle. But sitting in the eye of the storm, Vilma proved herself an amazingly smooth, skillful manager. She instinctively knew how to avoid risks, and under the nom de guerre of "Deborah" she became the Castro underground's most efficientand most feared-leader.

She always looked very pretty, and she was as hard as nails." Jesus Verdecia, who was once known as "Fats" in the Castro underground, told a visitor recently. "You know, you always talk of killing all the government informers. But you don't do it much, because you can almost never be sure you aren't mistaken. Well, Vilma-we called her 'Deborah' then-she would give the order for shooting a suspected informer as calmly as anything." 😓

TO THE MOUNTAINS

By late 1958, Vilma alias Deborah was the most wanted woman on the Santiago police blotter. To escape capture she vanished from the city and joined the guerrilla army of Fidel Castro's younger brother, Raul, in the mountains ncar Santiago.

It was a meeting of soul mates. Raul Castro and Vilma Espín were both young, ambitious, well-organized and known for ordering the execution of suspects "as calmly as anything."

"I think what really brought them together," says Salvador Tejera, once a lieutenant on Rau! Castro's personal staff, now in exile selling cars in Santo Domingo, "is that they both had to grow up under ruthlessly domineering older siblings. Raul, of course, had always lived under the shadow of Fidel. But not many people know that Vilma had an older sister, Nilsa, who was just as strongheaded and assertive. When Vilma became a power after the Castro victory, she gave Nilsa everything-an officer's commission for her husband, a year-long trip to Paris, everything. But I guess Nilsa just couldn't live with the idea her little sister had gotten on top. In 1960, when Vilma was becoming a real national figure, Nilsa killed herself."

But even out of the shadow of their domineering families, the courtship of Raul and Vilma was a curious one. "The guerrillas permitted no fooling around," Lt. Tejera recalls. "Trying to make time with a girl was a serious offense. So when Raul and Vilma really began to fall in love, they showed it by not even giving each other a smile, ever. They both went about in boots, Stetson sombreros and with .45 gunbelts, and they snarled at each other like a pair of sour supply sergeants. It was obvious to everyone they'd get married just as soon as the war was over."

In the meantime, however, even the simplest amenities to cheer a girl up were sadly missing.

"When Vilma's birthday approached," reminisces Lt. Tejera, "the nurses at the tent hospital baked her a little flat cornmeal cake. They showed it to Raul ahead of time, and to make sure he showed up they told him he'd be responsible for bringing the birthday candles. Candles were hard to get in the mountains, but Raul said he'd get some, and then of course the birthday was on us, and he'd forgotten. He popped in at Vilma's tent in the evening, and there was the cake and all the girls, but no candles.

Of course, the girls started teasing Raul. D'you know whathe did? He pulled ten brass .45 bullets from his cartridge belt and stuck them into the rim of the

Shortly after the Castro forces entered Havana in triumph in January 1959, Vilma and Raul were married. Vilma wore a yeil, but Raul still wore his gunbelt. According to Spanish usage, the bride kept her maiden name, adding her husband's only at the end: Vilma Espin de Castro.

Vilma held back from the center stage of politics during the Castro regime's first turbulent years.

She had a daughter (a second one was burn in Moscow), studied political science and Russian and devoted herself to social work. As the wife of Cuba's secand most-powerful leader, she found herself the ex officio president of a great many organizations. She did not merely accept these responsibilities; she took on more, as many as possible.

Then, by early 1962, the first wave of Castro's brazen revolutionary recruiting was subsiding. His guerrilla invasions had failed in every country, his followers grew frightened by Ché Guevara's violent tactics. The revolutionary movement could no longer depend on violence alone; it needed planning, diplomacy and an imprecable front-the talents of Vilma Espín de Castro. By late 1962, she had become the Castro revolution's principal roving ambassador.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both -Relieves Pain - Shrinks Hemorrhoids

York, N. Y. (Special) - For the here tork, N. 1. (special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonish-ing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dync&)-discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or cintment form under the name Preparation H&. At all drug counters.

Dogs jammed into pen at animal farm are stolen from heartbroken owners, often mistreated.

ANIMAL-LOVERS: BEWARE THE

ustlers as vicious as any who ever roamed the Old West are preying on the nation's pets. Organized dog- and catnaping rings are stealing animals all over the U.S. and selling them to hospitals and research institutions. They are making millions by bringing hearthreak to children and elderly and lonely people as well. These pet smugglers are also guilty of the most callous cruelty to animals imaginable.

A congressional committee recently heard one dog-and-cat farm in Pennsylvania described as an animal "Dachau," as horrifying as the notorious Nazi gaschamber camp. Investigators found 700 dogs jammed into a dozen 10-footsquare pens. One pen contained more than 70 dogs, so closely packed they couldn't even wag their tails for their rescuers. Some 400 cats were crammed into stacked chicken crates. Dead and diseased animals lay among the living.

Worse, pet rustling is subsidized indirectly by the taxpayers. That is why, in recent years, it has blossomed from a penny ante crime to its present astounding proportions. Originally, dogs and cats were stolen to be resold as pets or to be returned for the rewards. But the increasing use of animals in medical research has created a boom market, not only for strays but for any cats and dogs that can be delivered. Few questions are asked and fewer answered once a collar has been removed.

Last year laboratories and hospitals receiving federal research grants spent between $30 million and $50 million on dogs and cats. More than 1.7 million dogs and 500,000 cats were sold to tax-supported institutions. One federal agency alone, the Poolesville, Md., Animal Center of the National Institutes of Health, spends more than $100,000 a year on dogs and cats.

With such money in the market, supply is bound to meet the demand. Result —wholesale pet smuggling has been reported in most of the 50 states.

Most persons do not dispute the need for animals in medical research. Immense benefits in human health have come from such experiments. When laboratories buy animals for research, they do so in good faith. Many suppliers are also reputable breeders and brokers.

Yet investigators believe the overwhelming majority of the dogs and cats that wind up in medical tests are strayed or stolen pets. Once snatched, they are quickly whisked out of the state to make tracing more difficult. To further confuse the trail, they may change hands number of times. Most transactions are in cash with no meaningful bills of sale. Identifying tags are immediately removed and destroyed.

Ultimately, the animals wind up at pet auctions. Sometimes dogs and cats are sold by the head, more often by the pound. The going rate is about 10¢ a pound. Puppies and kittens fetch as little as 10¢ apiece.

RUSTLING PAYS

Profits are enormous. One dealer had a $750,000 turnover last year. The owner of the animal Dachau started out with a station wagon seven years ago, peddling a few dozen pets. Now he maintains a huge farm and deals in thousands of animals. There is no evidence he ever stole pets himself, but he has been convicted three times for cruelty to animals. Yet he is advertised in a government publication, paid for by the taxpayers, as a laboratory supplier.

The rustlers have become increasingly brazen as their profits have zoomed and their smuggling networks have become more elaborate. One mother in Arlington, Va., watched a dognaper get out of his truck, stride boldly into her yard, snatch a pet right out of her small son's arms, then beat it down the highway. Bravely, she gave chase in her car and so harried the dognaper that he finally pulled up and released the puppy.

But the owners of most stolen dogs and cats never see their pets again. A 77-year-old lady in Utah watched helplessly as a dognaper entired her pet out of her yard. A wheelchair patient last month phoned the New York Humane Association to report the loss of her dog. "Is there nothing you can do?" she pleaded. Elaine Beck, a Columbus, Ohio, dog trainer, recently wrote to the U.S. Humane Society—"We in Columbus are having such a wave of dognaping we are almost desperate."

The rustlers have many ruses. If the coast seems clear, they may simply grab pets off the streets or out of yards. Female dogs are used to entice male dogs into wire cages. Meat scraps and dog candy are also used as bait. A Jacksonville, Fla., rustler painted his truck to look official, complete with the lettering "animal shelter" on the sides. Then, posing as a dogcatcher, he used phony pretexts to take pets from their owners.

Yet he is advertised in a government publication, paid for by the taxpayers, as a laboratory supplier.

The rustlers have become increasingly brazen as their profits have zoomed and their smuggling networks have become more claborate. One mother in Arlington, Va., watched a dognaper get out of his truck, stride boldly into her yard, snatch a pet right out of her small son's arms, then beat it down the highway. Bravely, she gave chase in her car and so harried the dognaper that he finally pulled up and released the puppy.

Meat scraps and dog candy are also used as bait. A Jacksonville, Fla., rustler painted his truck to look official, complete with the lettering "animal shelter" on the sides. Then, posing as a dogcatcher, he used phony pretexts to take pets from their owners.

Some dealers go from door to door pleading for pets to make needy children happy. No child will ever see these animals; they will die on the operating table if they don't die from starvation and cruelty before they get there. A New York high school teacher, who rustled pets as a profitable sideline, trained his 6-year-old daughter to beg for cats, saying her parents needed them to catch mice on their farm.

Other rustlers operate behind the front of kennel keepers. They advertise, offering to board pets while their owners are away. The hapless owners, upon their return, are told with many regrets that their pet became unmanageable and escaped, or had to be destroyed as an act of mercy after contracting virulent distemper. Many successful pet peddlers, with money to bribe, have persuaded keepers of dog pounds, animal shelters and even humane societies to sell them pots under the counter. One dog dealer, who tried to bribe Frank Whelan, superintendent of the Freeport, N.Y., animal shelter, claimed two other Long Island animal shelters were smuggling dogs to him. One had used the bribe money to pay for an addition to his house, the other to build a swimming pool.

But in Whelan, the dog dealer picked the wrong man. Not only was Whelan aware of the cruelty in the illegal pet traffic, but only a few days earlier, a collie from the shelter, Shep, had roused Whelan and his wife in time to pick up their 5-year-old son and escape from their burning apartment building. Shep led them to safety. Pretending to go along with the dealer, Whelan helped to convict him on a charge of commercial bribery.

MEAN RACKET

A veteran Connecticut state detective, who broke up a dognaping ring and recovered a number of stolen pets, declared tersely, "I've worked on every kind of larceny, but dognaping is about the meanest. It's tough for parents to tell a 4-year-old that his dog has been taken."

One determined dog owner, Mrs. Carol Lakavage of Slatington, Pa., failed by a single day to save her pet Dalmatian, Pepper, from the operating table. After the dog vanished, she learned that a man had been seen to pick up a Dalmatian near her home. Then a truck driver was stopped by police for overloading his trick with animals. He was fined $60 for overloading, another $10 for providing the animals no water.

The dogs were lodged overnight at the Easton, Pa., animal shelter where pictures of them were taken. Mrs. Lakavage heard about the case, checked the pictures and identified one of the dogs as Pepper. Through the driver, she traced Pepper to an animal farm in New York State, but the owners refused to let her look for her dog without a warrant. Mrs.

Lakavage ran into so much red tape that she appealed to Sen. Joseph Clark (D., Pa.). The senator wangled the warrant out of the New York authorities, but it was a day too late. Pepper had been shipped to the Montehore Hospital at Columbia University, where he had died on the operating table during a hearttransplant experiment.

The fight to save Pepper, however, has sparked Congressman Joseph Resnick (D., N.Y.) to launch an investigation of pet rustling and to frame a bill. Says Resnick: "People who love their pets should not have to fear that if they stray or are stolen, they may end up in some laboratory. It seems to me that the hospitals have not assumed their share of responsibility for determining whether the animals are strays or pets. We are going to look into the whole business of buying animals with federal funds."

Can the vicious pet rustling racket, with all its animal and human cruelty, be curbed? And can this be done without depriving medical science of muchneeded research animals? A current bill would require all dealers to be licensed and inspected for humane conditions. The Agriculture Department . would also set standards for transportation, as it does for other livestock. Dealers would be required to house each animal for five days, which, coupled with strict provisions for recording the description and origin of each animal, would at least help owners to recover pets that have disappeared.

A dog is a man's best friend, but there are times when a dog needs a friend.

Cats are stacked many-deep in chicken crates, where some suffocate before being auctioned-by the pound.

"Food is a bargain" is the theme of a two-week nation wide campaign being started today by the Grocery Manufacturers of America. What better way to dramatize that point than with a recipe for chili, a dish, that's inexpensive, nutritious and savory. Chili Pot Pie is a perfect antidote to chill autumn winds. Prepare fresh fruit salad to serve as both salad and dessert. Include a beverage of your choice, and you've got a well-balanced meal.

CHILL POT PIE

1 teaspoon Worcestershire

1 medium onion, chopped 1 green pepper, cut in strips

I tablespoons vegetable oil
Corn Meal Biscuit topping

OT PLE I tablespoon chili powder (or

corn, drained

drained
X cup sliced pitted ripe olives

Combine beef, sait, pepper and Worcestershire sauce; mix well. Shape into 12 balls. Cook onion and green pepper in oil until tender; remove from pan. Brown meatballs in oil remaining in pan; remove meat balls to 2-quart baking dish. Stir chill powder into meat drippings; add corn, kidney beans, tomatoes and ripe olives; mix well. Simmer 5 to 10 minutes. Stir in onion and green pepper; pour over meatballs. Prepare biscuits; arrange on top of baking dish. Bake at 425° for 20 to 25 minutes or until biscuits are done. Makes 6 servings.

* CORN MEAL BISCUIT TOPPING

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour 1 teaspoon salt 1 cup enriched corn meat 1 teaspoon paprika 2 teaspoons baking powder 3 tablespoons shortening 1/2 cup milk

Sift dry ingredients into bowl. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs: Add milk; stir lightly until mixture is dampened. Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead gently a few seconds. Roll out to 1/2-inch thickness. Cut with

This little quiz may save you a few missteps if you're about to buy your number 1 Savings Bond.

It happens they are not for sale at the U.S. Post Office. Used to be, but not since 1954.

Unfortunately, you can't buy Savings Bonds at the supermarket, either. But you can buy them out of a catalog—from one of the nation's largest mail order companies.

You can also buy Savings Bonds at all banks and many savings & loan associations. Both these institutions offer this service free to the taxpayers.

The last one's easy if you work at a place with the Payroll Savings Plan. Thousands of big and small companies help their employees help themselves by offering Savings Bonds on payday installments.
